LINEMAN KILLED WHILE WORKING ON ELECTRIC LIGHT POLE

James Joseph Finnegan Electrocuted in Marginal Street This Forenoon When 2300 Volts From General Distribution Wires Passed Through His Body

James Joseph Finnegan, 27 years, married, of 25 Sidney street, a lineman in the employ of the Lowell Electric Light Corp. since December, 1913, was electrocuted on a pole in Marginal st. at about 9.30 o'clock this morning. The 2300 volts from general distribution wires which passed through his body, seared his arms and hands and partly burned off the flannel shirt he wore before fellow workers could get his body away from the wires and take it to the ground. Because of the position of his body over cross bars it was fully five minutes before it could be extricated and lowered.

Members of the repair gang to which he belonged, frantically worked over him without avail for more than half an hour and the ambulance took him to the Lowell Corporation hospital, where he was pronounced dead.

No formal report of the details of the accident had been filed by the foreman of the construction gang at the office of the Electric Light Corp. at noon, but from what they had been able to learn, company officials say, Finnegan in some way came in fatal contact with general distribution wires. The pole on which he was working is situated at the corner of Marginal street and Glidden avenue. Mrs. P. J. Leddy of 88 Marginal street, in telling of the accident to a Sun reporter, said that for at least five minutes Finnegan's body lay over the pole cross-arms, although his fellow workers made every effort to get it away from the wires.

Finnegan's tragic death comes as a great shock to the many people who intimately knew him in the neighborhood in which he always had lived. He

Lawrence Police Officer Arrested for Assault With Dangerous Weapon

Conway Confined to Lawrence Hospital—His Condition is Not Serious

early this morning. His condition is not regarded as serious. Special Officer Lynch was placed under arrest by Inspectors Patrick Morrissey and Charles Woodcock of the Lawrence department, this forenoon and held on a charge of assault with a dangerous weapon.

Two sons of Officer Lynch, Neal and

William, aged about 20 and 22 years, have been questioned concerning the affair and Inspectors Morrissey and Woodcock are in this city today questioning two business men, officials of an automobile agency, whom it is alleged, were members of the party. Employees of this concern informed The Sun this noon that the agents in question were out of town, but on the return of Inspectors Morrissey and Woodcock to Lawrence, it was learned that they had interviewed Joseph Quinn and Lawrence Lawlor of the local Moon agency, in whose car Conway had been taken to the hospital.

According to the story told by these two men, they, with Officer Conway, had gone to Lawrence at about 1 o'clock last evening. There they met Special Officer Lynch and his two sons and visited at his home.

After staying there a considerable length of time, during which Inspector Morrissey says there was drinking, the Lowell men prepared to leave. Before leaving, however, the Lynch boys prevailed upon them to assist in putting Lynch to bed as he was intoxicated and acting belligerently. This they did and went out to their machine.

Officer Conway shot

Before they could get away, one of the Lynch boys came out and asked Officer Conway to return as the father had got out of bed again. Conway went in the house and a scuffle followed. Shots were heard and within a few moments Conway came out to the machine and said he had been shot.

Officer Conway was taken to the

Capias Issues for Arrest of John W. Watkins, Former Member of Federal Enforcement Squad Operating in This Vicinity, in Connection With Lawrence Case

On request of United States Commissioner Richard B. Walsh, a capias was issued today from the office of Assistant U. S. District Attorney William J. White, Jr., for the arrest of John W. Watkins of Somerville, a former member of the squad of federal enforcement agents headed by Walter H. Sullivan of this city.

Watkins was discharged from the federal organization several weeks ago, but was summoned to appear before Commissioner Walsh today in connection with the case of John E. McCarthy of Lawrence, charged with illegal sale. Watkins was the complaining officer and when he did not appear this forenoon in answer to the summons, the commissioner got into telephonic communication with District Attorney White and asked him to issue a capias for his arrest. McCarthy's case has been called several times for hearing before Commissioner Walsh, but postponed on each occasion because of the absence of Watkins. Today it was again called and postponed, but in the meantime search will be made for Watkins under the capias and he will be brought before the commissioner at McCarthy's hearing.

TWO GIRLS DIE IN AUTO CRASH

Train Ran Down Sedan on Crossing at East Bridge-water This Morning

Girls Were on Way to Work—One Instantly Killed, Other Died in Hospital

EAST BRIDGEWATER, June 27.—Miss Agnes Hennessey, Oregon street, was fatally injured and Miss Starline Silva, Spring street, Westdale, was instantly killed this morning at 6.45 on the Spring street crossing of the N.Y. N.H. & H.R.R. by the 6.30 a. m. train from Stanley Junction to Whitman.

The girls were passengers in a small sedan, which evidently tried to beat the train across the crossing. One girl was instantly killed, the other fatally hurt and the machine dragged 50 feet. Both were shoe workers, employed at Bridgewater and were on their way to work. Miss Hennessey died at the Brockton hospital at 8.30 o'clock.

The machine was driven by Manuel Viera, of East Bridgewater, the fiancé of Miss Silva. According to the police, he became confused and stalled his machine right in front of the onrushing locomotive.

WARM TRIBUTE TO JAS. M. COX

Delegates From Every State Join in Tribute to Party's Standard Bearer in 1920

Charge McAdoo Forces Seek to Start Balloting to Duck Klan Issue

Baker Places Cox in Nomination—Other Nominating Speeches

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, New York, June 27.—Pausing in the midst of the bitter contentions of its advocates of the hour, the democratic national convention united today in a colorful tribute to its fighting leadership of the past.

Colorful Tribute to Cox
While a band in a far gallery played "Should Auld Acquaintance Be Forgotten" delegates from every state stood on their chairs and cheered the name of James M. Cox of Ohio, the party's standard bearer in the desperate and disastrous battle of four years ago.

It was a personal tribute, unorganizational of the democracy for the aggressive fight of the former Ohio governor to stem the mighty republican tide of 1920.

More Nominating Speeches

Assembling for its fourth session, today, the convention engaged in clearing away the preliminaries to the big fight ahead. While the platform committee still struggled in secret session to find some agreement on planks covering the K.K.K. and League of Nations issues, the convention itself went in for hearing the remaining nominating speeches.

With ten candidates already placed in nomination at least, five more were on the waiting list today, and several seconding speeches also were on the program.

The order of business called for consideration of the platform as soon as the nominating speeches were considered, but the McAdoo forces were pressing to take a start on the balloting before the platform comes in. The combined forces opposed to the McAdoo movement declared that the McAdoo managers wanted to let their delegations get started on the balloting before they were compelled to take a position on the Ku Klux Klan issue in the fight over the platform.

The convention hall had been put to rights overnight, and the wreckage and rubbish of yesterday's riotous demonstrations had been cleared away.

There were outward evidences that the convention was clearing decks for action. Some rows of chairs which have been occupied hitherto by favored ones on the speaker's platform, were cleared away and the space was used for long tables for tally clerks and adding machines.

Resumption of Roll Call
Ten candidates had been placed formally before the convention prior

DISAFFECTION IN THE GREEK NAVY

LONDON, June 27.—The disaffection in the Greek navy reported in Athens yesterday is due to the suspension of some of the officers that the minister of marine, Admiral Hadjikiriki, has been guilty of favoritism in making some recent promotions, says the correspondent of the Morning Post. Eighty-one of the total of 110 higher officers demanded the removal of the minister and the reversal of the promotions, threatening otherwise to resign. Premier Papandreu is quoted as declaring this action tantamount to mutiny, for which the officers would be suitably punished.

MATRIMONIAL

Carville—Dade
A pretty June wedding took place Wednesday afternoon when Miss Emma Mae Dade, daughter of Mrs. Minnie Dade of 711 Pleasant street, Dracut, was united in marriage to Mr. John Carville of 115 A street, the ceremony being performed at St. Margaret's rectory at 5:30 o'clock by the pastor, Rev. Charles J. Gulligan. Mrs. Anna M. Myers of Claremont, N. H., a cousin of the bride, was matron of honor, and Mr. William Smith of Lowell was best man. The bride was dressed in gray tulle and was carried by two bridesmaids. The bridegroom's gift to the bride was a silver mesh bag and the bridegroom's gift to the best man, a pair of platinum cuff links. A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents after the ceremony and was attended by a large number of friends. After a wedding trip to New York, the couple will reside at 711 Pleasant street, Dracut Centre.

Dunn—Reardon
The wedding of Miss Catherine T. Reardon of 773 Broadway and Mr. George T. Dunn of Dunstable took place Monday morning at a nuptial mass in St. Patrick's church celebrated by Rev. Jeremiah M. Reardon of the Holy Trinity church. The bride, Miss Nora Shea, a cousin of the bride, was bridesmaid, and Mr. John Dunn, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. The bridegroom received a string of pearls from the bride, and the bridegroom's gift to his best man was a silver watch chain. After a wedding breakfast at the home of the bride's father, the couple left on an extended wedding trip, and will reside in Dunstable when they return.

Denio—Lawson
A pretty wedding took place Wednesday afternoon at 5:30 at the home of the Rev. Wallace C. Sampson, Sayles street, when Miss Ethel Lawson became the bride of Mr. Albert Denio. The bride was charmingly arrayed in a gown of white georgette and satin with the basque effect. Her veil had a coronet of orange blossoms and she carried a shower of bridal roses. She was attended by Miss Anna Denio, sister of the groom, who wore a dress of orchid crepe de chine with panels of cerise lace. Her maid was of Loxham straw trimmed with orchids and streamers. She carried a bouquet of Columbia roses. The bridegroom's attendant was Mr. Herbert Lawson, brother of the bride. Edmund Lawson, another brother, was chief usher. Following the ceremony a reception was tendered the bridal couple at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Lawson, 6 Puffer street. A buffet luncheon was served and a musical program rendered. The bride's gift to her attendant was a ring of green gold and that of the groom to his best man was also a ring. The couple left on an extended wedding trip and on their return will reside at 6 Puffer street.

N. H. INHERITANCE TAX UNCONSTITUTIONAL

CONCORD, N. H., June 27.—In a decision handed down late yesterday the supreme court of New Hampshire held the state inheritance tax as amended in 1919 and further amended in 1923 to be unconstitutional. The amendments had provided a graduated inheritance tax instead of the uniform rate of taxation formerly in effect.

The court ruled that inasmuch as the people had adopted an inheritance tax amendment to the state constitution in 1903, the inheritance tax law passed in 1905 and based on the amendment was constitutional. This law established the uniform rate of taxation.

The court further held that inasmuch as there was doubt in 1919 as to constitutionality of the amendments to the inheritance tax law passed in that year, the law of 1919 did not repeal that of 1905.

State officials last night were unwilling to discuss the effect of the supreme court decision on taxes already collected under the laws of 1919 and 1923. It was intimated, however, that on the theory that "the state can do no wrong," applicants for rebates would be compelled to have recourse to the courts.

FOREST FIRES BURNING OUT OF CONTROL
SAN FRANCISCO, June 27.—Four forest fires in California are burning out of control. The biggest is in Santa Clara county, 75 miles from San Francisco, where flames which have destroyed 125,000 acres of forest grazing land, are being blown eastward into Stanislaus county, and toward the rich farming land of the San Joaquin valley.

In the timbered mountains of Sierra and Plumas counties, close to Nevada, two more fires are roaring past the efforts at control lines. More than 1000 acres had been burned in Sierra county and the flames were still spreading at the last report. In Plumas county a new fire seven miles from Westwood was reported developing headway which threatened an immense acreage of commercial timber.

Other forest fires which have called forth hundreds of fire fighters since last Sunday in half a dozen parts of the state were reported controlled last night.

APOLOGY FROM CHIEF OF YOKOHAMA CUSTOMS

YOKOHAMA, June 27.—(By the Associated Press) The chief of Yokohama customs force has apologized to the United States consul, Kemper, for the discourteous treatment to which American passengers of the President Madison were subjected by members of his staff. Some of the American passengers of the President Madison were forced to undergo an unusually rigorous examination when the vessel arrived here June 24. Superior officers intervened and apologized to the passengers. Since that incident American passengers arriving here have been treated most courteously.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

(By the Theatres' Own Press Agents)

RIALTO THEATRE

When William Fox produced a motion picture version of "The Shadow of the East" he did it as thoroughly and as effectively as we believe was possible. The finished work was shown for the first time yesterday at the Rialto theatre and it delighted the capacity audiences at both matinee and evening performances.

The successor to "The Sheikh" also from the pen of E. M. Hull, is a pulsating, throbbing, colorful tale of the east and west, particularly the east. It concerns an English peer who has entered into an Indian marriage with a native girl, who kills herself when she believes that his love is waning. This shadow casts itself over the Englishman's life to the extent that when he meets the girl of his own race whom he loves, it nearly wrecks his life and hers.

Frank Mayo as the Earl of Craven, Mildred Harris as the girl, and Evelyn Brent as Loina, the Indian bride, do excellent work. Norman Kerry as Said, the sheik, who is also in love with the English girl, but who, contrary to the habits of the sons of the desert, steps aside in favor of his friend, Craven, gives his usual excellent performance.

The added feature is quite a novelty. The title of it is "Ten After Ten," and the star is Charles Hutchinson, who is universally known as the Serial King. "Ten After Ten" originally was a 15-episode serial, "The Great Gambic." The "meat" has been taken from it and it has been condensed to a thrilling five-reel picture. Don't miss it.

An Our Gang comedy, entitled "Young Sherlocks," and a new Fox News conclude this most satisfactory program.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

The past week has once more justified the patrons of this popular playhouse its popularity. The building with this week-end, to those who have not seen it, offers an opportunity seldom at hand—to see and enjoy a real triple feature bill. The William Fox super film, "The Eleventh Hour," is the climax of the art in melodrama production, and its casting shows a discrimination in the assignment of characters which deserves the highest compliment. There is on the same bill a problem play—"Marriage Morals"—and the subject of dual standards for man and woman has never been more ably adapted. The story is one of both humor and pathos, and is full of tense situations. Then, for the third feature, William Rogers, comedian par excellence, takes the leading part in "Don't Park Here," giving to the program all the elements of an evening's profitable amusement which can be assembled.

KLAN FIGHT AT D. A. V. CONVENTION

SALT LAKE CITY, June 27.—Twice within a few minutes, disabled American veterans of the World-war, in national convention here, yesterday fought off incomplete motions that the delegates go on record as opposing the K.K.K.

Edward A. Byrne, of St. Louis, first to offer a motion, was cut off in a flash by National Commander James A. McFarland, and ruled out of order, but not before the name of the invisible empire had been loosed in the convention hall. Commander McFarland was sustained by a rising vote.

"Our Constitution states that the D.A.V. will not take part in any political or religious discussion," he said. "You are therefore out of order, and I ask this convention to uphold me in this ruling."

It was two or three minutes later that the second attempt for a like motion was made and as quickly interrupted.

At today's session the fight to se-

Last Saturday quite a number of the young people of Lowell went to Manchester, N. H., where they took part in the young people's demonstration held there in connection with the convention held in that city. The service will be at 8 o'clock and every one is cordially invited.

EDITOR WHO ATTACKED SMITH IS KLANSMAN

NEW YORK, June 27.—Louis Fowler, editor of the magazine American Standard, who was arrested with his son, Louis Fowler, Jr., on charges of criminal libel, based on an attack against Gov. Smith published in the magazine, is a member of the Ku Klux Klan, according to a statement made in magistrate's court by acting Captain Gegan of the New York police bomb squad. Fowler and his son are being held in $1000 bail for trial in the court of special sessions.

The elder Fowler testified that he did not see the article complained of until after it had been published. His son is a college student at Greenville, S. C. Jacob Alschuler, the complainant, testified that Fowler, Jr., had sold him a copy of the magazine outside Madison Square Garden. Alschuler testified that he made the complaint because the magazine contained libelous attacks on Gov. Smith, the Jews and the Roman Catholic church.

LAWN PARTY A SUCCESS

Commodore Ballroom Scene
of Happy Event by St.

Margaret's Parish

The annual lawn party of St. Margaret's parish, which opened yesterday, was brought to a most successful conclusion at the Commodore ballroom last evening. The children completed their revue at 9.30 after which general dancing was enjoyed until midnight. The various booths along the promenade were well patronized during the evening, particularly the candy wheel, presided over by James Delgann.

The party was under the general supervision of Rev. Charles J. Galligan, assisted by Rev. Andrew P. O'Brien and Rev. Leo A. O'Day.

The drawing for the ten-piece dining room set was deferred to await complete returns of books. Just as soon as all are in the award will be made.

GOV. ALBERT C. RITCHIE, OF MARYLAND

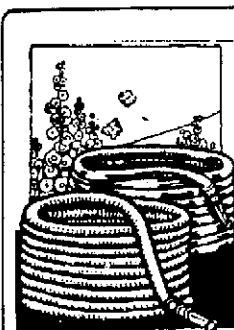

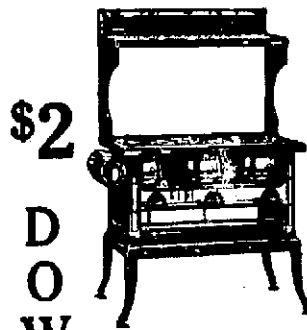

GOV. GEORGE S. SILZER, OF NEW JERSEY

Alexander Says: Warm Up Seriously
—Don't Try for Strike-Out Record

BY GROVER C. ALEXANDER
Famous Pitcher, Chicago Cubs
The successful pitcher combines the head with the arm.
The pitcher who has every natural ability, but doesn't use his head, can't hope to get very far.
The great batters are constantly trying to outmaneuver the pitcher. The only weapon the pitcher has is to play their game, try to outguess them.
The pitcher with the good arm should seek to conserve it. In the spring he should gradually work it into shape. Go slow on spring enthusiasm, save the old arm for the warm weather.
Once the arm is in shape, it is up to the pitcher to try to keep it that way by giving it every attention.
The wise pitcher conserves his strength always (tries to have something in reserve). He doesn't put all his stuff on every ball pitched. Such a system soon wears him out. Rather, he works hardest in the pinch, only.
Never Too Old to Learn
Say little but listen and see much, is my choice bit of advice to every pitcher, regardless of whether he is only an amateur, a promising minor leaguer, or a star in the big show.
Always listen to advice from an older pitcher. One can always learn something about the art of pitching. I find it so each year.
I feel that my greatest asset as a pitcher is control. What success I have had in baseball I attribute more to that one thing than all others combined.
Every pitcher should work for control. No matter how much stuff a pitcher may have it avails him nothing if he can't get the ball over.
The greatest mistake most pitchers make in warming up. With many pitchers it is merely playing catch, the loosening up of the muscles. No effort.

You Can Do It Better With Gas

In New York

BY STEPHEN HANNAGAN.

NEW YORK, June 27.—The democratic national convention, with the

Warms Against Doping Stomach With Artificial Digestants

Most people who suffer, either occasionally or chronically from gas, sourness and indigestion, have now discovered that the use of harmless, patent foods and the use of harmful drugs, stomach tonics, medicine and artificial digestants, and instead, following the advice of an official in these columns, take a teaspoonful or two of tablets of Bisurated Magnesia in a little water after meals with the result that their stomach no longer troubles them, they are able to eat as they please and they enjoy much better health. Those who use Bisurated Magnesia never dread the approach of meal time because they know this wonderful anti-acid and food corrective which can be obtained from any good drug store, will instantly neutralize the stomach acidity, sweeten the stomach, prevent food fermentation, and without the slightest pain or discomfort. Try this plan yourself, but be certain to get pure Bisurated Magnesia especially prepared for stomach use.—Adv.

On the streets, in the subways, on surface and elevated cars there was no noticeable jam—no more than the everyday rush-hour maelstrom.

True, in the hotels, there was an added rush and the lobbies were unusually well packed with human beings—but a convention of shoe-string salesmen always does as much. Filtrations old Fifth avenue, which was the Avenue of States for the convention parade, is often as gaily bedecked for the frequent gigantic parades in which New York takes little interest, unless halted in a traffic maelstrom caused by the parade.

Had it not been for the screaming newspaper headlines the democrats would have come and gone as noiselessly as a buyer for a mid-west department store.

During all conventions in New York there is noticeable increase in attendance at points of alleged public interest—art galleries, museums, Coney Island, the Statue of Liberty, the Woolworth building, the Aquarium and other places. New Yorkers seldom visit these places which are of so much interest to visitors. They follow the beaten path—much as you follow a routine in your city. There are few adventures here.

When I first came to New York, a few years ago, one of its ardent champions piloted me about.

"You can't see anything like this in Indianapolis," he would say.

MANY COTTON SPINDLES WERE IDLE IN MAY

(Special to The Sun) WASHINGTON, June 27.—Nearly one-third of the cotton spindles in New England were at a standstill during the month of May, according to a report made public here today by the department of commerce. Of the 18,702,018 spindles in place throughout the New England states, only 13,007,169 of them were operated in that month. In actual figures there were 5,615,847 spindles not used.

While the report indicates that the so-called cotton growing states in the south have 1,638,186 spindles less than New England, the number of spindles operated in that section in May exceeded those operated in New England by 1,607,132.

A gradual decrease in cotton spinning throughout the country is evidenced by the 30,498,165 spindles in operation in May, 1924, as compared with 35,374,018 in May, 1923; 34,044,870 in December, 1923; 33,339,806 in January, 1924; 32,782,786 in February; 32,796,645 in March; and 31,871,565 in April.

New England averaged 102 working hours per spindle, while the cotton growing states averaged 219. Of the 11,897,819 spindles in place in Massachusetts, only 7,835,594 operated in May. The Bay State has by far the greatest number of spindles in place, North Carolina being second in rank with 5,817,724. Through the operation of 5,323,775 spindles North Carolina made a record of 1,224,022,486 spindle hours as compared with 1,122,917,398 in the Bay State and 210 in North Carolina.

Rhode Island operated 1,999,333 spindles in the month, at an average of 114 hours each, or a total of 228,078,696 working hours. The report shows there are 2,798,398 spindles in place in that state.

Connecticut exceeds all the New England states in the average number of hours per spindle—145, as against 114 in Rhode Island, 114 in Maine, 94 in New Hampshire and 95 in Massachusetts. With 186,520,440 working hours in cotton spinning during May, she is exceeded only by Massachusetts and Rhode Island, while in number of spindles in place she ranks fourth, with 1,284,885, and in spindles operated in May, third, with 1,157,982.

Of the 1,448,406 spindles in place in New Hampshire, but 922,741 were operated last month, giving that state 136,806,512 working hours to its credit. Third among the New England states in number of spindles in place, New Hampshire ranks fifth in operation of spindles and working hours.

Maine, with 1,146,720 spindles in place, has the least number of any New England state, but with 1,050,188 in action last month that state ranks fourth in operation of spindles as well as in number of working hours—130,796,645.

THE WASHINGTON CLUB

Annual Outing Yesterday at Martin Luther Grounds
Was Big Success

From every angle the annual outing of the Washington club at the Martin Luther grounds yesterday was a complete success. Approximately 100 members of the organization attended and all joined in the informal program of sports and contests arranged by the committee. Twenty automobiles carried the majority of the members to the grounds at 12:30 o'clock, although others came later in the afternoon to swell the number. Luncheon was ready upon arrival and then followed a baseball game between married and unmarried men which necessitated the careful and constant supervision of three umpires. If a score was kept on one bothered very much with it, although both teams put in strong claims for supremacy. The "unmarried" team had on its roster Jack Powers, Aubin Belanger, Jack Hogan, John Farrington, Ed. Duffy, John W. King, George King, John Adams and John Hanlon. Dr. Ray Gendreau was in a utility role. The "married" team drafted the following nine men: Daniel McQuade, Frank McCarlin, Frank McNeil, Fred Bechard, Tom Duffy, Eddie Brennan, Charles Dancause, Bill Farrell and Dr. Fred Morris. The busy umpers were Elias McQuade, Dr. Kearney, Ted Coffey and James Mulvaney. They drew a cheer when they called the game a draw. The 100-yard dash was won by Tom Duffy, with Frank McCarlin, second. P. W. Cox won the race for fat men and the three-legged race went to the team of Adams and Coffey. In a golf ball driving contest, Fred H. Bourke walloped one 250-odd yards for first prize, with John Farrington second. Much interest was shown in the wrestling match between "Mike" Markham and Jack Hogan, with the former having a shade over his adversary, particularly as they struggled with Mike's back to the sun. After the program of sports the party adjourned to the pine grove to enjoy a roast beef dinner. The home-ward trip was made during the early evening.

SYD CHAPLIN HANGS

N.E.A. Service Writer
HOLLYWOOD, June 27.—Hizarré mood and strange impulse lurk just under the surface of the Chaplin brothers, Charlie and Syd. Charlie's idiosyncrasies are the better known. Syd's are no less arresting. The elder brother, who preceded Charlie to the London comedy stage and has had a distinguished career, is more direct and self-revealing, but prying interviewers have not probed him so much as Charlie in the later years. Recent screen triumphs have, however, stimulated curiosity about Syd Chaplin. Within a few minutes after introduction he made a startling confession, exposing the fantastic incongruity of the clown. "For years," he said, "I contemplated suicide almost daily. It wasn't that I was fed up with life—just that the thought of self-destruction had odd fascination for me. Nor did fear of death deter me from carrying it out. It seems now in retrospect that this was merely the challenge to ultimate adventure. And adventure has always been a passion with me."

"I used constantly to carry a vial with poison enough to kill 10 men," he said during somber moods. But one day crossing the Thames bridge the sun and life seemed unusually bright—so I flung it into the river. I had acquired a philosophy and no longer needed the queer comfort and irritation of the deadly vial."

Syd Chaplin is playing in pictures for money, not for fame—to give him means for leisure to indulge the adventure hanker. He has the desire to annex two men of similar taste and reckless mood and, under the proposed name of "The Three Musketeers," to go about the world soliciting perilous missions and attacking mysteries. He contemplates this with boyish enthusiasm. Movies—they are but a mere means to an end. "One thing only I dread," admitted Syd. "Old age. Physical activity is such delight to me. Even my philosophy won't work when I think of the encroaching years. I suppose I carry this thought around

He volunteered the wholly unorthodox view, from the picture industry, that movies help incite criminal impulse.

"Any agency that makes people dissatisfied with their old status, that prompts them to seek new places, new objectives, that stimulates ambitions or emulation—this has its reflection in accompanying crime. And certainly the motion picture is such an agency. Not in the sense, however, that censorship considers it pernicious."

Syd glanced through his home windows at the synthetic snow mountains of brother Charlie's new picture of Alaska on the adjoining lot. "Charlie's a little low," he commented. "Always is after he completes a film. What he needs is a lot of jokers around to cheer him up. You know we're both given to spells of melancholy."

Funny birds, these Chaplin brothers!

THREE AUTOMOBILES IN COLLISION HERE

Three automobiles were in collision in Central street near the corner of Hurd street at 11:30 a. m. today, with resulting damages of some extent to each machine. Two cars, a touring car owned by Nathan C. Friedman of 118 Grand street and a one-ton truck owned by Ingham & Mills, Boston road, No. Billerica, were parked near the curb. A Ford touring car, the ownership of which could not be learned, crashed into the rear of the truck which in turn was pushed into the rear of the Friedman machine. Most of the damage was to the front part of the Ford touring car, whose hood cover was ripped off and lights and windshield broken. Two passengers in the touring car were uninjured.

LIQUOR CASES BEFORE U. S. COMMISSIONER

James J. Kennedy, Edward Cunningham and Daniel A. Whalen, arrested by federal enforcement agents during a raid in a near-by saloon at Bridge and French streets Wednesday evening, appeared before U. S. Commissioner R. B. Walsh at the Gorham street courthouse today and were granted a continuance until July 23. Each furnished surety in the sum of $500 for appearance at that time.

Georgiana Arbour, said to be the owner of Violet cottage, County road, Lakeview, was summoned before the commissioner in connection with a raid made by federal officers Wednesday night, when, it is alleged, two pints of intoxicating liquor were seized, but did not appear because of illness. Her case was continued until July 11.

AUTOMOBILE FOR SUPT. OF CHARITIES

Purchasing Agent Edward J. Donnelly said today that he would reserve decision for a few days before awarding the contract for supplying a five-passenger sedan for the use of the superintendent of charities. Bids opened yesterday were from the S. H. C. Motor Sales Co., offering a Dori for $1255; Thomas B. Butler, offering a Humphreys at $1585; and the Lowell Motor Mart, Inc., offering a Series B, Dodge-Bronx, at $1305 and a Series A, Dodge-Bronx, at $1505, equipped or $1585.15 equipped with extras.

"The Lowell Motor Mart is low bidder," said Mr. Donnelly. "The bid of the S. H. C. Company will not be considered as, the call and specifications stated a four-cylinder car is desired and they bid on a six-cylinder car. I will not make any award for a few days."

The purchasing agent has advertised for bids on three triple combination pumping engines and one combined ladder truck and tractor for the fire department.

COMPLETE PLATFORM MAY NOT BE READY UNTIL LATE TODAY

Committee in Accord on All Planks Except Klan and League—Divergence of Opinion on These Problems Has Defied More Than 20 Hours of Deliberation

NEW YORK, June 27.—The Ku Klux Klan and the League of Nations remained today the only stumbling blocks in the way of an agreement among the democratic platform builders.

On all other planks, including even those dealing with prohibition, agriculture and transportation, the platform committee of the democratic national convention was in accord. On the Klan and league, however, the divergence of opinion had defied more than 20 hours of deliberation in sub-committees and many more hours of argument last night in the entire committee.

Republican Corruption

The platform committee tolled over the party declarations until nearly 2:30 o'clock this morning before giving up the effort to complete its work. It finally adjourned, however, until 2 p. m., today, after instructing the drafting committee to meet at noon for another attempt to reach agreement on the Klan and League issues.

Thirty-five or more planks had been put into place when the committee adjourned and little difficulty was encountered until the Klan and League hurdles were reached.

The first and principal plank, as reported by the sub-committee and approved, deals with republican "inefficiency and corruption," charging the present administration with failure to impeach and stop "the senseless investigations. Reference is made specifically to the Teapot Dome, Daugherty, and Veterans' Bureau investigations and to the charges against republican members of congress which followed the Chicago grand jury inquiry into the veterans' bureau case.

Relief of Agriculture

For relief of agriculture, the committee would pledge the party to foster creation of national co-operative marketing associations and a corporation or commission to increase exports of farm products; to take steps to bring agriculture to a parity with other industries; to seek reduction of transportation costs on products through development of inland waterways, and to move for revision of the tariff and water transportation rates. It also calls for an international policy of co-operation designed to revive American exports to Europe asserting that republican policy has had an opposite effect by retarding economic rehabilitation.

Law Enforcement Plank

The sub-committee's law enforcement declaration was revised by the committee to make the pledge apply specifically to prohibition. It also assails the republican administration's enforcement record, but avoids definite

GOV. DAVIS NAMED BY CONG. AYRES

NEW YORK, June 25.—Jonathan M. Davis, governor of Kansas, was placed in nomination for president at the democratic national convention today as "a fair representative in its truest sense of the progressive west," and as a "forcible executive who would inspire the confidence of congress in his leadership."

Representative William A. Ayres of Virginia spoke for Kansas by formally placing his governor before the convention, and he asserted that the choice of the Sunflower State had demonstrated that he could carry his message to the nation as he had so successfully carried it to the people of his own state.

"People everywhere, but more especially in the mid-west and the great northwest, in the agricultural sections," Mr. Ayres said, "are demanding something more tangible than calling attention to the acts and noble deeds of the past. They are expecting something more than a platform of pledges. Performance was not to be accomplished by a forcible executive, who can inspire confidence in the legislative branch, who can impress the congress that he possesses the qualities of leadership and statesmanship, and who is able to understand the fact that he is the supreme leader and champion of all the people and not of a favored few.

"There is no use nor place in this nation for two reactionary political parties. One is enough. The platform of the conservative or reactionary party has been made and the nominees announced.

"It will be remembered the agriculturalist was requested during the war by the chief executive to supply the necessary foodstuffs. This he did ungrudgingly and patriotically, which accounts in a large measure for his disability at this time. He was given a 10 per cent plus contract, and he was not guaranteed by his government a 5 1/2 to 6 per cent return on his investment. He was not financed by the government in his enterprise of furnishing food and by reason of this he is at this time suffering a disability. Therefore, no doubt, he was thrilled when he saw that wonderful constructive plank of the republican platform which pledges a continuing and increasing solidarity for all suffering any disability as a result of service to this nation in time of war.

"I said a few months ago, the people are demanding a forcible executive, who can and will inspire confidence in congress of the means of this country, who is right on all questions affecting the masses; a progressive democrat in the truest meaning of the word progressive.

"He is a fair representative in its truest sense of the progressive west. He is a farmer, a real farmer, who has been chosen as the governor of one of the greatest commonwealths of the union. In that position he has demonstrated his ability, honesty and courage. He is capable of carrying his message to the people of the entire nation as he did to the people of his own state. He is not only a fa-mention of the 18th amendment and the Volstead act.

Other planks approved by the committee favor:

Readjustment of rail tariff schedules; abolition of the railroad labor board and repeal of the rate section of the transportation act.

Further reduction of federal taxes. Revision of the Fordney-McCumber tariff law.

Edmond H. Moore, national committeeman from Ohio, charged today that the McAdoo forces were attempting to delay the report of the platform committee in order, if possible, to try to have their candidates nominated for the presidency before the adoption of a platform. Moore declared that if successful in nomination, McAdoo would then be in a strong position to dictate the platform.

Moore and his friends promised to wage a desperate battle on the floor of the convention today if an attempt is made to begin balloting before the adoption of the platform.

Moore said, but a native son of the great Sunflower State of Kansas.

"My fellow delegates, you are asked to select our standard-bearer from the busy, bustling commercial center of the east. And you are asked to make such selection from the golden west and again from the sunny south. I ask you to come where the west begins."

SEN. FERRIS PLACED IN NOMINATION

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, N. Y., June 26.—Senator Woodbridge Ferris of Michigan was placed in nomination for the presidency by A. M. Cummins of Lansing. Denouncing Newberryism and declaring the need of the time was the fact that you are asked to make such selection from the golden west and again from the sunny south. I ask you to come where the west begins."

Mr. Cummins offered the name of the Michigan senator.

Warm Tribute to Ex-Gov. Cox

to resumption of the roll call for nominations today, and it had been made known that the remaining 24 or so delegates had at least five names in order, with seconding speeches also in order. The big, prearranged, deafening demonstrations were over, however, and today's session, set for 10:30 a. m., eastern daylight saving time, offered in this respect sharp contrast and a measure of rest.

The formal program for today made provision for nomination of delegates and previous selections for the new national committee and for taking up the platform, but when the delegates assembled, there was little prospect of a report from the platform committee until late in the day, if then. The drafting sub-committee had been ordered to try once more to reach an agreement on the Ku Klux Klan and League of Nations planks, and the platform committee as a whole was not called to receive its report until 2 o'clock.

Candidates Named Yesterday

The candidates formally in nomination when the convention assembled today included:

William G. McAdoo of California.

Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York.

Senator Underwood of Alabama.

Senator Robinson of Arkansas.

Senator Ralston of Indiana.

Former Senator Willard Saulsbury of Delaware.

Gov. Jonathan Davis of Kansas.

Gov. Ritchie of Maryland.

Former Secretary Houston.

Senator Ferris of Michigan.

Managers of the various contending camps had reached a degree of unanimity on one point at least, this morning: They were all willing to say they were pleased with how things went their way yesterday.

Otherwise, though all seemed to be working a little harder, their unanimity in this respect was disrupted by their adherence to the variety of methods they have maintained.

Victory for Smith Forces

The Smith workers pointed to yesterday's adjournment until today as a victory in the first test of strength with the McAdoo forces, which had forced a night session to finish the nominations. The McAdoo managers, at the same time expressed gratification over the same vote—553 to 513 1/2—on the ground that it gave the convention an indication of their candidate's strength.

Others, meanwhile, saw in the vote a certain amount of thoroughly human weariness, pointing out that many of the delegates who had no intense interest in either McAdoo or Smith, wanted some amusement, or sleep, and were far from willing to go into a night session, after a seven hour meeting by daylight.

Rain Fatters Garden

Rain had begun to fall when the assembling hour approached, and the delegates came trooping in, many of them in a somewhat dampened condition.

Madison Square Garden roof, which is somewhat like the historic roof of the Arkansas traveler's house, soon let them in this hall know that it was raining. Pretty soon the rain drove them were trickling down through the decorations hung among the girders overhead and spraying the audience on the floor.

The admission to the floor yesterday of hundreds of persons having no delegate badge and no other business in the convention except to make noise for Smith, had caused a great deal of protest to the convention managers. Today somebody made a gesture at least, of tightening up on admissions to the floor.

"Bouncer" at Entrance

It had the effect as usual, of making it difficult for everybody who had business there and easy for everybody who didn't. A hard boiled bouncer stationed at the entrance to the platform chased out several national committeemen and other dignitaries before he acquired some sense of discrimination.

Five minutes after the hour set for starting business there were still many rows of empty seats in the galleries and probably not one-fifth of the delegates were in their places on the floor. The band leader apparently had found a new repertoire over night and went in for the classical.

Chairman Walsh evidently expected something formal today, for he reappeared in the morning dress he wore when he first took the stage, discarding the white flannel trousers and blue coat in which he appeared yesterday.

Meantime, Senator Pat Harrison, temporary chairman, and several McAdoo men, including Bruce Kremer of Montana, had their heads together in conference on the platform. Chairman Walsh chatted with the clergyman who had been invited to deliver the opening prayer.

Half an hour after the convention was supposed to be in order doing business, delegate spaces still had many empty seats but the aisles were jammed with crowds of people talking and looking there.

In the crowded conversations going on in the aisles and on the platform, the McAdoo leaders were sending out word to drive the business ahead at full speed and force the convention to start balloting. The Smith people were sending out their scouts seeking strength for the first ballot. There were flying reports that this delegation or that delegation was going to vote for Smith on the first ballot. Such reports always are common in every convention and never are safe until the ballots actually are cast.

Sen. Walsh Confers With Chairman

Senator Walsh of Massachusetts, a member of the sub-committee working on the platform, had a conference with Senator Walsh, presumably giving the low-down on the situation.

At 20 minutes to 12, Chairman Walsh began whacking for order but he whacked carefully, having whacked the heads off two gavel yesterday.

BAKER URGES ANOTHER CHANCE FOR COX

NEW YORK, June 26.—Declaring that former Governor James M. Cox of Ohio "became a national figure at that moment in 1920 when only a few had the vision to see, or the courage to follow, the new faith—the new political religion of Woodrow Wilson," Newton D. Baker, secretary of war in President Wilson's cabinet, today again played Cox's name in nomination for the presidency before the democratic national convention.

"Without hesitation or wavering, he fought the long 1920 campaign, debating without doubt, appealing to our higher emotions, battling back the tide of ill-will, rising out of the chaos of the world, finally included us with the peoples of Europe as the children of despair," Mr. Baker told the convention.

"Since that campaign, this dedication to the cause has remained complete," Mr. Baker said. "He has devoted the intervening years to serious study in the old world and this. He has sought for those reasons, historic, traditional, permanent or temporary, which brought about our act of disavowal at the moment of our might. With pen and voice, with growing power of enthusiasm and of knowledge he has, as a private citizen, sought to inspire us to better and higher thinking. And justice and were deserving prizes. Thus Ohio feels that her son, once only her favorite, has become the nation's favorite."

"In her name, I present to you Ohio's three-time governor, her successful executive, her constructive leader, her son who bore the banner of our principles bravely and blamelessly in a national contest, her son who has had the vision to see where America's opportunity now is and has the courage and capacity to lead us to that realization."

"I present to you the name of James M. Cox."

"For three terms as her governor, this son of Ohio demonstrated his capacity as an executive. Without turmoil or confusion, the business of a great state was dispatched. He was our war governor. Under his eager, patriotic leadership the people of Ohio gave their quota in men and money to the nation's effort and sustained the national cause with sacrificial fervor. The constitution of the state was re-modeled under his leadership, engraving modern and liberal principles and political agencies in response to new conditions. A great body of wholesome legislation was enacted by his cooperation with legislatures not always of his own political faith, until, in many of those new problems, which have come with increasing congestion and the development of an industrial society, men search the Ohio statute books for the laws which he caused to be enacted as examples of sane solutions which, in practice, have proved wholesome and helpful."

"The past is safe with Washington, Lincoln and Wilson. The challenge lies in the future—the immediate future. Our task is to search out the opportunity, state the cause and choose a leader. The leader must fit the cause."

Nationalistic aspirations have been nursed as promising possible relief from intolerable hardship or as the only safe defense against aggression. European cynics and reactionaries have conjured, as they have for centuries conjured, with the fears and miseries of peoples and counseled that imperative armed readiness which all history touches as apt to be provocative of the very disaster which it pretends to avert.

"On the other hand, even in such a world, the first great experiment in international co-operation has been making and succeeding. The league of nations has gathered to it the great liberals of the old world. It has yielded nothing to force. It has defied skepticism and dared to believe, as liberals always believe, in the power of good-will. It has fought disease and vice, lifted Austria and Hungary back into the possibility of orderly national life, repatriated the war prisoners, established a world court, prevented four wars and stopped one, set on foot the only promising plan of disarmament yet devised, and never moved a single soldier."

"Between these two sets of forces the conflict is on. There the battle rages now. Throughout the world the forces of militarism and imperialism are arrayed against the forces of liberalism. Within the next four years one or the other of these philosophies will prevail—and which we are probably determining here today."

The present administration has transferred our sympathy in this contest to the wrong side. Under the inspired guidance of Woodrow Wilson, America won the faith of the world to submit understanding for misunderstanding, to foresee and prevent causes of hostility, and by engaging together in great constructive work for the common good, to build up an asset of good will which, in the hour of crisis, would enable the conscience of the world to compose threatened conflict."

VAN NUYS PRESENTS NAME OF RALSTON

NEW YORK, June 26.—Fred Van Nuys of Indianapolis, today placed Samuel M. Ralston in nomination for the presidency.

Van Nuys emphasized Ralston's ability as a vote-getter, and his record for economy while governor of Indiana, particularly. Had he been president in recent months, Van Nuys said, he would not have been "reticent and silent," but would have been a man of action.

"On behalf of the united and loyal democracy of Indiana, I desire to place in nomination for the presidency the name of a man who is both available and dependable in this hour of necessity," he said.

"On behalf of the nation which hangs expectantly upon the results of this convention, we present the name of Samuel M. Ralston of Indiana for the presidency."

NAME OF GOV. RITCHIE BEFORE CONVENTION

NEW YORK, June 26.—The name of Albert C. Ritchie, governor of Maryland, was placed before the convention by Howard Bruce of that state, who declared the Maryland governor was "the foremost champion of the doctrine of less paternalistic, bureaucratic government in Washington and more freedom of the several states to regulate their affairs."

"Maryland offers you the name of a political leader of the kind that this party and this country sorely needs," he said.

Convention Notabilities

Portions of Convention Recorded When Phonograph Was Linked With Radio

KANSAS CITY, June 27.—Portions of the proceedings of the democratic national convention were recorded for all time here yesterday when the phonograph was successfully linked with radio.

A few seconds after a radio receiving set in the Warner recording laboratory brought in the convention proceedings, they were reproduced clearly on a phonograph.

Officials of the laboratories said the experiment constituted the first successful attempt to make clear phonographic records by the transference of radio sound vibrations onto wax discs.

The reproduction of the radio transmission was made possible by means of an amplification device, constructed on the principle of a loud speaker and connected to the phonograph recording device. J. J. Warner, superintendent of the laboratories, explained. The same hook up has been used in experiments in making tiny disc records for the Unity School of Christianity.

Mr. Warner declared the test was another step in radio reception as well as in phonography, making possible the recording of radio programs. The experimenter plans to mail to certain speakers at the democratic convention, tiny disc records of their utterances.

several days with the New Hampshire plaything boom of Governor Brown, showed its swing to Smith with its banner, surrounded by practically all of the Green mountain delegates, joined the three other New England states at the head of the New York delegation.

Cake Walk Around Garden

Then around the garden in a wildly exciting cake walk went the dozen delegation banners. The East Side "Newbies" and the "Bowery Kids," boys and girls together, who had featured the star Smith day pageant earlier in the season, joined in the gathering, were off on another New York free-for-all.

And General Cole was being lionized all the while, not only by the Massachusetts delegation, but also by Smith men from all parts of the country. Stepping from the platform to his place with his state delegation, he was slapped, patted and hugged by enthusiastic supporters of Gov. Smith.

McAdoo Men Angry

That last Smith demonstration, started by the recording speech of the man himself, his humane instincts and characteristics, declared Gen. Cole in his opening. "He must be a man whose public and private life is as clean as a hound's tooth."

"He must have magnanimity, exceptional executive ability, independence, courage and a progressive record in public office. He must be able to attract independent voters. But above all, he must have human sympathy and the confidence of the plain people of this country."

"He must have the acute perception to detect corruption in public life and the Spartan courage to at once proceed against the corruptionists."

"And finally, he must have the voting strength to carry the doubtful states, based not on what we hope or think he may do, but upon actual accomplishments."

"Such a leader is the candidate whose nomination I am about to second."

Friend of Service Men

"His record is an open book, praised alike by republicans as well as democrats. His position on every public question is known. He never dodges. He never equivocates. We service men know him as our sincere friend."

"The people know him and love him. The rise of this boy of the tenements is the most appealing story of our generation. His career is a shining example, a hope and an inspiration to every child of America."

"A great citizen, a great governor, a great democrat, he is the most remarkable character in political life in America today."

"His nomination spells success. He will carry New York, New Jersey, Connecticut, New Hampshire, and even beat Calvin Coolidge in his home state of Massachusetts."

"He has the idealism of a Wilson, the dash and magnetism of a Roosevelt, the splendid courage of a Cleveland, the political knowledge of a Jackson, with the heart and sympathy of a Lincoln."

"Carrying out the orders given to me by the democratic voters in a state-wide primary, in the name of Massachusetts I second the nomination of Alfred E. Smith."

Bay State Starts Parade

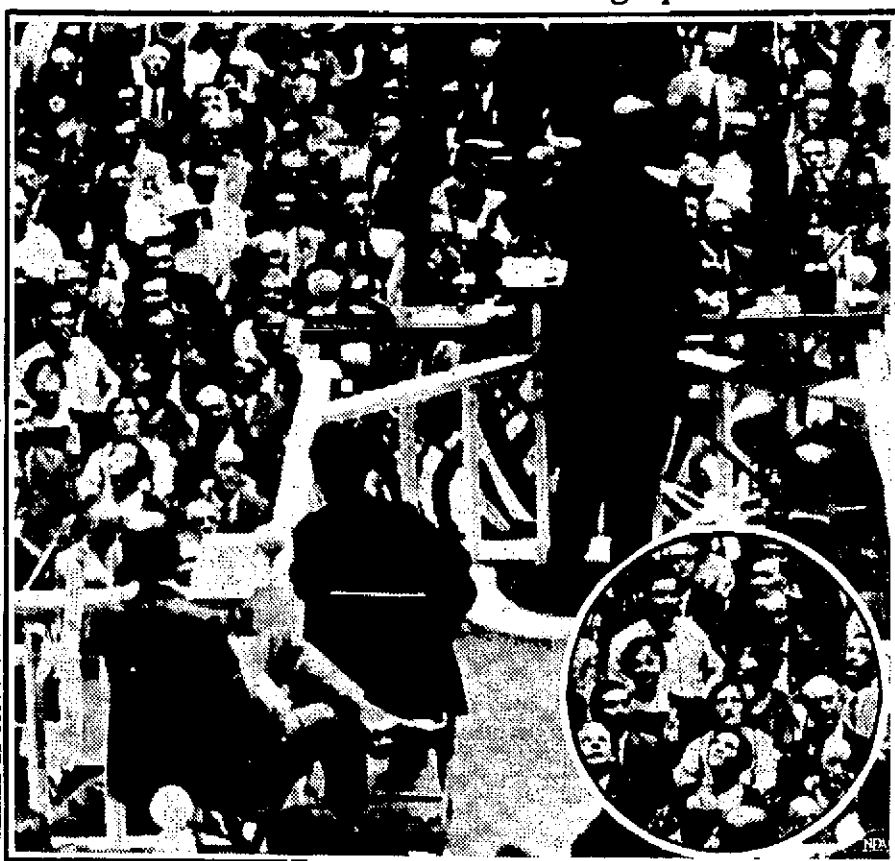

As he mentioned the name of his candidate the furore started. Despite the fact that the delegates had well nigh exhausted themselves physically demonstrating their love for Gov. Smith, the appeal of a New England Yankee, a veteran of the World War, fired them with renewed vigor.

The Massachusetts delegates started with Standard Bearer Jerry Watson in the lead. The state banner went across the hall and was placed high beside that of New York, where the Empire State delegation was seated. Then came in turn the standards of Connecticut, Rhode Island, New Jersey, Wisconsin, Illinois, Pennsylvania, Minnesota, Alaska and Hawaii.

Crowd Psychology of Convention

Revealed in Photograph and Story

This is a photograph of mental attitude. Occasionally motion pictures reveal thoughts of actors. Barely is a mental process caught in one photograph. Notice the attitude of the delegates assembled in the democratic convention hall at New York, specially the women in the inset group. The picture, taken in one of those frequent moments of apathy that come in a spirited gathering, shows that little attention is being paid to the speaker.

N.E.A. Service Writer
CONVENTION HALL, NEW YORK, June 26.—What is the attitude of a convention crowd toward the events transpiring before it?

Pretty much the same as that of any circus crowd.

A spellbinding keynoter may be hanging precariously upon a slender phrase—

He may be balancing ever so neatly on a thin wire of political policy—

Yet there are thousands gazing at the other rings and staves and commenting: "There's Mrs. So-and-So, funny barnstormer from Such-and-Such."

Or—"There go the big lights. They're going to take some pictures."

Or—"Look! There's Bill Bryan, up there! And Mack."

There seems to be little doubt about the roving eyes have it. If it were possible to draw direct lines from the tens of thousands of eyes the result would be a gigantic spider web design.

Only at moments of high emotionalism; only when excitement takes the floor and when crises are reached does there seem to be a centre of attention.

Otherwise attention roams about the great auditorium like the tiny page boy with the piping voice, lost in the clutter of noises.

After the emotional moments they settle back in their seats, restless as youngsters in a schoolroom after the exciting episode of the teacher sitting on a pin has passed.

The women, in particular, seem to crave excitement.

For many of them it is their first convention. And, like the small boy at a circus, they don't want to miss anything. They have been told that a convention is full of thrills. It is. But there are times when only the trained seals perform. Then is the period of necks craned at every angle and are.

But let the fringe of hysteria be touched and all eyes focus as directly as any camera lens.

It's an interesting study in psychology—these convention crowds; a psychology somewhere between that of a schoolroom, a sight-seeing wagon and a circus tent.

They all want the clowns to come on. They all wait expectantly to see what will happen to the boy who put over a wicked shot with the bean shooter.

SECURING ADMISSION TO NAVAL ACADEMY

The commander of the Boston district naval recruiting stations has issued the following statement, to prospective recruits concerning the opportunities of enlisted men securing admission to the naval academy at Annapolis:

"The United States government offers you, absolutely free of charge, a four-year university education at the U. S. Naval Academy at Annapolis, Maryland. This offer is made through the navy department and is in accordance with legislation enacted by congress which permits the appointment to Annapolis, every year, of 100 enlisted men from the U. S. navy. Entrance to Annapolis, particularly from the ranks of the navy, is not hard. It is in fact quite easy because navy men who are high school graduates or who have completed three years in high school are eligible for the U. S. Naval Academy preparatory school. This school convenes December 1st and continues until the entrance examinations to Annapolis are held on April 1st.

"The sole purpose of the U. S. Naval Academy preparatory school is to prepare naval enlisted men for the entrance examinations for Annapolis. The pay of a midshipman at Annapolis is $320.00 a year. To this is added nearly $1.00 per day called a 'ration,' making an equivalent salary of over $1,000.00 per year. Part of this money is set aside as a graduation fund which permits each midshipman on graduation day to draw about $1,000.00 in cash.

"No social, racial or religious lines are permitted at Annapolis. Merit, and merit only, governs a man's career there. Former navy enlisted men have held some of the highest athletic and scholastic honors in the gift of the authorities and of their classmates.

"Those applicants who enlist before August 15th are eligible for the Annapolis class entering next June."

Chief R. R. Frederick, local recruiting officer, will be pleased to give any further information concerning the above at his office in the Fairburn building.

TIME SEEKERS GET OPERATOR'S GOAT

The day telephone operator at the Central fire station is up in arms over the number of telephone requests he has to answer daily for the correct time. "Honest," he said today, after answering 4 such calls in a period of two minutes, "they get my goat." If all the people in Lowell who do not own clocks call me for the time, I'll wager half of the homes in the city are not equipped with either clocks or watches."

On several occasions recently, the switchboard at the station has been blocked by such calls when men on duty at fires have tried to call in for additional equipment or supplies and considerable time was lost in getting the calls through. This is a critical situation for fire spreads rapidly and a few moments lost in getting equipment to the blaze may mean a conflagration.

Time signals are sounded on the bell alarm system at 8 a. m., 1 p. m. and 6 p. m. and persons desiring to set their clocks or watches should do so at one of these three times. And if persons must call the station for the time, they should be careful not to do so after a fire alarm is sounded and before the recall is struck.

AMERICAN HOUSE BLOCK

EXPLOSION IN FIREWORKS PLANT AT CANTON

CANTON, June 27.—With a roar that could be heard for miles, the mixing house of the American Fireworks Company's plant on Cedar street, exploded shortly before 5 o'clock last night with a few minutes after the 35 employees had quit work for the day. No one was injured.

The Canton fire department responded and made short work of the small fires that were set by burning embers hurled in all directions about the premises. The blast also tore a hole in the ground about 20 feet square. The fact that the building was mostly of steel construction is believed to have saved other structures from damage.

The mixing house contained a quantity of gun powder, sulphur and other materials used in making up fireworks. The damage is estimated at nearly $15,000. The plant consisted of 12 stone buildings and two steel structures, one of which was destroyed in the explosion.

MILWAUKEE, June 27.—"The luckiest man in baseball."

That's what Milwaukee fans call Otto Borchert, president of the local American Association team.

Not only has Borchert seen his team play with no rain interference but he has amassed a fortune in sales of players that cost little more than a song.

To wit: Denny Gearin, Boston Braves, cost $750, sold for $25,000.

EARLY RELEASE OF IRISH PRISONERS

DUBLIN, June 27.—Statements made today indicated the early release of the remaining political prisoners of the Free State government.

SANDWICHMEN HECKLE DELEGATES

Facetious comments on various platform issues were waved in the eyes of delegates to the democratic convention when a veritable gauntlet of sign bearers, in all sorts of garbs, had to be run by persons attending. Convention fans bore a pacifistic slogan, "Law, Not War." Pickets carried signs reading "Jaw, Not Law" and "Outlaw War" signed by the "Bunk Peace Prize." Another picket was made up to resemble Wm. Anderson, former anti-saloon league chief in New York, now in prison.

MRS. MILLER SECONDS SMITH'S NOMINATION

NEW YORK, June 26.—Gov. Smith was urged for the democratic presidential nomination as "one who has completely built his life upon the ten commandments and the teachings of our Lord and Master," by Mrs. Carroll Miller of Pennsylvania, in an address at the democratic national convention today, seconding the nomination of the New York executive.

"Because of his tenderness to his mother, of his devotion to his wife and children, of the consecration of his public life to the welfare of his fellow man, of his untarnished honesty and courage, I know this man to be one who has completely built his life upon the ten commandments and the teachings of our Lord and Master," Mrs. Miller said with reference to Gov. Smith.

WISCONSIN FOR SMITH

Martin L. Lueck of Wisconsin seconding the nomination of Gov. Alfred E. Smith, today in the democratic national convention declared Wisconsin was for Smith because the country needs in Washington a style of virtue leadership now sadly lacking.

"We are for Alfred E. Smith," he said, "because by more than 20 years of public service he has given constant assurance of an unfailing acceptance of the obligations of public duty and of a complete subordination of private to public interests."

"We are for Smith for president because under his leadership we can carry the Backer state and the democracy will triumph in the nation."

MATRIMONIAL

A pretty June wedding took place Wednesday evening at the new St. Patrick's rectory when Miss Catherine Delehanty, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Delehanty of 23 North Franklin court became the bride of Mr. John Costello of Dracut. Rev. Joseph Curtin officiated. The couple was attended by Miss Grace Delehanty, sister of the bride, and Mr. Raymond Costello of

New York, brother of the groom. The bride wore a gown of white crepe de chine overlaid with satin and a veil trimmed with orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of Killarney roses, sweet peas and lilacs of the valley. After the ceremony a reception and wedding supper was served at the home of the bride's parents. Guests came from all over New England, New York and Connecticut. The bride's gift to her attendant was a platinum ring, and the groom's gift to his attendant was a pair of platinum cuff links. The couple left Lowell reception and wedding supper was on an extended honeymoon tour.

COMMON SENSE

When a merchant advertises his wares in a newspaper, he does not appeal to the paper, but to its readers. He solicits the patronage of those readers whether he agrees with the policy of the paper or not.

To refrain from advertising in a paper of wide circulation simply because he does not agree with the editor on all public questions, is not using common sense. It is a form of business suicide. It has sent many short-sighted business men into bankruptcy. A dealer might as well put a sign over his store notifying all who do not think as he does that he does not want their patronage. Readers of newspaper advertisements know when and where their patronage is welcome.

THE TRAIL AHEAD

Graduation Day! The culmination of fond hopes and aspirations, honors, proudly won—aims high and standards reverently followed to attain the ends desired. Now for the trail ahead!

Lowell youth, graduating in happily increasing numbers each year, with customary honors and ceremonials true to form, will compare impressively with any similar ranks of young men and womenhood in the land today. Our local system of school instruction is far advanced today from those struggling bygone years, when contributions to the storage of youthful knowledge were not so generously distributed. The developments in all public school systems during the past seven years, have been so remarkable that the world at large is taking note, as well it should. Lowell has already benefited by the march of progress with which it has always been identified because of the all-community interest in the welfare and education of its youth, rich and poor.

Lowell has indeed much to be thankful for in its vitally nourishing school system that is the bulwark of municipal prosperity and guarantee of good citizenship. Few cities of the same size can boast of the breadth and quality of its attainments from the expanding high school fields down to the sunshine valleys of the happy kindergartens.

Through the gates of our senses, knowledge comes. School training and instruction well supervised in the days of youth, point the way. The names of Lowell's school graduates enrolled on the 1924 records were scanned closely this week by thousands of older citizens, contentedly delighted to review in perspective the annual festivities and indulge in the usual reveries, particularly if perchance they one time went the same route to the diplomas and the exuberant graduation exercises.

We have faith that the majority of Lowell's school graduates this year fully realize as they start upon the unknown trails ahead, that strong wills tempered with gentleness of spirit and purposes to live clean, to do what is right, to be an honor to school and to parents, good members of society and a credit to their country, are among the useful programs that must not be discounted if the journey ahead is to lead to a successful, contented future life.

Cleanliness of mind and heart, high ideals, unselfishness, honorable relations with fellow man—these bring character. Character guarantees success.

LITTLE RHODY'S PLIGHT

The sensational legislative filibuster in Rhode Island, unparalleled in many ways by any known political row in history, is an outgrowth of a constitutional jam which causes the average citizen to find himself "over his head" in an ocean of constitutional tangles.

This legislative row had been on for many weeks and months before taking a turn that finally stirred the citizens of the state from their usual apathy. While politics may be considered by many people to be the greatest sport in the country, Rhode Island folks—at least a good many of them—actually get keener thrills out of other forms of public amusement, it seems.

Ever since the voters in 1922 decided to try a change, the republicans have been patiently explaining that it was a slight mistake. To really understand this present filibuster and the warfare between the parties, for the last year and a half, one must go back to the days of Roger Williams.

Rhode Island still clings faithfully to the theory of distributing the power of government among the many and not giving too much to the chief executive, with the result that the state is trying to run a modern commonwealth with the machinery of a 17th century town meeting.

The senate democrats have announced that they will not retire until the republicans agree to vote on the Quinn resolution under which a referendum on a constitutional convention would be submitted to the voters. The republican position is that the legislature does not possess the power to submit such a referendum and this claim is based on an opinion rendered in 1862 by the state supreme court, to the effect that the constitution of Rhode Island in 1842 did permit amendment, but did not permit the calling of a constitutional convention.

Putting it briefly, the Rhode Island legislators' raw hinges entirely on the wording of old statutes and making it clear that this problem must be removed before "Little Rhody" can retire from unsavory publicity.

RURAL SCHOOLS

During the past four years, superintendents of schools in the so-called "rural districts" have complained to state educational authorities of the extreme lack of available school teachers, many of whom prefer positions in city institutions of learning rather than "life in a country town." This problem is said to be growing each year, although today many large towns, even some of those close to Lowell, pay as large salaries as city-employed instructors receive.

The towns paying city rates for such service are often severely taxed financially thereby, yet in order to be relieved of constant worries and tribulations in the hunt for schoolmasters who will live contentedly in country places, the entitlement of city salaries has been offered to relieve critical situations.

This is the time of year when teacher-preparing institutions are graduating young men and women who expect to teach in the public schools next year. It is also the time when rural school boards and county superintendents are selecting teachers qualified to fill the vacancies that may have occurred or are anticipated between now and next September.

The reward of those who employ teachers early in the possibility of making selections before the available teachers are selected and the most desirable applicants gone. Naturally, teachers desire to secure good positions early. And some of them, we are glad to note, use a great deal of their vacation periods for professional reading and planning for next year, with direct adaptation to the type of work needed in the schools they expect to teach in.

The State Normal schools are today the best available source of supply, school officials knowing that this quarter releases a highly desirable supply invariably.

The preparation of teachers for employment in rural schools is justified in every sense of the word. This service is due to the rural taxpayers, who loyally and substantially bear each year without protest their full share of the State Normal schools' support.

PROBLEM OF FIRES

Fire prevention and control was the main topic of discussion at the opening session of the convention of the New England Association of Fire Chiefs, held in Boston this week. More than 300 delegates participated in vital discussions that never end, and several new ideas developed to further reduce fire hazards were formally approved.

A plan to obtain fullest co-operation from the public for fire prevention was outlined by Chief George L. Johnson of Waltham, always a vigorous leader in state and New England fire chief convention gatherings. He proposed that the fire chiefs form a "cabinet" of prominent citizens who would help the local fire departments to reduce hazards and extend the aid of the public at large to the fire departments in every way possible.

The proposal appears to be one worth general adoption, and no doubt it will be, if sufficient public support can be secured. It was recently put forward in comprehensive form by Franklin H. Wentworth, secretary of the National Fire Protection Association, and has already been taken up experimentally by cities and towns in the middle and far west. Numerous fire chiefs in Massachusetts have previously pointed out the virtues of the project that might be applied to the problem in Lowell.

We understand that the national association recommendation suggests that the "cabinet" be representative of every occupation in the city or town, and that it include an architect, a manufacturer, an insurance man, a consulting engineer and a builder, with the local fire chief, also a board member in his natural capacity of supposed familiarity with all fire hazards in his district.

THE NATION'S HOUSING

It has long been obvious that one effect of the World War upon this country of ours was to check the construction of single dwellings, because of high costs, and to break up much of the old home life by forcing families into the great apartment houses.

One has needed no statistics to imagine the deplorable trend; but now carefully estimated housing figures for the entire nation are available, and they confirm previous surmises.

In 1921 new construction of one-family dwellings in the United States provided for 58.3 per cent of the families, while in 1923 the proportion had sunk to 45.3 per cent. The same trend toward more compact housing is shown with respect to new two-family dwellings, which cared for 16 per cent of families in 1921, and 19.8 per cent in 1923.

The returns for multi-family houses are still more striking to read and digest. The number of dwellings of this class, for which permits were taken out in 1921, was 5111, caring for 52,606 families, 23.1 per cent of the whole. In 1923, permits totaled 12,530, caring for 119,569 families, or 36.7 per cent of the total families accommodated by new construction. Even multi-family apartments with stores combined, increased in the same period from 570 in 1923, accommodating respectively 2594 and 10,576 families.

The foregoing figures are taken from the general statement of housing figures for the United States prepared by the United States bureau of labor statistics, and are supplied through the courtesy of Commissioner Elbert H. Stewart.

Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler insists that it will be an intellectual political campaign this year. That might mean anything if Hell-and-Hell would step one side for the nonce.

A Thought

Prospective Entry

Said a voice at the telephone: "Hello, hello! Is that the gas company's office?" "Yes. What is it?" "When do the entries for the next races open?" "We don't know anything about entries or races. This is the gas office." "I am aware of that, but I thought you could tell me." "Why? What do you want to know for?" "O, nothing in particular. I have a gas meter I would like to enter, that's all."

Very Hard Job

A man arrested for murder bribed a simple member of the jury with $1000 to insist on a verdict of manslaughter. The jury was out a long time, and at last came in with the desired verdict. Afterward the prisoner had an opportunity of seeing the simple juror, and said: "I am obliged to you, my friend. Did you have a hard time?" "Yes," replied the man. "A deuce of a time. The other 11 wanted to acquit you."

Famous and Wise

A famous author and an ambitious beginner arrived together at a small hotel. On the second day of their stay the author took the landlady aside and said: "I want to talk to you about this young friend of mine. He is new in the writing game and earns very little money. I wish you'd make his bill as small as possible." The landlady, gratified at the great man's friendly attitude, promised to do as requested. He was about to go, when the author added: "By the way, don't let my bill be any bigger than his. It would humiliate him. Boys like that are extremely touchy."

Pretty Big Parcel

The bus conductor had had a harassing day. First of all, it was raining—conduces are not fond of rainy days. Troublesome old ladies, irritating old gentlemen, people who tried to avoid payment of their fares and other bus pests had all combined to do their worst. It was getting late in the afternoon when an American tourist boarded the bus. "Say, conductor," he exclaimed, "I want your St. Paul's cathedral." "O, all right," replied the conductor, somewhat shortly. "I say," repeated the American in a louder tone, "I want your St. Paul's cathedral—and I want it slick. Slick?" "Don't you worry, savvy," replied the now thoroughly fed-up conductor. "I'm getting it wrapped up for you now."

The People's Choice
Gentlemen, I nominate Anthony Horace McElife.

He never has done a day's work in his life.

But he stands for the bonus, the Mellon tax, the widow and orphan, the poor of the nation.

He loves the poor farmer, but thinks it a pity.

He never had sense to move into the city.

"He's practical," Anthony says; "it is best to train our young men for the Edison test."

He knows naught of art, but he says that he guesses.

He'd like the Greek goddesses better.

His personal habits are all to the mustard.

His favorite revel is coffee and custard.

When hurried by effort, despondent and glum,

He raises his spirits with heroic gum.

Yet though he is temperate, he is of good cheer.

For he's warmly in favor of light wine and beer.

He stands for high wages, low rents, lower prices.

A full dinner pail; and in all labor crises.

He promises succor with just arbitration.

He'll smother frenzied finance to labor's elation.

He stands for the home, owns a dog and a horse.

But in certain emergencies favors the garage.

As level as water, as straight as a staple,

A Horace McElife is a man of the people.

GO A RAZOR

You are a friend, just an old-fashioned friend who has stuck to me year after year. You've built up your rep; I can always depend that, when needed, you're bound to be here.

I've treated you tenderly; laid you away and tried to use best of discretion. You've served me for years and you serve me today in a regular morning time session.

When roughness comes to the point of my chin and spreads to my cheeks and my neck, 'tis when your dependable labors begin. When you're through I'm no longer a wreck.

The world likes to look on a man who is neat; who tends to his tidiness, aye. Forgetting to shave is a thing indiscreet, so you come to my rescue each day.

You're keen and you're sharp and you're cutting, 'tis true, but I'll grant that you're wise to your line. You do just the things that they meant you to do. And you're just an old razor of mine.

EQUIPMENT OBSOLETE GRAND JURY REPORTS NO TRACE OF MARTIN'S WRECKED PLANE

Lt. Maughan Says American Air Service a "Pitifully Inadequate Force"

SAN FRANCISCO, June 27.—The only modern airplane suitable for air combat now on the Pacific coast is that in which Lieut. Russell L. Maughan made his 22 hour transcontinental flight, last Monday, according to a statement made by him yesterday at a luncheon club meeting and again last night in an address broadcast by radio.

"The American air service was characterized by Lieut. Maughan as a pitifully inadequate force of men handling obsolete equipment."

KLANSMEN HOOT EX-GOV. J. C. WALTON

HEAVENOR, Okla., June 27.—A political speech by J. C. Walton, former governor of Oklahoma was delayed half an hour last night while several hundred hooded men marched in circles about the platform hooting and jeering. They carried a banner: "We'll have no Jack in the senate."

Mr. Walton is a candidate for United States senator.

Aside from the demonstration there was no disorder and Mr. Walton spoke when the hooded band disappeared in the darkness.

IRISH MINISTER IN WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, June 27.—Secretary Hughes was advised by the British ambassador yesterday that the British government deemed it desirable that the handling of matters at Washington exclusively relating to the Irish Free State, should be confined to the Irish minister plenipotentiary accredited to the United States.

Questions which are of imperial concern, or which affect other dominions in the commonwealth in common with the Irish Free State, will continue to be handled as heretofore by the embassy.

Secretary Hughes replied that this government was in cordial agreement with the purpose, and would be glad to receive a minister plenipotentiary of the Irish Free State.

BOSTON, June 27.—The great majority of criminals are between 20 and 25 years old. That's the conclusion reached by the Suffolk county grand jury, which just completed six months' service, during which time it considered 839 cases, a high total, Dist. Atty. O'Brien reported last night.

Would Remove Prison
Of the matters brought before the grand jury, 674 true bills were found, 99 no bills and 68 matters merged. Besides disposing of all these cases, the grand jury made a tour of inspection of all the penal institutions in the district.

The administration of the different institutions, were reported favorably by the jury. But they suggested the removal of state's prison to Deer Island, the house of correction to Long Island and the Long Island hospital to Parker Hill.

Deplore Lack of Religion
Considering the number of youthful criminals, the report of the grand jury stated "The need of a religious appreciation in the community was never greater. Imprisonment of the wrongdoer is personal punishment, but far more important than personal punishment is the removal of the causes that produce the offender."

"It may be that the civic uplift societies, or the parent-teacher associations of the different schools, or the religious bodies functioning in the respective parts of the community may make more vigorous effort to stifle this apparent criminal tendency. Whether it be due to economic reasons, to improper environment, or unfortunate home surroundings, the grand jurors cannot say, but they deeply deplore this situation."

WALDEN ACTING DEAN AT YALE

NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 27.—Prof. Percy T. Walden has been appointed acting dean of freshmen at Yale, during 1924-25, in place of Dean Roswell P. Angier, who will be professional lecturer in physiology at the University of Chicago, during the year, according to announcement at Yale today.

SCOUTS HOLD SENIOR COUNCIL OF HONOR

Last evening a Senior Council of Honor was held by the Lowell troops of Boy Scouts. Edward Smith of Troop 2 was advanced from Tenderfoot scout to Second Class scout. Several boys received merit badges. Clinton Mills received badges for pioneering, electricity, cooking, bird-study, civics, and craftsmanship. Walter Langely, Troop 10, for swimming; James Demas, Troop 25, for athletics; John Pearsall, Troop 30, for first aid to animals and swimming; Ernest Pearsall, Troop 30, carpentry; first aid to animals and swimming; Alvin Moorehouse, Troop 17, first aid to animals and swimming.

The Lowell council camp will be situated at Hudson Centre, N. H., from July 9 to August 6. The boys will be under the direct jurisdiction of Edward J. Mellen, Hoffman Brase of the State Normal school, Charles Barton Scout Master, John Lambert, J. and William Lindley, and William Sabre, last year's cook. Dr. A. V. Isherwood will be camp physician. On Sunday there will be non-sectarian services with songs, talks and stories. Arrangements will be made whereby Catholic scouts will be able to attend mass.

MINOR CASES IN THE DISTRICT COURT

In district court this morning, two liquor cases were disposed of in short order. Rose Ferris, charged with illegal keeping, was fined $100, and Lin-

san Osman, maintaining a liquor nuisance, was also fined $100. An illegal keeping charge against Sarah Snyder was continued until tomorrow. Harry Gray, charged with being a vagrant, was sent to the state farm. Sarah Desautel, drunkenness, was sentenced to the state farm.

A sentence of four months in the house of correction was imposed on Joseph Kurowski, for non-support of his wife and three minor children.

A finding of not guilty was returned in the case of Fred McCormack, charged with assault and battery on M. J. Kierman.

Theresa Renna, assault and battery, was continued to next Thursday.

the new industrial mortgage bank, secured by first mortgages on the property of the borrowers, will be guaranteed by the government.

With the surplus of funds again piling up, coupled with a further ease of time money rate and outside call loans, prospective borrowers are speeding up their preparation to place new bond issues before the bloom is off the bond market. Because of the recent sharp rise in foreign issues, bankers are said to be about ready to offer a part of the Hungarian loan. America's share is expected to be about $10,000,000 with the bonds bearing a 7 1/2 per cent coupon and offered to yield over 8 per cent.

Mutual savings banks which had paid 4 per cent interest for years are opposing a movement to reduce rates on savings deposits, growing out of the Federal Reserve bank cut in its discount rate to 3 1/2 per cent.

REAL ESTATE BUSINESS IS NORMAL HERE

Regardless of the fact that the first five months of this year have seen a period of business depression unequalled since the early stages of the World War, local real estate business is normal, in the opinion of men who have been engaged in this business for many years.

In fact a representative of one real estate firm which has been established for over 30 years and a man who has spent his life in the real estate business, said this morning that in his opinion this year will rank as third best in the history of the city.

Last year, he said, was a boom year and real estate parcels of investment value were being sold and resold by speculators, each purchaser paying a higher price over the preceding purchaser. The result was, he continued, that the established real estate dealer only had to sit at his desk and business came to him—such business as he had never before seen and never expected.

An outgrowth of this boom year was the establishment in the business of a number of so-called "curb" brokers, men who had no previous experience in the business and who carried on business from street corners and from their automobiles.

With the breaking of this boom when money became hard to get the established real estate dealers found they not only had to compete among themselves for business but had to compete against the curb broker, and the result has been so far this year that the well established brokerage houses have not had as much business individually, but the total number of transfers, as recorded at the registry of deeds, equals if it does not exceed that number of transfers in any year except last year and 1922.

With the return to normalcy, the brokers who last year could sit at their desks and do a big business, he continued, found themselves losing business and for a while things looked black to them. After a month or so, however, they realized the boom was over and went out into the field and competed for whatever business was offered.

They found one handicap which took considerable time and effort to overcome that was not their fault, in the opinion of this business man, and that was the hard-feeling expressed towards the dealers by persons who had been treated unfairly by one or two of the curb brokers. These persons, after being "stung" by the one or two dishonest curb brokers, found they could not recover from them for they had no established business and no real assets. The result was a general mistrust of all dealers—which was unjust and took considerable effort to overcome.

The real estate business of today, according to opinions voiced by the majority of established brokers, is a healthy, sane business. Prices have settled back to a rational basis and the majority of buyers are local persons purchasing for homes.

As the textile business improves, so will the real estate business, say these men, and if the textile improvement comes before fall there is a chance that the total business of the year will exceed the figures of 1922 and might come close to the figures of 1923.

PSYCHOLOGY COURSE AT THE HIGH SCHOOL

The state university extension, according to plans made recently, will conduct a teachers' course on applied psychology at the Lowell high school during July. The course, which will consist of eight lectures, will open on Monday afternoon, July 7, and will meet weekly thereafter during July. Double sessions will be held on each Monday, at 3:30 and again at 7 o'clock. Each session will last one and three-quarter hours which is the equivalent of two college hours.

Frank O. Kreeger of the Harvard Graduate School of Education will be the instructor of the course. Professor Kreeger has had wide experience as a lecturer of teachers' extension courses in connection not only with the Massachusetts university extension but also with his former positions as high school principal, superintendent of schools, head of vocational school in the state of Washington, and professor of English at Washington State college.

The aim of the course in applied psychology is to help teachers in their relation not only to the children they teach, but to parents, to one another and to the community in general. Prof. Kreeger plans to discuss the psychology, not of the adult primarily, but of the child, and to point out how psychology may be used as a practical tool in dealing with school room situations. Special discussion will be accorded the psychological phases of habit, attention, thinking, will and moral development, the sub-normal child, the gifted child, individual differences, the unstable child, and adolescence.

This course is one of four that the Massachusetts division of university extension is conducting for the teachers of the state during July. The other centers where the course is offered are Salem, New Bedford and Springfield. Interested teachers are invited to enroll for the course in the center that is most convenient to them. Enrollments in the Lowell course will be accepted at the first meeting on Monday afternoon, July 7, at 3:30 o'clock, at the high school. Further information regarding the course may be obtained from the university extension office, 217 State House, Boston.

FAREWELL RECEPTION TO LOCAL PASTOR

A substantial sum was tendered Rev. A. D. Clarke last night at a farewell reception given him by members of the Chelmsford Street Baptist church, among whom he has labored for the past two years. Rev. and Mrs. Clarke received the parishioners during the evening and an enjoyable program of musical numbers was provided. The purse presentations were made by Rev. Charles Ellis, pastor of the Chelmsford Central Baptist church in behalf of the parishioners and for the Christian Endeavor society of the church. Little Ruth Clark, the three-year-old daughter of the departing couple, was presented a silver spoon. The usual refreshments were served.

Those assisting in the musical program were John Melkie, Mrs. Sanborn, Frank Orrell, Miss Bessie Porter, Charles Laine, Mrs. Dooley and David Allen. Those who served the refreshments were the Misses Catherine Graciosa.

Gladys Dugdale, Mollie Stevens, Clara Kittredge and Lillian Needham and Mrs. Herbert Draper. Ushers were Herbert Kittredge, Edward Philbrick, Carl Dodge, Stanley Ellis, Albert Sanborn and Herbert Brown.

The women of the church in charge of the reception were: Mrs. Alfred Watson, Mrs. Harry Kittredge, Mrs. Florence Cheney, Mrs. Mattie Payton, Mrs. Joseph Henderson, Mrs. W. A. Dickinson, Miss Gladys Chapman, Mrs. William Morse and Miss Lillian Needham.

The combination of flame-colored crepe and black satin is one that is decidedly popular for dinner gowns.

HALT $15,000,000 SUIT FOR WEDDING

BOSTON, June 27.—The trial of the $15,000,000 suit of George F. Willett, which has been in hearing at Dedham court since Nov. 8 last year, will be halted June 28 to allow one of the jurors, J. Edward Kennedy of Medfield, to be married.

Judge Callahan informed the counsel in the case yesterday that he would suspend trial not in order that persons connected with the case might have a respite from the tedious trial, but because Mr. Kennedy and his fiancée, Miss Margaret Josephine Driscoll of Dedham, were becoming impatient at the delay in their marriage plans. No date for the wedding had been set when the case went to trial, but they had planned to be married at the end of the trial.

The case has several times been suspended in trial because of death in the immediate families of persons connected with the trial. The couple will be married July 2, at St. Mary's church, Dedham, by the Rev. Father Walsh. Miss Elizabeth Driscoll, the bride-to-be's sister, will be bridesmaid and the best man will be Frank Kennedy. Miss Driscoll is the daughter of Mrs. Mary Driscoll of 15 Eleanor st., Dedham.

Lineman Killed While Working On Light Pole

lumbus, Matthew Temperance Institute and the Sacred Heart parish. "Joe," as he was familiarly known among a wide circle of friends, was a big hearted, generous and jovial young man. He made friends quickly and always retained their friendship. He was a good musician and took great pleasure in playing accompaniments for groups of friends at the rooms of the Mathews and Knights of Columbus. He also took part in several musical productions presented by these two organizations. Several years ago he was a prominent semi-professional ball player, being identified with the Knights of Columbus team, and later played with the N. E. T. & T. team. He was employed by the Telephone Company for a number of years before joining the Electric Light Company force. He is survived by his wife, Anna (Ryan) Finnegan and two children: his mother and father, Daniel T. and Ellen Finnegan and eight brothers and sisters, Timothy J., a letter carrier; Edward J., also employed by the Lowell Electric Light Corp.; Margaret V., Mary, William, Helen, Daniel and Frank Finnegan.

Lowell Patrolman Shot

Lawrence General hospital at 130 this morning by the two Lowell men, who failed to make their identity known at the hospital, but who were later identified as the result of the quick work of one of the hospital employees in noting the number of the machine in which Conway was carried to the hospital. Hospital officials notified the Lawrence police that Conway was suffering from a bullet wound and an investigation was immediately started. Questioned at the hospital, Conway at first gave his name as Francis Jennings of 26 Warwick street, and told several conflicting stories of how he was injured. One of the police assigned to the case suspected that Conway was a Lowell officer and local headquarters was notified. Lieutenant Patrick Frawley was sent to the down-river city and made positive identification of Conway's identity. Conway's final story of the shooting was to the effect that while walking along East Prospect street a speeding automobile passed him and as it did so, several shots were fired, one taking effect in his shoulder. He reiterated this story to Lieut. Frawley when the latter questioned him.

However, the Lawrence police had been notified of shooting at the Lynch house and Patrolmen Francis P. Devlin and Nicholas Fortune were sent there. They found Lynch asleep in bed. As he was in a drunken condition, they report, it was difficult to awaken him and after succeeding in this, he said there had been no quarrel or shooting in his house.

His daughter was later questioned and said that a party of men had come to the house during the evening. Some time about midnight she heard sounds of quarreling and loud and abusive language from the men, who had gone outside the house; then she heard several shots and said she could tell from the subdued voices of the men that someone had been shot.

It was through the quick work on the part of one of the hospital attendants that the identity of the Lowell men concerned was found, for one attendant took the number of the automobile in which Conway was taken to the hospital, and this was the number of the Moon Auto Agency in this city.

Upon the arrival of the police to investigate the case, Officers Joseph Jordan and Michael Murphy were assigned to guard Conway at the hospital, but this guard was removed when Inspector Morrissey returned after questioning the local men. From Inspector Morrissey it was learned that no further arrests are expected in connection with the case as he believes that Conway was shot while acting as a "good Samaritan" to Lynch.

At the hospital this noon, it was said that the bullet injury in itself is not serious and that Conway should recover quickly unless blood poisoning sets in.

At the local police station it is said that Officer Conway was off duty last night. He was seen about the square early in the evening and was later seen with one or two companions in fort is made to concentrate on their pitching.

Alexander Says Don't Try for Strike-Outs

Continued

How to Develop Control

When warming up to start a game I make an effort to put some thought back of every ball I throw.

Pitching the ball is weak on a fast ball inside, better high, I try to throw several balls at an imaginary spot, conforming with the batter's weakness.

Then I try to keep the next four or five balls low and on the outside, on the theory that the next imaginary batsman doesn't like that style of pitching.

Then I switch to the curve ball or slow one, figuring the batsman is weak on such deliveries.

Throughout the warmup period I try to do something with every ball I throw. I have an object in mind and seek to attain results.

Never Criticize Teammates
Such kind of pitching develops perfect control. The mere throwing of the ball to the catcher is worthless from the standpoint of acquiring control.

The pitcher should never forget there are eight other players willing and anxious to aid him. The moral, don't try to strike them all out. Don't let errors worry you, resting your peace. Never criticize a fellow player. Just remember the player who has erred feels even worse than you do about it.

To sum up my career in the big league as pitcher, I would say that the success that has been kind enough to come my way has been due to a willingness to work hard, listen to advice, and observe carefully the way the star pitchers work.

NO HORNS NEEDED ON LOUD SPEAKER

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., June 27.—A single loud speaker in the center of a large gathering may replace the many horns heretofore attached together to throw sounds in all directions. The new instrument is the invention of C. W. Hewlett, physicist of the General Electric laboratories here. Not only does the new loud speaker send out voices from two sides at the same time, but it has no need for horns.

One of the first uses for this instrument is its installation in the tourist camping grounds here. It is being used to furnish entertainment to the motorists, broadcast by the city.

The device consists of two large coils of wire mounted close together and separated by a thin aluminum diaphragm. There are no permanent magnets in it, and it merely causes the diaphragm to vibrate directly through radial interaction of the magnetic fields produced by the coils. A loud speaker without horns, and sending out sounds in two directions, is the invention of Dr. C. W. Hewlett of Schenectady. Dr. Hewlett is shown here with a small form of his invention.

BROADCASTS PLANNED TO BRING HELP

By N. B. A. Service
DETROIT, Mich., June 27.—A national communication system by which broadcasting stations may be used to transmit the telegraph and telephone during emergencies, has been devised by S. W. Edwards of this city.

Edwards is radio supervisor for the Eighth district, of which Detroit is headquarters. He has submitted his scheme to the department of commerce, whose officials it is expected will study it and perhaps adopt it as a general emergency communication plan.

The idea originated, Edwards explains, after storms in various parts of the country had practically shut off whole sections from the rest of the country by tearing down wires and crippling all other forms of communication.

According to Edwards, in such emergencies, broadcasting stations could well replace the wires and so maintain transmission of information from stricken areas.

"This emergency service," explains Edwards in his report, "should be prepared to handle on short notice messages relating to trains, press reports, urgent commercial and government messages, flood and storm warnings, and requests for assistance in case of uncontrollable fires."

Edwards' scheme would assign to each broadcasting station of the B class another of the same class with which it is to maintain emergency communication at a definite wavelength. His tentative plans embrace only the first, second, third, eighth and ninth radio districts, mostly in the northeast and middle west. But he says this can be extended to cover the entire country.

Details of Plan
The larger, or Class B, stations could maintain a trunk line emergency system over the country, and turn over their traffic to the smaller Class A stations or to amateurs for local distribution. By the use of telegraph, instead of telephone, Edwards believes a greater number of stations, including especially amateurs, could work together toward transmission of the emergency service at all times of day and night.

The plan of assigning definite stations for intercommunication, Edwards points out, is designed to avoid confusion if more stations tried to transmit at the same time.

"A chaotic condition would result if stations were to try and communicate with other stations promiscuously," he says.

THREE CRYSTALS
Of all kinds of crystals for reception, three are best adapted for use in any kind of crystal circuit, including the reflex. They are synthetic galena, the pyrites and the combination of boronite and zincite. The last is considered best for a reflex set.

HOGAN'S CENTRALS RALLY IN LAST INNING AND BEAT C. M. A. C.

Hayward Outpitches Cornellier in Fine Due—Two Runs in Eighth Break 4 to 4 Deadlock—Spectacular Double Play Nips C. M. A. C. Rally

Hogan's Centrals had the better of a 6 to 4 up-hill battle with the C.M.A.C. in a Lowell Twilight league game on the South common last night. The game went eight innings before a decision was made in favor of the Centrals, two runs crossing the rubber in this frame and breaking a 4-4 tie.

Duke Hayward was on the mound for the winners and pitched a brilliant brand of ball. He allowed the heavy hitting C.M.A.C. aggregation but eight hits, while the Centrals were hanging Cornellier and Gagnon for an even 16. Hayward and Martel led in the assault with two and three hits, respectively. A three-sacker by Desmarais was the longest out of the evening, while two-ty-walloons were garnered by Desloges and Nestor.

Both teams scored in the first, the Centrals getting one run and the C.M.A.C. two. The latter forged ahead in the third by adding two more runs to their total and were going strong until the Centrals began to hit in the fourth and fifth. Three runners registered in these two stanzas and the score was deadlocked.

For the next two innings, the tie existed, necessitating the playing of an extra inning. This proved fatal to the C.M.A.C. The first Central batter, McCarthy, singled to second, and Hayward sent him along to second on a sacrifice, which he converted into a safety. On a hunt by DeLoach, McCarthy scored, and Hayward was "squeezed" home on a perfect bunt by Martel.

Although Desmarais tripled for the C.M.A.C. in the last half of the inning,

a lightning double play prevented damage. The score:

In no form of sport is American domination so complete as in the refined and genteel art of face punching. This being conceded by all and sundry, American amateur boxers figure to make what is technically known as a clean-up in the Olympic bouts. Proportionately the amateurs in this country are as skilled as the professionals. It may be assumed that this is true of other countries. England has no Dempsey or Leonard or Stirling to fire the imagination of combative youth. The mediocre Beckett falls far short of being a commanding figure. France is little better off with her hattered Carpenter. Australia has had no outstanding ring notable since the death of Les Darcy. South America has Firpo and Vincentini and these two have kindled a vibrant interest in fistclouts. The belligerent influence of Johnny Dundee is strongly felt in Italy and Denmark still remembers that the picturesque Battling Nelson was a Dane.

Expect Real Fight from Denmark

In this connection it is interesting to find that the Denmark team is one of the favorites and is expected to lift a large and terrifying paw in the tournament finals. A competent American observer who saw the young Danes going through their practice steps writes me this line, "What 'bout America doesn't win, Denmark will!"

The beefy John Bull must suffer an extreme case of nausea as he rolls contemplative eyes over his Olympic representatives—if the lads are as hopeless as they have been pictured. England is the cradle of fistiana and around that country some of the most glorious chapters of the sport have been written. The thought that even the Danes may outstrip them in a boxing contest must be rather hard to endure.

Foul Will Mean Disqualification

The American team appears to be uniformly strong and is probably a better all-round outfit than the one which went over four years ago. In one respect the Americans are likely to be handicapped. Over here the referees are not strict. Either that or they are not competent. Wrestling, hitting on the breaks, rabbit punches and kidney blows seldom draw more than a reprimand. Mostly they are overlooked entirely.

The Olympic judges will hardly be this lenient and there will be no reprimands. Any foul will mean a disqualification. The upstanding boxer who goes in for points will have an edge on the slum-bang youths who strive for a knockout.

The American idea is to knock 'em and knock 'em quick. But the boys must remember also to knock 'em clean.

In the above picture the two New England members, Al Mello of Lowell and Tom Kirby of Boston, appear. Lowell and Boston fans are rooting for their favorites to come through and look forward with confidence in the outcome.

YANKEES SUFFER SIXTH STRAIGHT DEFEAT AND DROP TO FOURTH PLACE

Ehmke Pitches Red Sox to Victory Over World's Champions—Washington Holds Lead—Giants Increase Lead in National League by Defeating Braves, 8 to 1

NEW YORK, June 27.—Pittsburgh new steps from the major league chieftains to occupy the spotlight which has recently shone on the Tigers, Indians, Senators and Giants.

Classed among the logical contenders for the Giant crown, the Pirates after knocking about in odd corners of the league, have suddenly become ambitious and won 10 of their last 14 games. The streak, continued yesterday with a 2 to 1 victory over the Cubs, enabled them to creep to within one, and one-half games of third place as the Robins lost a 3 to 2 battle to Philadelphia.

The Pirates got only six hits from Aldridge and Wheeler while the Cubs made eight off Morrison, but Pittsburghers' most of their lately-acquired faculty of hit-conservation. The Phillies beat Brooklyn by marking five hits in a ninth inning rally. Back at the Polo Grounds for a brief farewell before starting west, the Giants increased their lead over the Cubs to three and one-half games by winning from Boston, 8 to 0. The Barnes brothers started to pitch but both were knocked out. Jonard, relieving young Virgil in the first, held the Braves to three hits in 3-2-3 innings.

Mueller's triple and a sacrifice fly to Blaine, gave the Cardinals a 2 to 1 victory in 10 innings over the Reds who have lost 11 of their last 14 games. Benton and Pfeffer pitched great ball.

The world's champions dropped to fourth place in the American league and are only a half game ahead of St. Louis in fifth, as a result of their sixth straight defeat, all 5 to 5 reverse inflicted by Boston, which went into third. Ehmke allowed 15 hits but was effective in the pinches, twice fanning Ruth with men on bases. Markle, an American Association Yankee recruit was knocked out by Boston.

Washington, after winning four straight games from the Yankees, took the first game of a double header with the Athletics as Walter Johnson bested Baumgartner with a 5 to 0 shut out. Eddie Rummel more than evened honors in the second half by allowing only two hits and beating the Senators, 1 to 0. Martina held the Athletics to six hits.

Cleveland resumed its rough and tumble game by defeating Chicago, 7 to 4 in 10 innings. The Indians were off to an early lead behind Metevier, and after the Sox tied in the ninth, came back with three runs. The victory put Cleveland in sixth place and sent Chicago back to seventh. Detroit and St. Louis were idle because of rain.

Scholz Reaches Topmost Speed 12 Yards From Start and That's Why He's New Fastest Human

JACKSON SCHOLZ IS THE NEW "FASTEST HUMAN" BECAUSE HE STARTS QUICKER THAN ANY OTHER SPRINTER IN THE GAME AND SWINGS INTO HIS FULL STRIDE WHEN ONLY 12 YARDS FROM START, AS DIAGRAM SHOWS.

BY JOE WILLIAMS

Whatever Jackson Scholz does or does not do as a member of the American sprint team in the coming Olympic games he will always be known to posterity as the man who beat Paddock.

Until the New York German came up from nowhere to break two world records on successive days, with the case and nonchalance of Mrs. O'Grady's goal going through a paper-mache fence, Paddock, "fastest human" stood out as the winged foot-phenom of his day and generation.

When word came ringing over the wires that Scholz had first run the 200 meters in 21 seconds flat, and again in 20 3-10 seconds, thus setting two new records within 48 hours, the incredulous villagers lifted high their raucous voices and demanded to know just what ticket the gentleman voted and why.

Was a Flap in 1920 Olympics

Well, to begin with, Scholz is no kid. Indeed he was good enough to make the Olympic team four years ago, but he wasn't good enough to threaten any records. His participation was restricted to taking the dust of other runners, and posing in the group pictures. He was just one of the boys who went along and saw the fight.

Previous to that he had done quite well by the good old Scholz name as a sprinter at University of Missouri. John Simpson, Missouri coach, took a deep and abiding interest in him, and made frequent predictions, within easy hearing distance of eager reporters, that Mrs. Scholz's boy, Jackson, some day would be a world beater.

Scholz rather dropped out of the running game after his uneventful voyage with the 1920 team, and remained in a state of semi-retirement until last winter when a patriotic urge to go out and do something really noble for the Stars and Stripes—and incidentally get another cent at the well dressed mannequins on the Paris boulevards—smote him squarely between the eyes.

A Winter Season of Drudgery

Scholz entered all the indoor meets for their teams. They were voted in the league on condition that permission be received from Supt. Kernan to use the park on a fourth night. This morning a committee waited on the superintendent and delivered their petition. Mr. Kernan considered it, the superintendent considered it, and the committee considered it, and the petition was granted. The committee consisted of the manager of each team or his representative. The managers are: Alford, Germann, St. Joseph's Cadets; Bill Carr, Froquois; C. Gauthier, Ennals; A. Fratus, Mysteries; J. Prudhomme, Victorias; Wilfred Albert, P.A.C.; R. Nichols, Buffaloes; Wilfred Bertrand, Pawtucket Blues.

Each team must post a forfeit of $5 at the beginning of its first game. The money thus gained will serve as a purse for the team that leads the league at the end of the season. Sweaters will be given to the players of the champion team, and the silver trophy cup that is to be donated by William J. Poller, the jeweler, will become the possession of the manager of the champion team. William took arts has been secured as umpire for the greater part of the season. A complete and revised schedule of games will be announced later through The Sun.

HAGEN AND SMITH WELL UP IN RUNNING

HOYLAKE, England, June 27.—(By the Associated Press) Walter Hagen and MacDonald Smith, were well up in the running for the British open golf championship as the final day's play of 36 holes began over the Royal Liverpool course.

George Duncan, former champion, took 74 for his morning round, giving him a total for 54 holes of 227.

Billy Evans SAYS

Often the real value of a certain ball player isn't appreciated until he is forced out of the lineup, through illness or injury.

Every now and then some player, who perhaps lacks color and seldom pulls any brilliant stuff, carries the punch of a ball club.

What the absence of a capable player can do to a pennant contender is shown in the recent slump of the Boston Red Sox.

Joe Harris, regular first sacker of the Boston club, isn't a Sinner in the field, and he hasn't the style of Ty Cobb at the plate, but he can field and hit.

Joe, as the golfer would say, lacks form. There have been a few great golfers who deviated from set customs of the links for instance, Ray, the great English player.

Ray has a style very much his own, but he gets distance, an accuracy to his drives, and is equally proficient on the greens. What more could be desired?

The same goes for Joe Harris. It would be hard to copy his style at bat, yet he stands out as one of the best hitters in the American league.

When Harris was forced out of the game because of illness, the work of the Boston club, as a whole, began to slump. His batting punch was missed. So for this year he has won many a game through a timely hit. Incidentally, the infield began to wobble with Harris missing from first base.

It is really surprising how much the success of the shortstop, second baseman and third sacker depends on the play of the first baseman.

Harris, while lacking the brilliancy of Sinner and some of the other star first sackers, is a great target for throw at, and in his own peculiar style makes many remarkable plays.

The players take into consideration the play of the first baseman in figuring the possibilities of each ball that is batted at them. In a great many cases, fast execution is demanded. Not much thought can be given to perfect timing of the ball and the throw. The big idea is to stop the ball and get it on its way.

It is in such cases that the reliable first baseman plays a big part in the work of the other infielders and the successful completion of many plays.

With a substitute playing first, the other infielders tighten up, try to perfectly time every throw, and lose much speed, not only in handling the ball but getting it away.

Because most first basemen go about their work so easily, much of the difficulty in playing the position is lost to the spectator. Unquestionably the play of the first sacker is the steady influence on the infield. The case of Harris and the play of the Red Sox is ample proof of it.

GREB RETAINS WORLD'S TITLE

60,000 Watch Champ Batter Ted Moore of England Into Pugilistic Submission

Fans Pay Tribute to Moore for Gameness—Tunney Kayos Spalla in 7th

Award to Stribling Over Loughran Unpopular—Gans Beaten

NEW YORK, June 27.—Harry Greb, holder of the world's 150-pound title today returned his middleweight crown to the metaphorical moth balls after dangling it tantalizingly before the envious eyes of Ted Moore, English champion, at the Yankee stadium, last night, while 60,000 contributors to the Milk Fund watched the human windmill go through his characteristic paces.

A perfectly delivered left uppercut, swinging with intense rapidity to the open jaw of the English champion, with almost unbelievable regularity, battered Moore into pugilistic submission. There was nothing inconsistent about Greb's attack. He started his punches from wherever his shifting gloves happened to be and usually they found an opening.

But despite the punishment that Greb meted out to the plucky Moore, the Englishman came back for more on every occasion. Everyone of the 15 torrid rounds went to Greb by a wide margin; yet when the match was completed the massed stands arose and paid a glowing tribute to the game Englishman who stuck to his guns in the face of certain defeat.

The Macon, Ga., schoolboy, William L. (Young) Stribling, met a tough proposition in Tommy (K. O.) Loughran, Philadelphia battler, but the decision went to Stribling after six rounds. This award was extremely unpopular to the fans and a demonstration of protest ensued.

Gene Tunney, American light heavyweight champion, scored a technical knockout over Erminio Spalla, European heavyweight champion in the seventh round of a scheduled 12 round encounter.

In one of the best matches on the card, Larry Estridge, eleven Harlem middleweight, knocked the negro world's middleweight crown from the veteran brow of Panama Joe Gans.

NORTH CAMBRIDGE TEAM DEFEATS ABBOTS

Punk Gautreau smashed a two-bagger to left field in the 11th inning in a hectic game with Abbot Worsteds at Graniteville last evening, and two runners crossed the pan to break the deadlock and win a 6 to 4 victory for the North Cambridge team of the Greater Boston Twilight League.

The game was a hummer all the way, McCrehan and Heck engaging in a pretty pitcher's duel. Heck, with better support, might have had better success. Five errors were chalked up to the home team. The score:

LOOSEN STOPPER

When the glass stopper of a perfume bottle sticks, pour a little glycerin about the neck for the stopper and let it stand for a while, after which it may be easily removed.

Knockout over Erminio Spalla, European heavyweight champion in the seventh round of a scheduled 12 round encounter.

JACK SLATTERY TO COACH BOSTON COLLEGE

BOSTON June 27.—Jack Slattery of Jamaica Plain, old-time Chicago Cub catcher, who has been head coach of varsity baseball at Harvard for the past five years, yesterday afternoon signed a contract to coach next year's Boston College nine.

In transferring his allegiance from the Crimson to the Maroon and Gold, the veteran major leaguer brings to an end five years of service at the college on the Charles. And there is no doubt that while at Harvard, he has been severely handicapped by lack of high calibre material.

As it was, he got away to a good start when he came to Cambridge in the spring of 1920. He defeated Harvard's great rival, Yale, the first two seasons. During the past three seasons, however, his crimson nines have each year been defeated by the Blue.

Against Princeton, Slattery's nines have been victorious in three series out of five. And against Holy Cross, always a very powerful team, his charges have done well, although they have lost. He defeated Holy Cross by a 10-0 score in 1920 and has been defeated by a one-run margin at the hands of the Worcester clan on four other occasions.

Thus, Slattery's showing against Holy Cross, the rival team of his new alma mater, has been very good indeed. And there is no doubt that Slattery, as successor to Coach Olaf Hendrickson at B. C., should get high calibre results.

The veteran Crimson coach leaves Harvard with a host of friends and well-wishers behind him. To date, the Harvard athletic authorities have not been able to come to an agreement on the selection of a successor to Slattery.

GAME ON SOUTH COMMON THIS EVENING

The postponed game between the Pawtucket A.A. and Ricard's Belmonts will be played on the South common at 8:15 o'clock this evening. To the holder of the lucky number, Frank Ricard, will donate a suitable prize. SOME DELICIOUS DRINKS FOR SUMMER

CURRANT AND CHERRY SIRUP

Four quarts red currants, 1 quart sour cherries.

Wash fruit carefully. Do not stalk currants. Put in preserving kettle with just enough water to cover bottom of kettle. Heat slowly, crushing with a wooden potato masher to extract the juice. Simmer until fruit is soft and juice flows freely. Strain through a jelly bag.

Stone berries. Heat slowly as with currants. Do not let the fruit boil while extracting the juice. Strain through jelly bag.

Combine juices and let stand in a stone crock or unlicked enamelware pan for 24 hours. Strain through jelly bag.

Fill sterilized bottles to within an inch of the top. Cover corks of bottles with circles of cloth and put in bottle loosely. Put the half-sealed bottles in rack in boiler and add enough cold water to three-fourths cover bottles. Bring slowly to the boiling point. Reduce heat and keep just at the boiling point for half an hour.

Remove boiler from fire and let cool slowly. When water is cold, take out bottles and seal. To seal, force cork into bottle. Open cloth around cork and cover cork and cloth well with sealing wax. Store in a dark, cool place.

When used, sweeten with sugar sirup and dilute with ice water. The sirup has a remarkably fresh taste when opened.

CHOCOLATE EGG MALTED MILK

1 teaspoonful malted milk, 2 tablespoons chocolate sirup, 1 egg, 1 1/2 cups milk.

Mix all ingredients in a pitcher and beat with a Dover egg beater for five or ten minutes. The milk, eggs and sirup should be thoroughly chilled before mixing.

CHERRY COCKTAILS

Twelve or 15 sweet cherries, 1 teaspoon chopped and blanched almonds, 1 tablespoon strawberry juice, 1 teaspoon powdered sugar.

Pit and chill cherries. Sprinkle with chopped nuts. Mix strawberry juice and sugar and let stand till sugar is dissolved. Pour over cherries. Serve in sherbet glasses. The recipe makes one cocktail.

FRUIT SOUP

1 tablespoon arrowroot, 2 1/2 cups raspberry juice, 1/2 cup sugar, 1/2 teaspoon salt.

Dissolve arrowroot in a little cold water. Add fruit juice. Boil until thick. Add sugar and salt and stir thoroughly. Chill and serve in sherbet glasses. This fruit soup must be very cold when served.

MACEOINE OF FRUIT

Lemon jelly, strawberries, blackberries, raspberries, cherries.

Use any good prepared jelly. Add two tablespoons of sugar if the fruit is tart. Put a layer of fruit, carefully selected, in a mold. Pour over a little of the jelly, not enough to float the fruit. When almost "set," add another layer of fruit and jelly. Let set. Continue until all is used. Put on ice to become very cold and firm. Unmold and slice to serve.

A delicious drink for a hot day is cherry punch.

CHERRY PUNCH

Three lemons, 2 oranges, 1/2 cup shredded pineapple, 2 cups stoned cherries, 1 cup sugar, 1 quart ginger ale, 2 cups ice tea, 1 banana, 1/2 cup choice cherries (stoned).

In a large bowl put juice of lemons, the oranges sliced, the pineapple, the cherries and the sugar. Press with a wooden potato-masher and let stand for an hour or longer to extract the juice. Press the fruit to a pulp and strain. Add the strained juice to the ginger ale and tea. Add the banana, sliced, and the cherries cut in quarters. Put a tablespoonful of crushed ice in each glass to serve.

HARLEQUIN PUNCH

Three lemons, 2 oranges, 1/2 cup shredded pineapple, 1 cup strawberries, 2 cups stoned cherries, 1 1/2 cups sugar, 1 quart ginger ale, 2 cups ice tea, 1 banana, 1/2 cup fine cherries (stoned), 1/2 cup strawberries.

Put the juice of the lemons, the oranges cut in slices, the strawberries and cherries in a large bowl. Add sugar and crush with a wooden potato-masher. Let stand an hour or longer to draw out the juice. Press the fruit to a pulp and strain. Add the fruit juice to the tea and ginger ale.

Add banana sliced, and cherries and strawberries cut in quarters. Serve in glasses with crushed ice and a sprig of mint.

Jack Daw's Adventures. Chapter 6

A small tug pulled up in front of the sailing vessel and Jack ran up and watched a long tow line fastened to place. Then the captain appeared on the deck of the sailboat. "Run back and have them swing you on board with the big crane, young fellow," he shouted.

Jack turned and, followed by Flip, ran back to where the crane was standing. The big arm that picked things up and put them on the boat had a long wire attached to it. At the end of this line was a loop. Jack grabbed this and then circled his other arm around Flip.

The captain, in the meantime, had walked to the stern of the sailing vessel and he shouted to the crane man to swing Jack and Flip up on the boat. Instantly the great crane started, to move and Jack felt himself being lifted into the air. He hung on to Flip tightly. (Continued.)

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

by Olive Roberts Barton

"HELLO" CALLED A SWEET VOICE.

"The man in the moon is so short and so fat. He can't bend over this way of bend over that. He has not seen his feet since the Fourth of July. But he says that's his shape, so there's no use to try."

That's what Johnny Jump Up was singing in the moonlight. The twins woke up and rubbed their eyes.

"Is that you, Johnny?" called Nick. "Yes, sir, it's me," said Johnny, doing a handstand on the window-sill. "Are we going on an adventure?" asked Nancy eagerly. "Are you going to take us on a journey?"

"Yes, I am," said the funny little fairy. "That is, if you want to go, and if the timorous is willing."

The twins scrambled out of bed and slipped into their clothes and out on the magic shoes.

As usual, they became so little that their chins nearly touched the ground.

"Come on," said Johnny Jump Up gaily. "We have a long way to go and the night is vanishing. Come."

So they all climbed down the rose vine to the magic garden. Johnny Jump Up led the way. And soon they came to the pansy bed.

"Hello," called a sweet voice, and a lovely little fairy appeared right in the center of the flowers. She had on a purple poke-bonnet and a yellow waist and green skirt. "I've been waiting and waiting," she said. "Who are you?" asked Nancy timidly.

"I am the pansy fairy," said the tiny creature. "Do you want to hear the story about the pansies?"

"Yes, yes," cried both of the children. "We'd love to hear it."

"Well, once upon a time," said the fairy, "pansies grew wild like violets. The people in France named them."

"At first they called them 'three little maidens under one hood.'"

"Hush!" shouted Johnny Jump Up. "Listen to that, will you. Why it would take all day to say it!"

"Do be quiet!" said the timorous impatiently. "I want to hear the rest of the story myself."

The pansy fairy laughed good-naturedly and went on.

"You are right, Johnny, the name was too long. So the French people changed it. The three faces on the flower looked so solemn and thoughtful that they called them the French word for thought. It sounded so much like pansies that that's what they were called by and by, plain pansies."

"But that's not the real story. I started to tell you. The pansies grew in the wheat fields among the wheat, as poppies do now. And because they smelled so sweet, the people would tramp down the wheat to get them.

"This will never do," said the kind pansies. "We must stop smelling so fine, and save the wheat." So they did, and they have never had a sweet smell since.

"Now it's too late to go to France," said the timorous. "I never could get you there and back before day-light. The sun's coming up now."

"We'll go tomorrow," said Johnny Jump Up.

MISS ZISKIND IS JUNE BRIDE

Local Girl Married to Saul

Guests Gathered From All
New England Make Ceremony a Social Event

In what will take rank as one of the outstanding social events in Jewish society in New England during the present season, Miss Esther Ziskind, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Ziskind of 75 Gates street, Lowell, was last night united in marriage to Samuel Weltman, Springfield attorney. The ceremony was performed beneath a wide spreading bower of chrysanthemums in Beacon house, Boston, which was tastefully and lavishly decorated for the occasion. Rabbi Epstein of the Reformed church of Boston was the officiating clergyman.

There were over 100 guests from Lowell and vicinity present at the ceremony and in all close to 500 persons gathered from all points of New England as guests. The bride, who wore a charming gown of white duchesse satin with pearls and real lace trimmings and veil, carried a bouquet of roses and lilies of the valley. She was given in marriage by her father and was attended by Miss Lucille Brenner of Brookline as maid of honor and Laz Weltman of Los Angeles, California, a brother of the bridegroom, as best man. The bridesmaids, dressed in white, were the Misses Belle Zeman of Boston, Betty Meyers of Lawrence, Pearl Kaufman of Brookline, Dorothy Lourie of Brookline and Stella Weltman of Pittsfield. All carried bouquets of sweet peas.

The ushers were Jack Ziskind of Lowell, William Weltman and Saul Goldstein of Pittsfield, Nat Levine of Boston, and Sidney Specter of Springfield. The bride's gifts to the bridesmaids were camellias while the maid of honor was given a platinum wrist watch. The ushers were all presented gold pencils.

A dinner and reception followed the ceremony after which the young couple left for an extended trip to the Canadian Rockies and other points. They will be at home in Springfield after Sept. 15.

FOR SANE OBSERVANCE OF JULY FOURTH

Fire Chief Edward F. Saunders today issued his annual appeal for a safe and sane observance of the Fourth of July. While admitting there is no occasion to be more fearful than in the past few years, in view of the restrictions he intends to enforce, he feels that the usual warning will not be amiss. The warning follows:

growth of the 'Safe and Sane' idea among the great majority of intelligent citizens, and the development of the more sensible community celebration, there are still people who feel that they cannot appropriately observe the anniversary of the passage of the Declaration of Independence without resorting to fire and noise.
This is proved by the fact that in the latest year of record of the Annual Bureau of the National Board of Fire Underwriters reports the property damage due to fireworks, firecrackers, etc., at more than three-quarters of a million dollars. As a fire cause, therefore, it is by no means the least important—even after some twenty years of the 'Safe and Sane' campaign, which has brought about the prohibition in this and other cities of the most hazardous celebrating materials. Vast property damage is recorded every year from fireworks and fireworks falling on inflammable roofs, under porches, in rubbish piles, or in dry grass, and so spreading.

"Furthermore, following every Fourth the newspapers continue to tell of mutilation and deaths. Last year one state—and not the most popular, either—had five deaths, sixteen serious injuries and sixty fires, all due to fireworks. In 1923, several small children died from poison after eating various kinds of fireworks. But, of course, most of the trouble comes from sparks and explosions resulting in loss of sight and fingers, and in ugly burns about faces and hands.

"Thousands of parents who, even before the restrictions came, forbade their children to celebrate in the old-fashioned way, still allow them to play with sparklers, fire balloons and other pyrotechnics, which they believe harmless. Last year in one small town in Louisiana, however, nine little girls had their dresses ignited with sparklers, the result that four were in their graves and the others disfigured for life. The list of similar disasters is long; for though the sparks given off may be harmless, the metal core itself becomes red-hot and will easily ignite flimsy fabrics. As for the miniature balloons, they are hazardous not only while they are being released but also in the possibility of their dropping on inflammable roofs or other combustible surfaces.

"If some display of fireworks is considered imperative in this city, let it be held by the only body properly safeguarded public function which the children can enjoy without danger and where there is no exposure to burnable property. Many a battle in the revolutionary war, which made effective the Declaration of Independence, did not claim a tenth of the toll of human life that has been paid in a century of Fourth-of-July celebrations. Let's make this the safest, most sensible and at the same time most memorable Fourth ever known in Lowell.

OUR BOARDING HOUSE

St. Anne's Sunday School Has Annual Outing

ALL READY FOR THE BIG TIME AT NABNASSET

Over 150 happy children, ranging in age from 5 to 15 years, gathered at 9 o'clock this morning at St. Anne's parish school and in a few instances by their parents, boarded trucks and busses for the Y.M.C.A. camp at Nabnasset pond.

They were the children of St. Anne's Sunday school, off on their annual outing and smiles were on every face for the occasion is always one to be long remembered.

At 9:30 o'clock the children, accompanied by teachers of the Sunday school and in a few instances by their parents, boarded the trucks and busses and started for the outing grounds.

Arriving at Camp Nabnasset, as the Y.M.C.A. camp is known, the first half-hour was given over to enjoyment of the scenery. The place is beautifully located and many a gasp of astonishment was heard from the children who had never before gone to this place on an outing. The pond, fringed on all sides by fir and pine, with a background of hills covered with the summer trees, was truly a beautiful picture in the bright sunlight this morning.

As soon as the picnicers had become accustomed to the scene, a bus-ball game was staged between a team composed of Sunday school boys and campers at the Y.M.C.A. summer camp.

Thomas R. Williams, director of the camp, was in charge of the sports program and he, assisted by several other instructors at the camp, inspired the baseball game.

Upon the conclusion of the game, boys and girls were taken in charge by sports instructors and a long program of sports run off. Many contests were planned for this program and the list was long enough to keep the children interested until 1 o'clock.

All of the picnicers carried lunches and at one o'clock in a pine grove near the camp buildings, they sat down on soft seats made of pine needles and enjoyed their dinner. Additional refreshments were distributed among them, consisting mainly of ices and ice cream, and fully an hour was given over to luncheon.

the aisle to the middle of the delegation and a young woman raised it aloft. There was a chorus of "Whoop las" from different sections of the hall and galleries. The band kept up an excursion through a madley of popular airs and as there was no attempt to stop the noise and get back to work, the demonstration for Cox continued. It was spontaneous so far as it went, and without any professional attachments, but as there was no machinery for giving it force, it did not get away with a loud noise. Judson Harmon, one of the party war horses from Ohio stood smiling on the outside of the arguing group watching the outcome.

Finally the band stopped and Chairman Walsh rapped for order.
But the aisles had to be cleared and some singers were silenced before business was resumed.

"Heat Speech of Convention"

After having used up 20 minutes, the call of the roll was resumed and Montana sent to the platform William H. Maloney of Butte, to second the nomination of Gov. Smith. Mr. Maloney took up a place in front of the microphone but when he tried his voice it was obvious that Maloney had been rooting for somebody very much, for he had no voice. He merely emitted a variety of strange sounds while the convention roared with laughter.

He gave it up and retired smiling-ly, while the convention roared, again.
Everybody said it was the best speech
so far delivered.

Below is the speech Maloney had prepared for delivery:

Hanked If Smith Falls

"On behalf of the underground tollers of the great Rocky Mountain regions, and the industrial centers of Montana," he said, "I desire to second the nomination of Al Smith."
"Before leaving my beloved Montana home, my colleagues, pals and chums enjoined me to bring back Al Smith as our nominee for the presidency, or, failing that, they hank me to the nearest lamppost. I felt that you do not desire or want that sad neck of mine should meet the sad fate of Robert Emmet. Therefore I ask of you this favor.

"Give us Al Smith for a leader, and the wide stretches of the western prairies, the rock-ribbed Rockies and the great Pacific are ours."

Another McAdoo Outburst

Chairman Walsh announced to the convention that Maloney had taken the platform to second Gov. Smith's nomination, and then introduced S.
V. Stewart of Montana, who made a speech seconding the nomination of William G. McAdoo.

The mention of their favorite's name gave the McAdoo people another opportunity and they cut loose with a short burst of cheering.

Harry B. Flecharty of Omaha, was unable to be present and deliver the speech he had prepared nominating Gov. Bryan for the presidency. It was delivered for him by Eugene D.
O'Sullivan of Omaha.

The convention did not seem to be much interested in one man's speech being read by another, and kept up a continuous hum of conversation while Mr. O'Sullivan was reading. Once Chairman Walsh had to intervene and rebuke the audience for its inattention.

Justice Attacks McAdoo

The delegation leaders took the opportunity to do a little electioneering.
Joseph B. Shannon of Kansas City circulated among the Missouri delegates a letter he had received from Chief Justice R. F. Walker of the Missouri supreme court, expressing the hope that the delegation would not give its vote to McAdoo. The chief justice's letter declared McAdoo "Intellectually mediocre, and below the average of a lawyer, and possessing an itching palm which could only find relief in the contributions of such clients as Doheny and Murree." Shannon showed the original of the letter to all the members of the Missouri delegation, which contains some McAdoo supporters.

Cheers for Gov. Bryan

At the conclusion of his address and mention of the name of Gov. Bryan, there was an outburst of cheering.
Most of the cheering folk in the galleries probably thought they were cheering William Jennings Bryan.

A lot of old-time delegates joined in a standing demonstration to the name of Bryan and some of the delegates who are working for other candidates joined in, too. California, for instance, which is for McAdoo, took part in the cheering and singing which was scattered about the floor.

Finally after a little milling around,
a parade got started with Nebraska at the head. It was a parade for Gov.
Bryan or his brother, William Jennings Bryan; whichever one might prefer—but at all events, it was a parade and a demonstration for the name of Bryan and the old timers, whatever their affiliations and sympathies in the present convention may be joined gladly and smilingly in the recollections of the battles of the past in the background.

Gov. Brown Nominated

The tribute to the name of Bryan wound up with the delegates singing
"Onward, Christian Soldiers." Then Chairman Walsh banged for order, got it after a little waiting and introduced
who nominated Gov. Fred H. Brown.

New Hampshire, he told the convention, was speaking in the big meeting for the first time in 72 years.

Plans Davis Demonstration

NEW YORK, June 27.—West Virginia friends of John W. Davis manifested their strength in the convention hall today to do a little cheering when his name was placed in nomination. They did not expect any rousing demonstration to materialize, but they did anticipate that a lot of friendly sympathy in the way of handclapping and the like would manifest itself among many delegations which will vote otherwise until the vital moment comes when pre-convention obligations no longer bind the action of individual delegates.

LINEMAN KILLED WHILE WORKING ON ELECTRIC LIGHT POLE

James Joseph Finnegan Electrocuted in Marginal Street This Forenoon When 2300 Volts From General Distribution Wires Passed Through His Body

James Joseph Finnegan, 27 years, married, of 25 Sidney street, a lineman in the employ of the Lowell Electric Light Corp. since December, 1919, was electrocuted on a pole in Marginal street at about 3:30 o'clock this morning. The 2300 volts from general distribution wires which passed through his body, seared his arms and hands and partly burned off the flannel shirt he wore before fellow workers could get his body away from the wires and take it to the ground. Because of the position of his body over cross bars it was fully five minutes before it could be cut and lowered.

Members of the repair gang to which he belonged, frantically worked over him without avail for more than half an hour and the ambulance took him to the Lowell Corporation hospital, where he was pronounced dead.

No formal report of the details of the accident had been filed by the foreman of the construction gang at the office of the Electric Light Corp. at noon, but from what they had been able to learn, company officials say Finnegan in some way came in fatal contact with general distribution wires. The pole on which he was working is situated at the corner of Marginal street and Glidden avenue.

Mr. P. J. Leidy of 98 Marginal street, in telling of the accident to a Sun reporter, said that for at least five minutes Finnegan's body lay over the pole cross-trees, although his fellow-workers made every effort to get it away from the wires.

Finnegan's tragic death comes as a great shock to the many people who intimately knew him in the neighborhood in which he always had lived. He rissey and Charles Woodcock of the Lawrence department, this forenoon and held on a charge of assault with a dangerous weapon.

Two sons of Officer Lynch, Neal and

William, aged about 20 and 22 years, have been questioned concerning the affair and Inspectors Morrissey and Woodcock are in this city today questioning two business men, officials of an automobile agency, whom it is alleged, were members of the party. Employees of this concern informed The Sun this noon that the agents in question were out of town, but on the return of Inspectors Morrissey and Woodcock to Lawrence, it was learned that they had interviewed Joseph Quinn and Lawrence Lawlor of the local auto agency, in whose car Conway had been taken to the hospital.

According to the story told by these two men, they, with Officer Conway, had gone to Lawrence at about 8 o'clock last evening. There they met Special Officer Lynch and his two sons and visited at his home.

After staying there a considerable length of time, during which Inspector Morrissey says there was drinking, the Lowell men prepared to leave. Before leaving, however, the Lynch boys prevailed upon them to assist in putting Lynch to bed as he was intoxicated and acting boisterously. This they did and went out to their machine.

Officer Conway Shot Before they could get away, one of the Lynch boys came out and asked Officer Conway to return as the father had got out of bed again. Conway went in the house and a scuffle followed. Shots were heard and within a few moments Conway came out to the machine and said he had been shot.

Officer Conway was taken to the Lawrence hospital.

Capias Issues for Arrest of John W. Watkins, Former Member of Federal Enforcement Squad Operating in This Vicinity, in Connection With Lawrence Case

On request of United States Commissioner Richard B. Walsh, a capias was issued today from the office of Assistant U. S. District Attorney William J. White, Jr., for the arrest of John W. Watkins of Somerville, a former member of the squad of federal enforcement agents headed by Walter H. Sullivan of this city. Watkins was discharged from the federal organization several weeks ago, but was summoned to appear before Commissioner Walsh today in connection with the case of John F. McCarthy of Lawrence, charged with illegal sale. Watkins was the complaining officer and when he did not appear this forenoon in answer to the summons, the commissioner got into telephonic communication with District Attorney White and asked him to issue a capias for his arrest. McCarthy's case has been called several times for hearing before Commissioner Walsh, but 4 postponed on each occasion because of the absence of Watkins. Today it was again called and postponed, but in the meantime search will be made for Watkins under the capias and he will be brought before the commissioner at McCarthy's hearing.

Move by McAdoo Men to Start Voting Before Platform is Ready Opposed by Smith Leaders

WARM TRIBUTE TO JAS. M. COX

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, New York, June 27.—Pausing in the midst of the bitter contentions of its favorites of the hour, the democratic national convention united today in a colorful tribute to its fighting leadership of the past.

Colorful Tribute to Cox While a band in a far gallery played "Should Auld Acquaintance Be Forgot" delegates from every state stood on their chairs and cheered the name of James M. Cox of Ohio, the party's standard bearer in the desperate and disastrous battle of four years ago.

It was a personal tribute, unorgan-gratitude of the democracy for the aggressive fight of the former Ohio governor to stem the mighty republican tide of 1920. Assembling for its fourth session, today the convention engaged in clearing away the preliminaries to the big fight ahead. While the platform committee still struggled in secret session to find some agreement on planks covering the K.K.K. and League of Nations issues, the convention itself went in for hearing the remaining nominating speeches. The order of business called for consideration of the platform as soon as the nominating speeches are considered, but the McAdoo forces were pressing to take a start on the halting before the platform comes in. The combined forces opposed to the McAdoo movement declared that the McAdoo managers wanted to let their delegations get started on the balloting before they were compelled to take a position on the Ku Klux Klan issue in the fight over the platform.

Renomination of Hall Call Ten candidates had been placed formally before the convention prior to the start of the balloting.

EX-GOV. JAMES M. COX

There is nothing near the grade at the price. That's the way it has been for nearly 25 years—quality never changed. And that's the way it's going to be throughout the future. Smile at the dealer that tries to push a cheap package as "just as good"—but get away from him. Your benefit is so great you will feel well repaid in going any distance necessary to get Genuine Big John. June 27, 1924.

DISAFFECTION IN THE GREEK NAVY

LONDON, June 27.—The disaffection in the Greek navy reported in Athens yesterday is due to the suspicion of some of the officers that the minister of marine, Admiral Hadjiliriakos, has been guilty of favoritism in making some recent promotions, says the correspondent of the Morning Post. Eighty-one of the total of 170 higher officers demanded the removal of the minister and the reversal of the promotions, threatening otherwise to resign. Premier Papanastasiou is quoted as declaring this action tantamount to mutiny, for which the officers would be suitably punished.

MATRIMONIAL

Careville—Date
A pretty June wedding took place Wednesday afternoon when Miss Emma Mae Dado, daughter of Mrs. Minnie Dado of 711 Pleasant street, Braintree, was united in marriage to Mr. John Careville of 115 A street, the ceremony being performed at St. Margaret's rectory at 2.30 o'clock by the pastor, Rev. Charles J. Galligan. Mrs. Maud M. Myers of Claremont, N. H., a cousin of the bride, was matron of honor, and Mr. William Cahill of Lowell was best man. The bride was escorted in gray tulle gown trimmed with lace and wore a picture hat. She carried a shower bouquet of bright roses and lilies of the valley. The matron of honor wore orchid georgette with hat to match and carried pink Columbia roses and sweet peas. The bride's gift to the best man was a platinum cuff link. A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents after the ceremony and was attended by a large number of friends. After a wedding trip to New York, the couple will reside at 711 Pleasant street, Braintree Centre.

Dunn—Heardon
The wedding of Miss Catherine T. Heardon of 773 Broadway and Mr. George T. Dunn of Dunstable took place Monday morning at a nuptial mass in St. Patrick's church celebrated by Rev. Jeremiah M. Heardon of Holyoke, a cousin of the bride. Miss Nora Shea, a cousin of the bride, was matron of honor, and Mr. John Dunn, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. The bridegroom received a string of pearls from the bride, and the bridegroom's gift to his best man was a white gold watch chain. After a wedding breakfast at the home of the bride's father, the couple left on an extended wedding trip and will reside in Dunstable when they return.

Denio—Lawson
A pretty wedding took place Wednesday afternoon at 5.30 at the home of the Rev. Wallace C. Sampson, Sayles street, when Miss Ethel Lawson became the bride of Mr. Albert Allen Denio. The bride was charmingly arrayed in a gown of white georgette and satin with the lace effect. Her veil had a coronet of orange blossoms and she carried a shower of bridal roses. She was attended by Miss Anna Denio, sister of the groom, who wore a dress of orchid crepe de chine with panels of fern lace. Her hat was of leghorn straw trimmed with orchids and streamers. She carried a bouquet of Columbia roses. The bridegroom's attendant was Mr. Herbert Lawson, brother of the bride. Edmund Lawson, another brother, was chief usher. Following the ceremony a reception was tendered the bridal couple at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Lawson, 76 Puffer street. A buffet luncheon was served and a musical program rendered. The bride's gift to her attendant was a ring of green gold and that of the groom to his best man was also a ring. The couple left on an extended wedding trip and on their return will reside at 7 Puffer street.

N. H. INHERITANCE TAX UNCONSTITUTIONAL

CONCORD, N. H., June 27.—In a decision handed down late yesterday the supreme court of New Hampshire held the state inheritance tax as amended in 1919 and further amended in 1923 to be unconstitutional. The amendments had provided a graduated inheritance tax instead of the uniform rate of taxation formerly in effect.

The court ruled that inasmuch as the people had adopted an inheritance tax amendment to the state constitution in 1905, the inheritance tax law passed in 1919 and based on the amendment was constitutional. This law established the uniform rate of taxation.

The court further held that inasmuch as there was doubt in 1919 as to constitutionality of the amendments to the inheritance tax law passed in that year, the law of 1919 did not repeal that of 1905.

State officials last night were unwilling to discuss the effect of the supreme court decision on taxes already collected under the laws of 1919 and 1923. It was intimated, however, that on the theory that "the state can do no wrong," applicants for rebates would be compelled to have recourse to the courts.

FOREST FIRES BURNING OUT OF CONTROL

SAN FRANCISCO, June 27.—Four forest fires in California are burning out of control. The biggest is in Santa Clara county, 75 miles from San Francisco, where flames which have destroyed 125,000 acres of forest grazing land, are being blown eastward into Stanislaus county, and toward the rich farming land of the San Joaquin valley.

In the timbered mountains of Sierra and Plumas counties, close to Nevada, two more blazes are roaring past the efforts at control lines. More than 1000 acres had been burned in Sierra county and the flames were still spreading at the last report. In Plumas county a new fire section miles from Westwood was reported detecting headway which threatened an immense acreage of commercial timber.

Other forest fires which have called forth hundreds of fire fighters since last Sunday in half a dozen parts of the state were reported controlled last night.

APOLOGY FROM CHIEF OF YOKOHAMA CUSTOMS

YOKOHAMA, June 27.—(By the Associated Press) The chief of Yokohama customs forego has apologized to the United States consul, Kemper, for the discourteous treatment to which American passengers of the President Madison were subjected by members of his staff. Some of the American passengers of the President Madison were forced to undergo an unusually rigorous examination when the vessel arrived here June 24. Superior officers intervened and apologized to the passengers. Since that incident American passengers arriving here have been treated most courteously.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

(By the Theatres' Own Press Agents)

RIALTO THEATRE

When William Fox produced a motion picture version of "The Shadow of the East" he did it as thoroughly and as effectively as we believe was possible. The finished work was shown for the first time yesterday at the Rialto theatre and it delighted the capacity audiences at both matinee and evening performances.

The successor to "The Sheikh," also from the pen of E. M. Hull, is a pulsating, throbbing, colorful tale of the east and west, particularly the east. It concerns an English peer who has entered into an Indian marriage with a native girl, who kills herself when she believes that his love is waning. This shadow casts itself over the Englishman's life to the extent that when he meets the girl of his own race whom he loves, it nearly wrecks his life and hers.

Frank Mayo as the Earl of Craven, Mildred Harris as the girl, and Evelyn Brent as Lolaine, the Indian bride, do excellent work. Norman Kerry as Sam, the sheik, who is also in love with the English girl, but who, contrary to the habits of the sons of the desert, steps aside in favor of his friend, Craven, gives his usual excellent performance.

The added feature is quite a novelty film. The title of it is "Ten After Ten," and the star is Charles Hutchinson, who is universally known as the Serial King. "Ten After Ten" originally was a 16-episode serial; "The Great Gamble." The "meat" has been taken from it and it has been condensed to a thrilling five-reel picture. Don't miss it.

An Our Gang comedy, entitled "Young Sherlocks," and a new Fox News conclude this most satisfactory program.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

The past week has once more justified the patrons of this popular playhouse its popularity. The bill closing with the week-end, to those who have not seen it, offers an opportunity seldom at hand—to see and enjoy a real triple feature bill. "The William Fox super film, 'The Eleventh Hour,' is the climax of the art in melodramatic production, and its casting shows a discrimination in the assignment of characters which deserves the highest commendation. There is on the same bill a problem play, 'Marriage Morals,' and the subject of dual standards for man and woman has never been more ably adapted. The story is one of both humor and pathos, and is full of tense situations. Then, for the third feature, William Rogers, comedian par excellence, takes the leading part in 'Don't Park Here,' giving to the program all the elements of an evening's profitable amusement which can be assembled.

SCAIFE MAKES CHARGES

Letter to Sec. Mellon Says Agents of Treasury Department Placed on His Trail

WASHINGTON, June 27.—In a letter to Secretary Mellon, made public today, H. L. Scaife, former special agent of the department of justice, referred to some statements made by Mr. Mellon at the trial of Gaston B. Means, in New York yesterday.

"It is not true," the letter said, "that I ever at any time asked you to assign me to investigating prohibition affairs, but before exposing the condition in your department and your connection with the liquor business, I offered to help and assist you if you desired these conditions to be remedied, as my correspondence with you will show. For my pains in the matter, agents of your department were placed on my trail and made futile efforts to find something with which they might discredit me. Although you have gone so far as to deny this in writing, the facts have been proved."

The second annual outing of the children of the Notre Dame de Lourdes school was held yesterday at the Genoa club grounds. Trucks and automobiles left the school at 8 o'clock, filled with more than 400 boys and girls, accompanied by the priests and nuns of the parish. KLAN FIGHT AT D. A. V. CONVENTION

SALT LAKE CITY, June 27.—Twice within a few minutes, disabled American veterans of the World war, in national convention here, yesterday fought off incomplete motions that the delegates go on record as opposing the K.K.K.

Edward A. Byrne, of St. Louis, first to offer a motion, was cut off in a flash by National Commander James A. McFarland, and ruled out of order, but not before the name of the invisible empire had been tossed in the convention hall. Commander McFarland was sustained by a rising vote.

"Our constitution states that the D.A.V. will not take part in any political or religious discussion," he said. "You are therefore out of order, and I ask this convention to uphold me in this ruling."

It was two or three minutes later that the second attempt for a like motion was made and as quickly interrupted.

At today's session the fight to select a national commander and other national officers will occupy the convention.

AGAINST REMOVAL OF SCHOOL AT ANNAPOLIS

WASHINGTON, June 27.—The special naval board which has been investigating the proposed removal of the post graduate school from Annapolis has submitted a report recommending that the institution be maintained there. Secretary Wilbur has taken the report under advisement.

SALVATION ARMY

Next Saturday night will be rally night at the Salvation Army hall on Appleton street, when the young people will give an interesting service, including dialogues, action songs, recitations and other features which will make the service an interesting one. Last Saturday quite a number of the young people of Lowell went to Manchester, N. H., where they took part in the young people's demonstration held there in connection with the convention held in that city. The service will be at 8 o'clock and every one is cordially invited.

EDITOR WHO ATTACKED SMITH IS KLANSMAN

NEW YORK, June 27.—Louis Fowler, editor of the magazine American Standard, who was arrested with his son, Louis Fowler, Jr., on charges of criminal libel, based on an attack against Gov. Smith published in the magazine, is a member of the Ku Klux Klan, according to a statement made in magistrate's court by acting Captain Gegan of the New York police bomb squad. Fowler and his son are being held in $1000 bail for trial in the court of special sessions.

The elder Fowler testified that he did not see the article complained of until after it had been published. His son is a college student at Greenville, S. C.

Jacob Alschuler, the complainant, testified that Fowler, Jr., had sold him a copy of the magazine outside Men-son Square Garden to the effect that Alschuler testified that he made the complaint because the magazine contained libelous attacks on Gov. Smith, the Jews and the Roman Catholic church.

LAWN PARTY A SUCCESS

of Happy Event by St.
Margaret's Parish

The annual lawn party of St. Margaret's parish, which opened yesterday, was brought to a most successful conclusion at the Commodore ballroom last evening. Parishioners and friends from various part of the city attended and all pronounced the affair one of the most enjoyable in the history of the parish.

The afternoon was given over to the children and large numbers turned out to enjoy the long list of novelty and specialty dances given by pupils of Miss Doris Conley. In the evening Miss Conley repeated her program of feature dances, all of which were well executed. A large attendance thoroughly enjoyed the various group and solo numbers.

The children completed their revue at 8.30 after which general dancing was enjoyed until midnight. The various booths along the promenade were well patronized during the evening, particularly the candy wheel, presided over by James Deignan.

The party was under the general supervision of Rev. Charles J. Galligan, assisted by Rev. Andrew F. O'Brien and Rev. Leo A. O'Day.

The drawing for the ten-piece dining room set was deferred to await complete returns of books. Just as soon as all are in the award will be made. William E. Wood acted as general

Alexander Says: Warm Up Seriously —Don't Try for Strike-Out Record

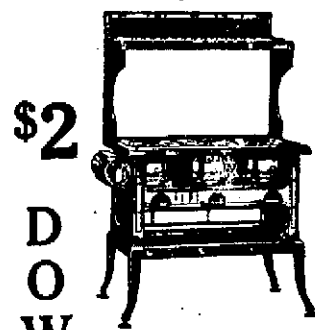

BY GROVER C. ALEXANDER
Famous Pitcher, Chicago Cubs
The successful pitcher combines the head with the arm.
The pitcher who has every natural ability, but doesn't use his head, can't hope to get very far.
The great batters are constantly trying to outmaneuver the pitcher. The only weapon the pitcher has is to play their game, try to outguess them.
The pitcher with the good arm should seek to conserve it. In the spring he should gradually work it into shape. Go slow on spring enthusiasm, save the old arm for the warm weather.
Once the arm is in shape, it is up to the pitcher to try to keep it that way by giving it every attention.
The wise pitcher conserves his strength, always tries to have something in reserve. He doesn't put all his stuff on every ball pitched. Such a system soon wears him out. Rather, he works hardest in the pinch, only.
Never Too Old to Learn
Say little but listen and see much, is my choice bit of advice to every pitcher, regardless of whether he is only an amateur, a promising minor leaguer or a star in the big show.
Always listen to advice from an older pitcher. One can always learn something about the art of pitching. I find it so each year.
I feel that my greatest asset as a pitcher is control. What success I have had in baseball I attribute more to that one thing than all others combined.
Every pitcher should work for control. No matter how much stuff a pitcher may have it avails him nothing if he can't get the ball over.
The greatest mistake most pitchers make in warming up. With many pitchers it is merely playing catch, the loosening up of the muscles. No at-

BY STEPHEN HANNAHAN.

NEW YORK, June 27.—The demonstration national convention, with the

Warms Against Doping Stomach With Artificial Digestants

Most people who suffer, either occasionally or chronically from gas, sourness and indigestion, have now discontinued disagreeable diets, patent foods and the use of harmful drugs, stomach tonics, medicines and artificial digestants, and instead, following the advice so often given in these columns, take a teaspoonful or two tablets of Bileated Magnesia in a little water after meals with the result that their stomach no longer troubles them, they are able to eat as they please and they enjoy much better health. Those who use Bileated Magnesia never dread the approach of meal time because they know this wonderful anti-acid and food corrective, which can be obtained from any good drug store, will instantly neutralize the stomach acidity, sweeten the stomach, prevent food fermentation, and without the slightest pain or discomfort. Try this plan yourself, but be certain to get pure Bileated Magnesia especially prepared for stomach use.—Adv.

On the streets, in the subways, on surface and elevated cars there was no noticeable jam—no more than the everyday rush-hour massed.

True, in the hotels, there was an added rush and the lobbies were unusually well packed with human beings—but a convention of shoe-string salesmen always does as much. Filtrations of Fifth avenue, which was the Avenue of States for the convention parade, is often as gaily bedecked for the frequent gigantic parades in which New York takes little interest, unless halted in a traffic melée caused by the parade.

Had it not been for the screaming newspaper headlines the democrats would have come and gone as noiselessly as a buyer for a mid-west department store.

During all conventions in New York there is noticeable increase in attendance at points of alleged public interest—art galleries, museums, Coney Island, the Statue of Liberty, the Woolworth building, the Aquarium and other places. New Yorkers seldom visit these places which are of so much interest to visitors. They follow the beaten path—much as you follow a routine in your city. There are few adventures here.

When I first came to New York, a few years ago, one of its ardent champions piloted me about.

"You can't see anything like this in Indianapolis," he would say. On a Saturday afternoon the streets

MANY COTTON SPINDLES WERE IDLE IN MAY

(Special to The Sun) WASHINGTON, June 27.—Nearly one-third of the cotton spindles in New England were at a standstill during the month of May, according to a report made public here today by the department of commerce. Of the 18,703,016 spindles in place throughout the New England states, only 13,097,109 of them were operated in that month. In actual figures there were 5,615,847 spindles not used.

While the report indicates that the so-called cotton growing states in the were thronged. He was reveling in it as he guided me along.

"Some crowd, eh?" he suggested enthusiastically.

"Yes," I answered casually, "reminds me of Indianapolis on circus day. Is there a show in town?"

He never had been west. He took my word for it. Never again did he compare New York to any place—at least to me.

Whether because fashion has decreased it or because there was a sale

some place, a large number of New York girls are appearing in high neck shirt waists—as accessories to the stylish tailored suits being worn.

All winter their necks were bared,

despite modish furs. Now that summer is here they imprison their necks in silk stocks.

They appear as uncomfortable as a high school boy in his first full dress suit.

There is a trite saying along Fifth avenue that every time an honest man passes the library at 42nd street

the stone lions guarding the entrance arise and growl.

They haven't moved in years, according to the traffic policeman stationed at the corner.

to hear lions growl and wouldn't disturb them for anything.

New England, the number of spindles operated in that section in May exceeded those operated in New England by 1,997,132.

A gradual decrease in cotton spinning throughout the country is evidenced by the 30,493,165 spindles in operation in May, 1924, as compared with 35,374,018 in May, 1923; 34,041,870

April.

New England averaged 102 working hours per spindle, while the cotton growing states averaged 219. Of the 11,807,816 spindles in place in Massachusetts, only 7,835,591 operated in May. The Bay State has by far the greatest number of spindles in place,

North Carolina being second in rank with 5,817,724. Through the operation of 5,233,775 spindles North Carolina made a record of 1,224,022,466 spindle hours as compared with 1,122,917,398 spindle hours in Massachusetts. This is an average of 96 hours per spindle in the Bay State and 210 in North Car-

Annual Outing Yesterday at Martin Luther Grounds
Was Big Success

From every angle the annual outing of the Washington club at the Martin Luther grounds yesterday was a complete success. Approximately 100 members of the organization attended and all joined in the informal program of sports and contests, arranged by the committee. Twenty automobiles carried the majority of the members to the grounds at 12:30 o'clock, although others came later in the afternoon to swell the number. Luncheon was ready upon arrival and then followed a baseball game between married and unmarried men which necessitated the careful and constant supervision of three umpires. If a score was kept no one bothered very much with it, although both teams put in strong claims for supremacy. The "unmarried" team had on its roster Jack Powers, Aubin Belanger, Jack Hogan, John Farrington, Ed. Duffy, John Walsh, George King, John Adams and John Hanlon. Dr. Ray Gendreau was in a utility role. The "married" team drafted the following nine men: Daniel McQuade, Frank McMartin, Frank McNeil, Fred Bechard, Tom Duffy, Eddie Brennan, Charles Dancause, Bill Farrell and Dr. Fred Morris. The busy umpires were Elias McQuade, Dr. Kearney, Ted Coffey and

James Mulvaney. They drew a cheer when they called the game a draw. The 100-yard dash was won by Tom Duffy with Frank McMartin, second. P. W. Syd was the race for fat men and the three-legged race went to the team of Adams and Coffey. In a golf ball driving contest Fred H. Bourke walloped one 260-odd yards for first prize, with John Farrington second. Much interest was shown in the wrestling match between "Mike" Markham and Jack Hogan, with the former having a shade over his adversary, particularly as they struggled with Mike's back to the sun.

After the program of sports the party adjourned to the pine grove to enjoy a roast beef dinner. The home-ward trip was made during the early evening.

SYD CHAPLIN HANGS

BY JACK JUNGMEYER
N.E.A. Service Writer
HOLLYWOOD, June 27.—Bizarre mood and strange impulse lurk just under the cuticle of the Chaplin brothers, Charlie and Syd.

ever, stimulated curiosity about Syd Chaplin.

Within a few minutes after introduction he made a startling confession, exposing the fantastic incongruity of the clown.

"For years," he said, "I contemplated suicide almost daily. 'It wasn't that I was fed up with life—just that the thought of self-destruction had odd fascination for me. Nor did fear of death deter me from carrying it out. It seems now in retrospect that this was merely the challenge to ultimate adventure. And adventure has always been a passion with me.

"I used constantly to carry a vial with poison enough to kill 10 men. 'During somber moods it became an almost irresistible dare. But one day crossing the Thames bridge the sun and life seemed unusually bright—so I flung it into the river. I had acquired a philosophy and no longer needed the queer comfort and irritation of the deadly vial."

Syd Chaplin is playing in pictures for money, not for fame—to give him means for leisure to indulge the adventure hanker. He has the desire to annex two men of similar taste and reckless mood and, under the proposed name of "The Three Musketeers," to go about the world scotching perilous missions and attacking mysteries. He contemplates this with boyish enthusiasm. Movies—they are but a mere means to an end. "One thing only I dread," admitted Syd. "Old age. Physical activity is such delight to me. Even my philosophy won't work when I think of the encroaching years. I suppose I carry this thought around

He volunteered the wholly unorthodox view, from the picture industry, that movies help incite criminal impulse. "Any agency that makes people dissatisfied with their old status, that prompts them to seek new places, new objectives, that stimulates ambitions or emulation—this has its reflection in accompanying crime. And certainly the motion picture is such an agency. Not in the sense, however, that censorship considers it pernicious."

Syd glanced through his home windows at the synthetic snow mountains of brother Charlie's new picture of Alaska on the adjoining lot. "Charlie's a little low," he commented. "Always is after he completes a film. What he needs is a lot of jesters around to cheer him up. You know we're both given to spells of melancholy."

Funny birds, these Chaplin brothers!

Resolutions committee of national democratic convention following receipt of report of sub-committee which expresses itself as opposed to mention of name of Ku Klux Klan in resolutions and to reaffirmation of 1920 plank on League of Nations, sets to work to complete platform for presentation to convention today.

THREE AUTOMOBILES IN COLLISION HERE

Three automobiles were in collision in Central street near the corner of Hurd street at 11.30 a. m. today, with resulting damages of some extent to each machine. Two cars, a touring car owned by Nathan C. Friedman of 111 Grand street and a one-ton truck owned by Ingham & Mills, Boston road, No. Billerica, were parked near the curb. A Ford touring car, the ownership of which could not be learned, crashed into the rear of the truck which in turn was pushed into the rear of the Friedman machine. Most of the damage was to the front part of the Ford touring car, whose hood cover was ripped off and lights and windshield broken. Two passengers in the touring car were uninjured.

S. Commissioner H. B. Walsh at the Gorham street courthouse today and were granted a continuance until July 22. Each furnished surety in the sum of $500 for appearance at that time.

Georgiana Arbour, said to be the owner of Violet cottage, County road, Lakeview, was summoned before the commissioner in connection with a raid made by federal officers Wednesday night, when, it is alleged, two pints of intoxicating liquor were seized, but did not appear because of illness. Her case was continued until July 11.

AUTOMOBILE FOR SUPT. OF CHARITIES

Purchasing Agent Edward J. Donnelly said today that he would reserve decision for a few days before awarding the contract for supplying a five-passenger sedan for the use of the superintendent of charities. Bids opened yesterday were from the S. H. C. Motor Sales Co., offering a Dord for $1525; Thomas B. Rafter, offering a Hupmobile at $1585, and the Lowell Motor Mart, Inc., offering a Series B, Dodge Bros., at $1385 and a Series A of the same make at $1595, equipped or $1585.15 equipped with extras.

"The Lowell Motor Mart is in a bind," said Mr. Donnelly. "The bid of the S. H. C. Company will not be considered as the call and specifications stated a four-cylinder car is desired and they bid on a six-cylinder car. I will not make any award for a few days."

The purchasing agent has advertised for bids on three triple combination pumping engines and one combined ladder truck and tractor for the fire department.

COMPLETE PLATFORM MAY NOT BE READY UNTIL LATE TODAY

Committee in Accord on All Planks Except Klan and League—Divergence of Opinion on These Problems Has Defied More Than 20 Hours of Deliberation

NEW YORK, June 27.—The Ku Klux Klan and the League of Nations remained today the only stumbling blocks in the way of an agreement among the democratic platform builders.

On all other planks, including even those dealing with prohibition, agriculture and transportation, the platform committee of the democratic national convention was in accord. On the Klan and League, however, the divergent of opinion has defied more than 20 hours of deliberation in sub-committee and many more hours of argument last night in the entire committee.

Republican Corruption

The platform committee toiled over the party declaration until nearly 11 o'clock this morning before giving up the effort to complete its work. It finally adjourned, however, until 2 p. m. today, after instructing the drafting committee to meet at noon for another attempt to reach an agreement on the Klan and League issues.

Thirty-five or more planks had been put into place when the committee adjourned. A little difficulty was encountered until the Klan and League planks were reached.

The first and principal plank, as reported by the sub-committee and approved, deals with republican "inefficiency and corruption," charging the present administration with failure and accusing it of "attempting to impede and stop" the senate investigations. Reference is made specifically to the "League of Nations, the Federal Reserve Bank, the Federal Reserve Board, and the Federal Reserve System," and to the charges against republican members of congress which followed the Chicago grand jury inquiry into the veterans' bureau case.

Relief of Agriculture

For relief of agriculture, the committee would pledge the party to foster creation of national co-operative marketing associations and a corporation or commission to increase exports of farm products; to take steps to bring agriculture to a parity with other industries; to seek reduction of transportation costs on products through development of internal waterways, and to move for revision of the tariff and of rail and water transportation rates. It also calls for an international policy of co-operation designed to revive American exports to Europe, asserting that republican policy has had an opposite effect by retarding economic rehabilitation.

Law Enforcement Plank

The sub-committee's law enforcement declaration was revised by the committee to make the pledge apply specifically to prohibition. It also avails the republican administration's enforcement record, but avoids definite vention an indication of their candidate's strength.

Others, meanwhile, saw in the vote a certain amount of thoroughly human weakness, pointing out that many of the delegates who had no intense interest in either McAdoo or Smith, wanted some amusement, or sleep, and were far from willing to go into a night session, after a seven hour meeting by daylight.

Rain Enters Garden

Rain had begun to fall when the assembling hour approached, and the delegates came trooping in, many of them in a somewhat dampened condition.

Madison Square Garden roof, which is somewhat like the historic roof of the Arkansas traveler's house, soon let those in the hall know that it was raining. Pretty soon the rain drops were trickling down through the decorations hung among the girders overhead and spraying the audiences on the floor.

The admission to the floor yesterday of hundreds of persons having no delegate badges and no other business in the convention caused a great deal of protest to the convention managers. Today somebody made a gesture at least, of tightening up on admissions to the floor.

"Bouncer" at Entrance

It had the exact as usual, of making it difficult for everybody who had business there and easy for everybody who didn't. A hard bodied bouncer stationed at the entrance to the platform chanced out several national committeemen and other dignitaries before he acquired some sense of discrimination.

Five minutes after the hour set for starting business there were still many rows of empty seats in the galleries and probably not one-fifth of the delegates were in their places on the floor. The band leader appeared on the floor, a new repertoire over night and went in for the classical.

Chairman Walsh, evidently expecting something formal today, for he reappeared in the morning dress he wore when he first took the gavel, discarding the white flannel trousers and blue coat in which he appeared yesterday.

Meantime, Senator Pat Harrison, temporary chairman, and several McAdoo men, including Bruce Kremer of Montana, had their heads together in conference on the platform. Chairman Walsh chatted with the clerkman who had been invited to deliver the opening prayer.

Half an hour after the convention was supposed to be in order doing business, delegate spaces still had many empty seats but the aisles were jammed with crowds of people talking and loafing there.

In the crowded conversations going on in the aisles and on the platform, the McAdoo leaders were sending out word to drive the business ahead at full speed and force the convention to start balloting. The Smith people were sending out their scouts seeking strength for the first ballot. There were flying reports that this delegation or that delegation was going to vote for Smith on the first ballot. Such reports always are common in every convention and never are safe until the ballots actually are cast.

Sen. Walsh Confers With Chairman
Senator Walsh of Massachusetts, a member of the sub-committee working on the platform, had a conference with Senator Walsh, presumably giving the low-down on the situation.

At 20 minutes to 12, Chairman Walsh began whacking for order but he whacked carefully, having whacked the heads off two gavelers yesterday.

BAKER URGES ANOTHER CHANCE FOR COX

NEW YORK, June 26.—Declaring that former Governor James M. Cox of Ohio "became a national figure at that moment in 1920 when only a few had the vision to see, or the courage to follow, the new faith—the new political religion of Woodrow Wilson," New York Governor Charles D. Baker, today again placed Cox's name in nomination for the presidency before the democratic national convention.

"Without hesitation or wavering, he fought the long 1920 campaign, debating without doubt, appealing to our higher emotions, battling back the tide of ill will, rising out of the chaos of the world, the very children of despair," Mr. Baker told the convention.

"Since that campaign, this dedication to the cause has remained complete," Mr. Baker said. "He has devoted the intervening years to serious study in the old world and this. He has sought for these reasons, historic, traditional, permanent or temporary, which brought about our act of discomfiture and our present state of might. With pen and voice, and growing power of enthusiasm and of knowledge he has, as a private citizen, sought to inspire us to better and higher thinking, and juster and more enduring policies. Thus Ohio feels that her son, once only her favorite, has become the nation's favorite."

"In her name, I present to you Ohio's three-time governor, her successful executive, her consistent leader, her son who bore the banner of our principles bravely and blamelessly in a national contest, her son who has had the vision to see where America's opportunity now is and has the courage and capacity to lead us to that realization."

"I present to you the name of James M. Cox."

Three terms as her governor, this son of Ohio demonstrated his capacity as an executive. Without turmoil or confusion, the business of a great state was dispatched. He was our war governor. Under his eager, patriotic leadership the people of Ohio gave their quota in men and money to the national effort, and sustained the national cause with sacrificial fervor.

The constitution of the state was remodeled under his leadership, engraving modern and liberal principles and political agencies in response to new conditions. A great body of wholesome legislation was enacted by his cooperation with legislatures not always of his own political faith, until, in many of those new problems which have come with increasing congestion and the development of an industrial society, men search the Ohio statute books for the laws which he caused to be enacted as examples of sane social legislation, in which, in private, have proved wholesome and helpful.

The past is safe with Washington, Lincoln and Wilson. The challenge lies in the future—the immediate future. Our task is to search out the opportunity, state the cause and choose a leader. The leader must fit the cause.

Nationalistic aspirations have been nursed as promising possible relief from intolerable hardship or as the only safe defense against aggressive European cynics and reactionaries have conjured, as they have for centuries conjured, with the fears and miseries of peoples and counseled that military armed readiness which all history touches as apt to be provocative of the very disaster which it pretends to avert.

On the other hand, even in such a world, the first grand experiment in international co-operation has been making and succeeding. The league at Geneva has gathered to it the great liberals of the old world. It has yielded nothing to force. It has defied skepticism and dared to believe, as liberals always believe, in the power of good-will. It has fought disease and vice, lifted Austria and Hungary back into the possibility of orderly national life, repatriated the war prisoners, established a world court, prevented four wars and stopped one, set on foot the only promising plan of disarmament yet devised, and never moved a single soldier.

Between these two sets of forces the conflict is on. There the battle rests now. Throughout the world the forces of militarism and imperialism are arrayed against the forces of liberalism. Within the next four years one or the other of these philosophies will prevail—which we are probably determining here today.

The present administration has transferred our sympathy in this contest to the wrong side. Under the inspired guidance of Woodrow Wilson, America won the faith of the world to submit understanding for misunderstanding, to foresee and prevent causes of hostility, and by engaging together in great constructive work for the common good, to build up an asset of good will which, in the hour of crisis, would enable the conscience of the world to compose threatened conflict."

VAN NUYS PRESENTS NAME OF RALSTON

NEW YORK, June 26.—Fred Van Nuy of Indianapolis today placed Samuel M. Rayston in nomination for the presidency.

Van Nuy emphasized Ralston's ability as a vote-getter, and his record for economy while governor of Indiana, particularly. Had he been president in recent months, Van Nuy said, he would not have been "stolen and silent," but would have been a man of action.

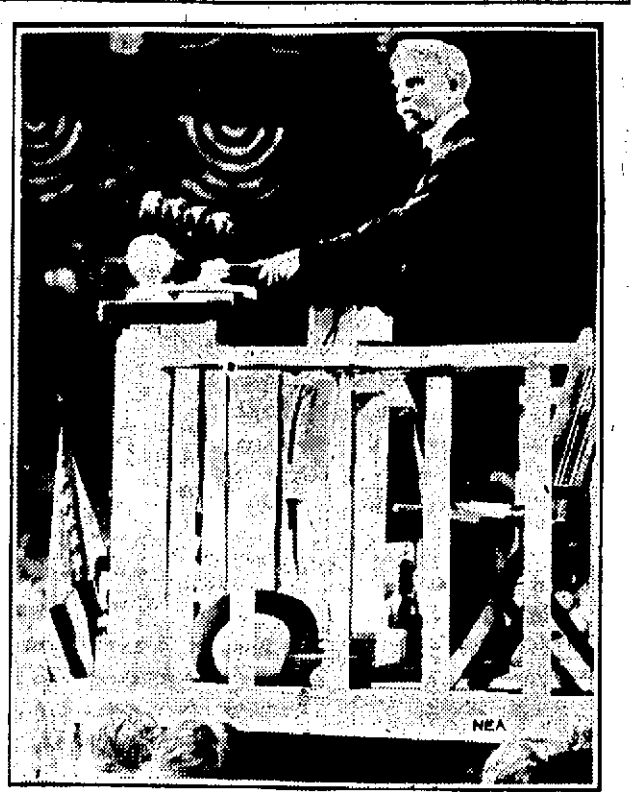

"On behalf of the united and loyal democracy of Indiana, I desire to place in nomination for the presidency the name of a man who is both available and dependable in this hour of necessity," he said.

"On behalf of the nation which hangs expectantly upon the results of this convention, we present the name of Samuel M. Rayston of Indiana for the presidency."

NAME OF GOV. RITCHIE BEFORE CONVENTION

NEW YORK, June 26.—The name of Albert C. Ritchie, governor of Maryland, was placed before the convention by Howard Bruce of that state, who declared the Maryland governor was "the foremost champion of the doctrine of less paternalistic, bureaucratic government in Washington and more freedom of the several states to regulate their affairs."

"Maryland offers you the name of a political leader of the kind that this party and this country sorely needs," he said.

GOV. DAVIS NAMED BY CONG. AYRES

NEW YORK, June 26.—Jonathan M. Davis, governor of Kansas, was placed in nomination for president at the democratic national convention today as "a fair representative in its truest sense of the progressive west," and as a "forcible executive who would inspire the confidence of congress in his leadership."

Representative William A. Ayres of Wichita spoke for Kansas, in formally placing his governor before the convention, and he asserted that the choice of the Sunflower State had demonstrated that he could carry his message to the nation as he had so successfully carried it to the people of his own state.

"People everywhere, but more especially in the mid-west and the great northwest, in the agricultural sections," Mr. Ayres said, "are looking for, yes, demanding something more than the mere carrying of the mails, the acts and noble deeds of the past. They are expecting something more than a platform of pledges. Performance can be accomplished only by a forcible executive, who can legislate, who can inspire, who can lead, who can carry the message to the nation as he has so successfully carried it to the people of his own state."

"There is no use nor place in this party for two reactionary political parties. One is enough. The platform of the conservatives or reactionaries has been made and the nominees announced."

"It will be remembered the agriculturalist was requested during the war by the chief executive to double and redouble his efforts to supply the nation with foodstuffs. This he did ungrudgingly and patriotically, which accounts in a large measure for his disability at this time. He was not given a 10 per cent plus contract, and he was not guaranteed by his government a 10 per cent return on his investment. He was not financed by the government in his enterprise of furnishing food and by reason thereof he is at this time suffering a disability. Therefore, if a man I feel was thrilled when he saw that wonderful constructive plank of the republican platform which pledges a continuing and increasing solidarity for all suffering any disability, as a result of service to this nation in time of war."

"I said a few months ago, the people are demanding a forcible executive, who can and will inspire confidence in congress of his leadership. I intend to present to you for consideration the name of a man I feel would forcefully impress his leadership and statesmanship on congress and the nation; who would be a fair adjuster of the conflicting interests of this country; who is right on all questions affecting the welfare of the people; who is a true democrat in the truest meaning of the word progressive."

"He is a fair representative in its truest sense of the progressive west. He is a farmer, a real dirt farmer, who has been chosen as one of the greatest commonwealths of the union. In that position he has demonstrated his ability, honesty and courage. He is capable of carrying his message to the people of the entire nation as he did to the people of his own state. He is not only a fa-

SEN. FERRIS PLACED IN NOMINATION

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, N. Y., June 26.—Senator Woodbridge Ferris of Michigan was placed in nomination for the presidency by A. M. Cummins of Lansing. Denouncing Newberryism and declaring the need of the time was "a man whose honest high purpose and courage had been proven beyond all question," Mr. Cummins offered the name of the Michigan senator.

to resumption of the roll call for nominations today, and it had been made known that the remaining states had at least five more names to offer, with seconding speeches also in order. The big, prearranged, deafening demonstrations were over, however, and today's session, set for 10:30 a. m., eastern daylight saving time, offered in this respect sharp contrast and a measure of rest.

The formal program for today made provision for ratification of the state caucus selections for the new national committee and for taking up the platform, but when the delegates assembled, there was little prospect of a report from the platform committee until late in the day, if then. The drafting sub-committee had been ordered to try once more to reach an agreement on the Ku Klux Klan and League of Nations planks, and the platform committee as a whole was not called to receive its report until 2 o'clock.

Candidates Named Yesterday

The candidates formally in nomination when the convention assembled today included:

- William G. McAdoo of California.
 - Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York.
 - Senator Underwood of Alabama.
 - Senator Robinson of Arkansas.
 - Senator Ralston of Indiana.
 - Former Senator Willard Saulsbury of Delaware.
 - Gov. Jonathan Davis of Kansas.
 - Gov. Ritchie of Maryland.
 - Former Secretary Houston.
 - Senator Ferris of Michigan.
- Members of the various confederating camps had reached a degree of unanimity on one point at least, this morning: They were all willing to say they were pleased with how things went their way yesterday. Otherwise, though all seemed to be working a little harder, their unanimity in this respect was disrupted by their adherence to the variety of methods they have maintained.

Victory for Smith Forces

The Smith workers pointed to yesterday's adjournment until today as a victory in the first test of strength with the McAdoo forces, which had favored a night session to finish the nominations. The McAdoo managers, at the same time expressed gratification over the same vote—555 to 513½—on the ground that it gave the con-

Convention Notabilities

Portions of Convention Recorded When Phonograph Was Linked With Radio

KANSAS CITY, June 27.—Portions of the proceedings of the democratic national convention were recorded for all time here yesterday when the phonograph was successfully linked with radio.

A few seconds after a radio receiving set in the Warner recording laboratory brought in the convention proceedings, they were reproduced clearly on a phonograph.

Officials of the laboratory said the experiment constituted the first successful attempt to make clear phonographic records by the transference of radio sound vibrations onto wax discs.

The reproduction of the radio transmission was made possible by means of an amplification device, constructed on the principle of a loud speaker and connected to the phonographic recording device, J. J. Warner, superintendent of the laboratories, explained. The same hook up has been used in experiments in making tiny disc records for the Unity School of Christianity.

Mr. Warner declared the text was another step in the radio reception well as in phonography, making possible the recording of radio programs. The experimenter plans to mail to certain speakers at the democratic convention, tiny disc records of their utterances.

Several days with the New Hampshire plaything of Governor Brown, showed its swing to Smith when its banner, surrounded by practically all of the Green Mountain delegates, joined the three other New England states at the head of the New York delegation.

Cake Walk Around Garden

Then around the garden in a wildly exciting cake walk went the dozen delegation banners. The East Side "Newsies" and the "Bowery Kids," boys and girls together, who had featured the state Smith day, sang ear-borer in the garden. The girls in the galleries were off on another New York free-for-all.

And General Cole was being lionized all the while, not only by the Massachusetts delegation, but also by Smith men from all parts of the country. Stepping from the platform to his place with his state delegation, he was slapped, patted and hugged by enthusiastic supporters of Gov. Smith.

McAdoo Men Angry

That last Smith demonstration, started by the second speech of the Massachusetts leader, aroused the ire of the McAdoo forces more than anything that had taken place previously in the course of the proceedings. A Kentucky delegate, jumping to a chair as the walk around the hall came to an end, angrily demanded that the man in white, that the convention be no longer interrupted in its proceedings and that the delegates be allowed to proceed to the transaction of business.

"The inquiry is entirely pertinent," answered Chairman Walsh, himself a McAdoo supporter, "and if this convention is not to be allowed to go ahead with its business without further unnecessary interruptions in this city, the chair will entertain a motion to go somewhere else."

Shouts of "Go ahead, you won't win anywhere else," came from various parts of the garden and added to the peevishness of the chairman and his McAdoo associates.

Next came a point of order from the same Kentucky delegate, to the effect that persons were taking part in the Smith demonstration who had no right to places on the floor of the convention.

"The chair believes the point of order should be sustained, if it could be proved, and the chair believes that there are many on the floor who are not delegates or alternates to this convention."

Earlier in the day Massachusetts together with Rhode Island and part of the delegations from Connecticut and Vermont, had contributed materially to the excitement of the big Smith show. When Franklin D. Roosevelt finished a wonderful nominating speech, the Bay State delegation stepped into the foreground with the biggest display of the convention.

General Cole and James H. Vahey followed close behind the state standard, each of them wearing blue hats bearing the name of Smith.

Mrs. Colin McDonald, in charge of the work of the women's division at the democratic state committee and a delegate-at-large, led a group of Massachusetts women in the round-the-hall parade.

Former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald, who has been working hard for Smith throughout the convention to date, was in line, and at one time or another practically every one of the 114 delegates and alternates from Massachusetts participated, while hundreds of Massachusetts visitors to the convention helped to increase the army of paraders and swell the chorus for Smith.

Crowd Psychology of Convention

Revealed in Photograph and Story

This is a photograph of mental attitude. Occasionally motion pictures reveal thoughts of actors. Rarely is a mental process caught in one photograph. Notice the attitude of the delegates assembled in the democratic convention hall at New York, specially the women in the last group. The picture taken in one of those frequent moments of apathy that come in a spirited gathering, shows that little attention is being paid to the speaker.

N.E.A. Service Writer

CONVENTION HALL, NEW YORK, June 26.—What is the attitude of a convention toward the events transpiring before it?

Pretty much the same as that of any circus crowd.

A spellbinding keynote may be hanging precariously upon a slender phrase.

He may be balancing over so neatly on a thin wire of political policy—

Yet there are thousands gazing at the other rings and stages and commentaries.

"There's Mrs. So-and-So, funny barnstormer from Such-and-Such."

Or—"Look! There's Bill Bryan up there! And Mack."

There seems to be little doubt about it—the roving eyes have it. If it were a circus, they don't want to miss anything. They have been told that a convention is full of thrills. It is. But there are times when only the trained seals perform. Then is the period of necks craned at every angle and are.

But let the fringe of hysteria be touched and all eyes focus as directly as any camera lens.

It's an interesting study in psychology—those convention crowds; a psychology somewhere between that of a schoolroom, a sight-seeing wagon and a circus tent.

They all want the clowns to come on. They all wait expectantly to see what will happen to the boy who put over a wicked shot with the beam-shooter.

For many of them it is their first shooter.

GEN. COLE STIRS CONVENTION IN SECONDING SMITH'S NOMINATION

Massachusetts Man Starts Demonstration Second Only in Its Spontaneity and Enthusiasm to the Big Smith Spectacle Which Followed Roosevelt's Speech

CONVENTION HALL, NEW YORK, June 27.—Massachusetts' support of Gov. Smith, forcefully presented to the democratic national convention yesterday afternoon, aroused the delegates to a demonstration second only in its spontaneity and enthusiasm to the big Smith day spectacle which followed the nomination of New York's governor by Franklin D. Roosevelt earlier in the day.

Cole Outstanding Figure

Gen. Cole easily outshone any of the other seconding speakers in the convention.

His appearance on the platform late yesterday afternoon gave the convention the first real touch of Smith support outside of New York itself.

His declaration that he valued the mandate of the people of Massachusetts and his reference to Gov. Smith as "the sincere friend of the service men," brought to the minds of the delegates the potentiality of a large block of votes from New England and gave the Smith cause a decided boost.

It brought the standards of Vermont, Rhode Island and Connecticut alongside of that of New York and started a new outburst of Smith enthusiasm that lasted for nearly 20 minutes. It emphasized the futility of the candidacy of Gov. Brown of New Hampshire for the presidential nomination, for although the stands of New Hampshire and Maine remained in their places, it showed that the cause of the chief executive of the Granite state is a hopeless one, for the other four New England state groups will pay little attention to it for the balance of the convention.

The speech of Gen. Cole seconding the nomination of Gov. Smith stood out also in that it was brief, although it summarized masterfully the New England democratic ideals regarding the man himself, his humane instincts and characteristics.

Cole's Eulogy of Smith

"This convention must nominate a fighting leader who can win," declared Gen. Cole in his opening.

"He must be a man whose public and private life is as clean as a household's loom."

"He must have magnetism, exceptional executive ability, independence, courage and a progressive record in public office. He must be able to attract independent voters. But above all, he must have human sympathy and the confidence of the plain people of this country."

"He must have the acute perception to detect corruption in public life and the Spartan courage to at once proceed against the corruptionists."

"And finally, he must have the voting strength to carry the doubtful states, based not on what we hope or think he may do, but upon actual accomplishments."

"Such a leader is the candidate whose nomination I am about to second."

Friend of Service Men

"His record is an open book, praised alike by republicans as well as democrats. His position on every public question is known. He never dodges. He never equivocates. We service men know him as our sincere friend."

"The people know him and love him. The rise of this boy of the tennements is the most appealing story of our generation. His career is a shining example, a hope and an inspiration to every child of America."

"A great citizen, a great governor, a great democrat, he is the most remarkable character in political life in America today."

"His nomination spells success. He will carry New York, New Jersey, Connecticut, New Hampshire, and even beat Calvin Coolidge in his home state of Massachusetts."

"He has the idealism of a Wilson, the dash and magnetism of a Roosevelt, the splendid courage of a Cleveland, the political knowledge of a Jackson, with the heart and sympathy of a Lincoln."

"Carrying out the orders given to me by the democratic voters in a state-wide primary, in the name of Massachusetts I second the nomination of Alfred E. Smith."

Bay State Stars Parade

As he mentioned the name of his candidate the furore started. Despite the fact that the delegates had well nigh exhausted themselves physically demonstrating their love for Gov. Smith, the appeal of a New England Yankee, a veteran of the World War, fired them with renewed vigor.

The Massachusetts delegates started with Standard Bearer Jerry Watson in the lead. The state banner went across the hall and was placed high beside that of New York, where the Empire State delegation was seated. Then came in turn the standards of Connecticut, Rhode Island, New Jersey, Wisconsin, Illinois, Pennsylvania, Minnesota, Alaska and Hawaii.

SECURING ADMISSION TO NAVAL ACADEMY

The commander of the Boston district naval recruiting stations has issued the following statement to prospective recruits concerning the opportunities of enlisted men securing admission to the naval academy at Annapolis:

"The United States government offers you, absolutely free of charge, a four-year university education at the U. S. Naval Academy at Annapolis, Maryland. This offer is made through the navy department and is in accordance with legislation enacted by congress which permits the appointment to Annapolis, every year, of 100 enlisted men from the U. S. navy. Entrance to Annapolis, particularly from the ranks of the navy, is not hard. It is in fact quite easy because navy men who are high school graduates or who have completed three years in high school are eligible for the U. S. Naval Academy preparatory school. This school convenes December 1st and continues until the entrance examinations to Annapolis are held on April 1st. The sole purpose of the U. S. Naval Academy preparatory school is to prepare naval enlisted men for the entrance examinations for Annapolis. The pay of a midshipman at Annapolis is $350.00 a year. To this is added nearly $1.00 per day called a "ration," making an equivalent salary of over $1,000.00 per year. Part of this money is set aside as a graduation fund which permits each midshipman on graduation day to draw about $1,000.00 in cash. "No social, racial or religious lines are permitted at Annapolis. Merit, and merit only, governs a man's career there. Former navy enlisted men have held some of the highest athletic and scholastic honors in the gift of the authorities and of their classmates. "Those applicants who enlist before August 15th are eligible for the Annapolis class entering next June. Chief R. R. Frederick, local recruiting officer, will be pleased to give any further information concerning the above at his office in the Fairburn building.

TIME SEEKERS GET OPERATOR'S GOAT

The day telephone operator at the Central fire station is up in arms over the number of telephone requests he has to answer daily for the correct time. "Honest," he said today, after

On several occasions recently, the switchboard at the station has been blocked by such calls when men on duty at fires have tried to call in for additional equipment or supplies and considerable time was lost in getting the calls through. This is a critical situation for fire spreads rapidly and a few moments lost in getting equipment to the blaze may mean a conflagration.

Time signals are sounded on the

bell alarm system at 8 a. m., 1 p. m. and 6 p. m. and persons desiring to set their clocks or watches should do so at one of these three times. And if persons must call the station for the time, they should be careful not to do so after a fire alarm is sounded and before the recall is struck.

EXPLOSION IN FIREWORKS PLANT AT CANTON

CANTON, June 27.—With a roar that could be heard for miles, the mixing house of the American Fireworks Company's plant on Cedar street, exploded shortly before 5 o'clock last night within a few minutes after the 55 employees had quit work for the day. No one was injured.

The Canton fire department responded and made short work of the small fire that were set by burning embers hurled in all directions about the premises. The blast also tore a hole in the ground about 30 feet square. The fact that the building was mostly of steel construction is believed to have saved other structures from damage.

The mixing house contained a quantity of gun powder, sulphur and other materials used in making up fireworks. The damage is estimated at nearly $15,000. The plant consisted of 12 stone buildings and two steel structures, one of which was destroyed in the explosion.

NO RAIN CHECKS

Fans Don't Need The min. Milwaukee—It Never Rains on Saturdays or Sundays

By N.B.A. Service
MILWAUKEE, June 27.—"The luckiest man in baseball," That's what Milwaukee fans call Otto Borchert, president of the local American Association team.

Five years ago "O. B." purchased the Brewers from Clarence Rowland, present American League umpire. In all this time he has not lost a single Saturday or Sunday game at home.

Not only has Borchert seen his team play with no rain interference but he

has amassed a fortune in sales of players that cost little more than a song.

To wit: Denny Gleason, Boston Braves, cost $100, sold for $25,000.
Joe Hauser, cost nothing, sold for $25,000.

Al Simmons, cost nothing, sold for $50,000.

Glenn Myatt, cost nothing, included in Joe Hauser deal, sold for $50,000.

Wid Matthews, cost $1000, sold for $15,000.

Jimmy Cooney, cost $2500, sold to St. Louis Cardinals for $15,000.

Hauser and Simmons, Milwaukee boys, came direct from the sandlots, the same fields that produced Fred Luderus and Han Felsch, well-known big leaguers of days gone by.

EARLY RELEASE OF IRISH PRISONERS

DUBLIN, June 27.—Statements made today indicated the early release of the remaining political prisoners of the Free State government.

Replying to Deputy McGrath, President Cosgrave said that he would not answer at present, whether it would be proposed to release Austin Stack and other republican leaders before the adjournment of the Dail next month.

CUTTING EGGS

You can slice hard boiled eggs without crumbling them if you use a knife dipped in boiling water and wiped dry.

STITCHING CANVAS

Before attempting to stitch heavy fabric such as canvas or khaki on the machine rub the hems and seams with hard yellow soap and the needle will penetrate easily.

SANDWICHMEN HECKLE DELEGATES

Facetious comments on various platform issues were waved in the eyes of delegates to the democratic convention when a veritable gauntlet of sign bearers, in all sorts of garbs, had to be run by persons attending. Convention fans bore a pacifistic slogan, "Law, Not War." Pickets carried signs reading "Law, Not Law" and "Outlaw War" signed by the "Bunk Peace Prizers." Another picket was made up to resemble Wm. Anderson, former anti-saloon league chief in New York, now in prison.

MRS. MILLER SECONDS SMITH'S NOMINATION

NEW YORK, June 25.—Gov. Smith was urged for the democratic presidential nomination as "one who has completely built his life upon the ten commandments and the teachings of our Lord and Master," by Mrs. Carroll Miller of Pennsylvania, in an address at the democratic national convention today, seconding the nomination of the New York executive.

"Because of his tenderness to his mother, of his devotion to his wife and children, of the consecration of his public life to the welfare of his fellow man, of his untarnished honesty and courage, I know this man to be one who has completely built his life upon the ten commandments and the teachings of our Lord and Master," Mrs. Miller said with reference to Gov. Smith.

Wisconsin for Smith

Martin L. Lueck of Wisconsin seconding the nomination of Gov. Alfred E. Smith, today in the democratic national convention declared Wisconsin was for Smith because the country needs in Washington a style of virile leadership now sadly lacking.

"We are for Alfred E. Smith," he said, "because for more than 20 years of public service he has given constant assurance of an unflinching acceptance of the obligations of public duty and of a complete subordination of private to public interests."

"We are for Smith for president because under his leadership we can carry the lagging state and the democracy will triumph in the nation."

MATRIMONIAL

A pretty June wedding took place Wednesday evening at the new St. Patrick's rectory when Miss Catherine Delehanty, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Delehanty of 29 North Franklin court became the bride of Mr. John Costello of Dracut. Rev. Joseph Curtin officiated. The couple was attended by Miss Grace Delehanty, sister of the bride, and Mr. Raymond Costello of

New York, brother of the groom, served at the home of the bride's parents. Guests came from all over New England, New York and Connecticut. The bride's gift to her attendant was a platinum ring, and the groom's gift to his attendant was a pair of platinum cuff links. The couple left Lowell on an extended honeymoon tour.

COMMON SENSE

When a merchant advertises his wares in a newspaper, he does not appeal to the paper, but to its readers. He solicits the patronage of those readers whether he agrees with the policy of the paper or not.

To refrain from advertising in a paper of wide circulation simply because he does not agree with the editor on all public questions, is not using common sense. It is a form of business suicide. It has sent many short-sighted business men into bankruptcy. A dealer might as well put a sign over his store notifying all who do not think as he does that he does not want their patronage. Readers of newspaper advertisements know when and where their patronage is welcome.

EQUIPMENT OBSOLETE

Lt. Maughan Says American Air Service a "Pitifully Inadequate Force"

SAN FRANCISCO, June 27.—The only modern airplane suitable for air combat now on the Pacific coast is that in which Lieut. Russell L. Maughan made his 22 hour transcontinental flight, last Monday, according to a statement made by him yesterday at a luncheon club meeting and again last night in an address broadcast by radio.

The American air service was characterized by Lieut. Maughan as "a pitifully inadequate force of men handling obsolete equipment."

KLANSMEN HOOT EX-GOV.

J. C. WALTON

HEAVENOR, Okla., June 27.—A political speech by J. C. Walton, former governor of Oklahoma was delayed half an hour last night while several hundred hooded men marched in circles about the platform hooting and jeering. They carried a banner: "We'll have no Jack in the senate."

Mr. Walton is a candidate for United States senator.

Aside from the demonstration there was no disorder and Mr. Walton spoke when the hooded band disappeared in the darkness.

IRISH MINISTER IN WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, June 27.—Secretary Hughes was advised by the British ambassador yesterday that the British government deemed it desirable that the handling of matters at Washington exclusively relating to the Irish Free State, should be confined to the Irish minister plenipotentiary accredited to the United States.

Questions which are of imperial concern, or which affect other dominions in the commonwealth in common with the Irish Free State, will continue to be handled as heretofore by the embassy.

Secretary Hughes replied that this government was in cordial agreement with the purpose, and would be glad to receive a minister plenipotentiary of the Irish Free State.

GRAND JURY REPORTS ON CRIMINALS

BOSTON, June 27.—The great majority of criminals are between 20 and 25 years old. That's the conclusion reached by the Suffolk county grand jury, which just completed six months' service, during which time it considered 889 cases, a high total, Dist. Atty. O'Brien reported last night.

Would Remove Prison

Of the matters brought before the grand jury, 874 true bills were found, 99,400 bills and 88 matters merged. Besides disposing of all these cases, the grand jury made a tour of inspection of all the penal institutions in the district.

The administration of the different institutions were reported favorably by the jury. But they suggested the removal of state's prison to Deer Island, the house of correction to Long Island and the Long Island hospital to Parker Hill.

More drastic laws for stock brokers was suggested by the grand jury to the incoming legislature.

Deplore Lack of Religion

Considering the number of youthful criminals, the report of the grand jury stated "The need of a religious appreciation in the community was never greater. Imprisonment of the wrongdoer is a personal punishment, but far more important than personal punishment is the removal of the causes that produce the offender."

"If may be that the civic uplift societies, or the parent-teacher associations of the different schools, or the religious bodies functioning in the respective parts of the community may make more vigorous effort to stifle this apparent criminal tendency. Whether it be due to economic reasons, to improper environment, or unfortunate home surroundings, the grand jurors cannot say, but they deeply deplore this situation."

WALDEN ACTING DEAN AT YALE

NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 27.—Prof. Percy T. Walden has been appointed acting dean of freshmen at Yale, during 1923-5, in place of Dean Roswell P. Angier, who will be professional lecturer in physiology at the University of Chicago, during the year, according to announcement at Yale today.

NO TRACE OF MARTIN'S WRECKED PLANE

SEATTLE, Wash., June 27.—Two expeditions out of Port Moller, on the Aleutian peninsula have failed to find any trace of the wrecked plane of Major Frederick L. Martin, former commander of the American Army round-the-world air squadron, according to Lieut. Clayton Bissell, who arrived here yesterday from the north.

Mellen, Herman Brase of the State Normal school, Charles Barton of the Lowell Boys' club, Assistant Scout Master John Lambert, J. and William Lindsey, and William Sabre, last year's cook. Dr. A. V. Isherwood will be camp physician. On Sunday there will be non-sectarian services with songs, talks and stories. Arrangements will be made whereby Catholic scouts will be able to attend mass.

MINOR CASES IN THE DISTRICT COURT

In district court this morning two liquor cases were disposed of in short order. Rose Ferris, charged with illegal keeping, was fined $100, and Flan-

San Osman, maintaining a liquor nuisance, was also fined $100. An illegal keeping charge against Sarah Snyder was continued until tomorrow. Harry Gray, charged with being a vagrant, was sent to the state farm. Sarah Desautel, drunkenness, was sentenced to the state farm. A sentence of four months in the house of correction was imposed on Joseph Kurovski, for non-support of his wife and three minor children. A finding of not guilty was returned in the case of Fred McCormack, charged with assault and battery on M. J. Kiernan. Theresa Renna, assault and battery, was continued to next Thursday.

ITEMS OF INTEREST IN WALL STREET

NEW YORK, June 27.—Decreases of more than $13,000,000 in gross revenue for May and $2,847,418 in net operating income compared with the same month last year, are reported by the Pennsylvania railroad. For the five months of 1923 gross was $264,234,931, against $291,742,522 in the corresponding period of 1923, while net operating income totalled $30,983,187 compared with $33,507,895, a year ago. Chicago & Northwestern also had a sharp drop in May net operating income to $338,652, against $1,045,981 in May last year.

Wall street hears that plans for foreign borrowing to meet capital requirements of large exporting interests of Finland are being actively fostered by the Finnish government, which regards the plan as one of great economic importance to the country. It is proposed that the fund be borrowed abroad through the medium of the new industrial mortgage bank, secured by first mortgages on the property of the borrowers, will be guaranteed by the government.

With the surplus of funds again piling up, coupled with a further ease of time money rate and outside call loans, prospective borrowers are speeding up their preparation to place new bond issues before the bloom is off the bond market. Because of the recent sharp rise in foreign issues, bankers are said to be about ready to offer a part of the Hungarian loan. America's share is expected to about $10,000,000 with the bonds bearing a 7½ per cent. coupon and offered to yield over 8 per cent.

Mutual savings banks which had paid a per cent interest for years are opposing a movement to reduce rates on savings deposits, growing out of the Federal Reserve bank cut in its discount rate to 3½ per cent.

Spanish turbans of rich brocades with hanging ends of the fabric or with heavy silk fringe dripping off one side are to be exploited for fall.

MACREADY'S LEAP FOR LIFE

This is the artist's conception of the parachute jump of Lieut. John A. Macready, shatterer of air records, near McCook Field, Dayton, O. The army aviator was forced to make the leap when his engine "died" while he was returning from a flight to Columbus, O. He cut loose while 1500 feet above ground. Farmers found him dangling from a limb of a tree and cut him down. The lower picture shows all that was left of his plane.

Lineman Killed While Working On Light Pole

Lumbus, Matthew Temperance Institute and the Sacred Heart parish. "Joe," as he was familiarly known among a wide circle of friends, was a big hearted, generous and jovial young man. He made friends quickly and always retained their friendship. He was a good musician and took great pleasure in playing accompaniments for groups of friends at the rooms of the Mathews and Knights of Columbus. He also took part in several musical productions presented by these two organizations. Several years ago he was a prominent semi-professional ball player, being identified with the Knights of Columbus team, and later played with the N. E. T. & T. team. He was employed by the Telephone Company for a number of years before joining the Electric Light Company force.

He is survived by his wife, Anna (Ryan) Finnegan and two children; his mother and father, Daniel T. and Ellen Finnegan and eight brothers and sisters, Timothy J., a letter carrier; Edward J., also employed by the Lowell Electric Light Corp.; Margaret V., Mary, William, Helen, Daniel and Frank Finnegan.

Lawrence General hospital at 1.30 this morning by the two Lowell men, who failed to make their identity known at the hospital, but who were later identified as the result of the quick work of one of the hospital employees in noting the number of the machine in which Conway was carried to the hospital.

Hospital officials notified the Lawrence police that Conway was suffering from a bullet wound and an investigation was immediately started. Questioned at the hospital, Conway at first gave his name as Francis Jennings of 25 Warwick street, and told several conflicting stories of how he was injured. One of the police assigned to the case suspected that Conway was a Lowell officer and local headquarters was notified. Lieutenant Patrick Frawley was sent to the down-river city and made positive identification of Conway's identity. Conway's final story of the shooting was to the effect that while walking along East Prospect street a speeding automobile passed him and as it did so, several shots were fired, one taking effect in his shoulder. He reiterated this story to Lieut. Frawley when the latter questioned him.

However, the Lawrence police had been notified of shooting at the Lynch home and Patrolmen Francis P. Devlin and Nicholas Fortune were sent there. They found Lynch asleep in bed. As he was in a drunken condition, they report, it was difficult to awaken him and after succeeding in this, he said there had been no quarrel or shooting in his house.

His daughter was later questioned and said that a party of men had come to the house during the evening. Some time about midnight she heard sounds of quarreling and loud and abusive language from the men, who had gone outside the house; then she heard several shots and said she could tell from the subdued voices of the men that someone had been shot.

It was through the quick work on the part of the hospital attendants that the identity of the Lowell men concerned was found, for one attendant took the number of the automobile in which Conway was taken to the hospital, and this was the number of the Moon Auto Agency in this city.

Upon the arrival of the police to investigate the case, Officers Joseph Jordan and Michael Murphy were assigned to guard Conway at the hospital, but this guard was removed when Inspector Morrissey returned after questioning the local men. From Inspector Morrissey it was learned that no further arrests are expected in connection with the case as he believes that Conway was shot while acting as a "good Samaritan" to Lynch.

At the hospital this noon, it was said that the bullet injury in itself is not serious and that Conway should recover quickly unless blood poisoning sets in.

At the local police station it is said that Officer Conway was off duty last night. He was seen about the square early in the evening and was later seen with one or two companions in fort is made to concentrate on their pitching.

How to Develop Control

When warming up to start a game I make an effort to put some thought back of every ball I throw.

Figuring the batter is weak on a fast ball inside, letter high, I try to throw several balls at an imaginary spot, conforming with the batter's weakness.

Then I try to keep the next four or five balls low and on the outside, on the theory that the next imaginary batsman doesn't like that style of pitching.

Then I switch to the curve ball or slow one, figuring the batsman is weak on such deliveries.

Throughout the warmup period I try to do something with every ball I throw. I have an object in mind and seek to attain results.

Never Criticize Teammates

Such kind of pitching develops perfect control. The mere throwing of the ball to the catcher is worthless from the standpoint of acquiring control.

Don't let errors worry you, destroy your poise. Never criticize a fellow player. Just remember the player who has erred feels even worse than you do about it.

To sum up my career in the big league as pitcher, I would say that the success that has been kind enough to come my way has been due to a willingness to work hard, listen to advice, and observe carefully the way the star pitchers work.

NO HORNS NEEDED ON LOUD SPEAKER

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., June 27.—A single loud speaker in the center of a large gathering may replace the many horns heretofore attached together to throw sounds in all directions.

The new instrument is the invention of C. W. Hewlett, physicist, of the General Electric laboratories here. Not only does the new loud speaker send out voices from two sides at the same time, but it has no need for horns.

One of the first uses for this instrument if its installation in the tourist camping grounds here. It is being used to furnish entertainment to the motorists, broadcast by the city. The device consists of two large coils of wire mounted close together and separated by a thin aluminum diaphragm. There are no permanent magnets in it, and it merely causes the diaphragm to vibrate directly through radial interaction of the magnetic fields produced by the coils.

BROADCASTS PLANNED TO BRING HELP

By N.E.A. Service
DETROIT, Mich., June 27.—A national communication system by which broadcasting stations may be used to transplant the telegraph and telephone during emergencies, has been devised by S. W. Edwards of this city.

Edwards is radio supervisor for the Eighth district, of which Detroit is headquarters. He has submitted his scheme to the department of commerce, whose officials it is expected will study it and perhaps adopt it as a general emergency communication plan.

The idea originated, Edwards explains, after storms in various parts of the country had practically shut off whole sections from the rest of the country by tearing down wires and crippling all other forms of communication.

According to Edwards, in such emergencies, broadcasting stations could well replace the wires and so maintain transmission of information from stricken areas.

"This emergency service," explains Edwards in his report, "should be prepared to handle on short notice messages relating to trains, press reports, urgent commercial and government."

messages, flood and storm warnings, and requests for assistance in case of uncontrollable fires."

Edwards' scheme would assign to each broadcasting station of the B class another of the same class with which it is to maintain emergency communication at a definite wavelength. His tentative plans embrace only the first, second, third, eighth and ninth radio districts, mostly in the northeast and middle west. But he says this can be extended to cover the entire country.

Details of Plan

The larger, or Class B, stations could maintain a trunk line emergency system over the country, and turn over their traffic to the smaller Class A stations or to amateurs for local distribution. By the use of telegraph, instead of telephone, Edwards believes a greater number of stations, including especially amateurs, could work together toward transmission of the emergency service at all times of day and night.

The plan of assigning definite stations for intercommunication, Edwards points out, is designed to avoid confusion if more stations tried to transmit at the same time.

"A chaotic condition would result if stations were to try and communicate with other stations promiscuously," he says.

Hayward Outpitches Cornellier in Fine Due—Two Runs in Eighth Break 4 to 4 Deadlock—Spectacular Double Play Nips C. M. A. C. Rally

Hogan's Central had the better of a 6 to 4 up-hill battle with the C.M.A.C. in a Lowell Twilight league game on the South common last night. The game went eight innings before a decision was made in favor of the Central, two runs crossing the rubber in this frame and breaking a 4-4 tie.

Duke Hayward was on the mound for the winners and pitched a brilliant brand of ball. He allowed the heavy hitting C.M.A.C. aggregation but eight hits while the Central were languishing. Cornellier and Gagnon for an even 10. Hayward and Martel led the assault with two and three hits, respectively. A three-sacker by Desmarais was the longest coil of the evening, while two-ply wallopers were garnered by Desloges and Nestor.

Both teams scored in the first, the Central getting one run and the C.M.A.C. two. The latter forged ahead in the third by adding two more runs to their total and were going strong until the Central began to hit in the fourth and fifth. Three runners registered in these two stanzas and the score was deadlocked.

For the next two innings, the tie existed, necessitating the playing of an extra inning. This proved fatal to the C.M.A.C. The first Central batter, McCarthy, singled to second, and Hayward sent him along to second on a sacrifice, which he converted into a safety. On a bunt by DeRoehn, McCarthy scored, and Hayward was "squeezed" home on a perfect bunt by Martel.

Although Desmarais tripled for the C.M.A.C. in the last half of the inning,

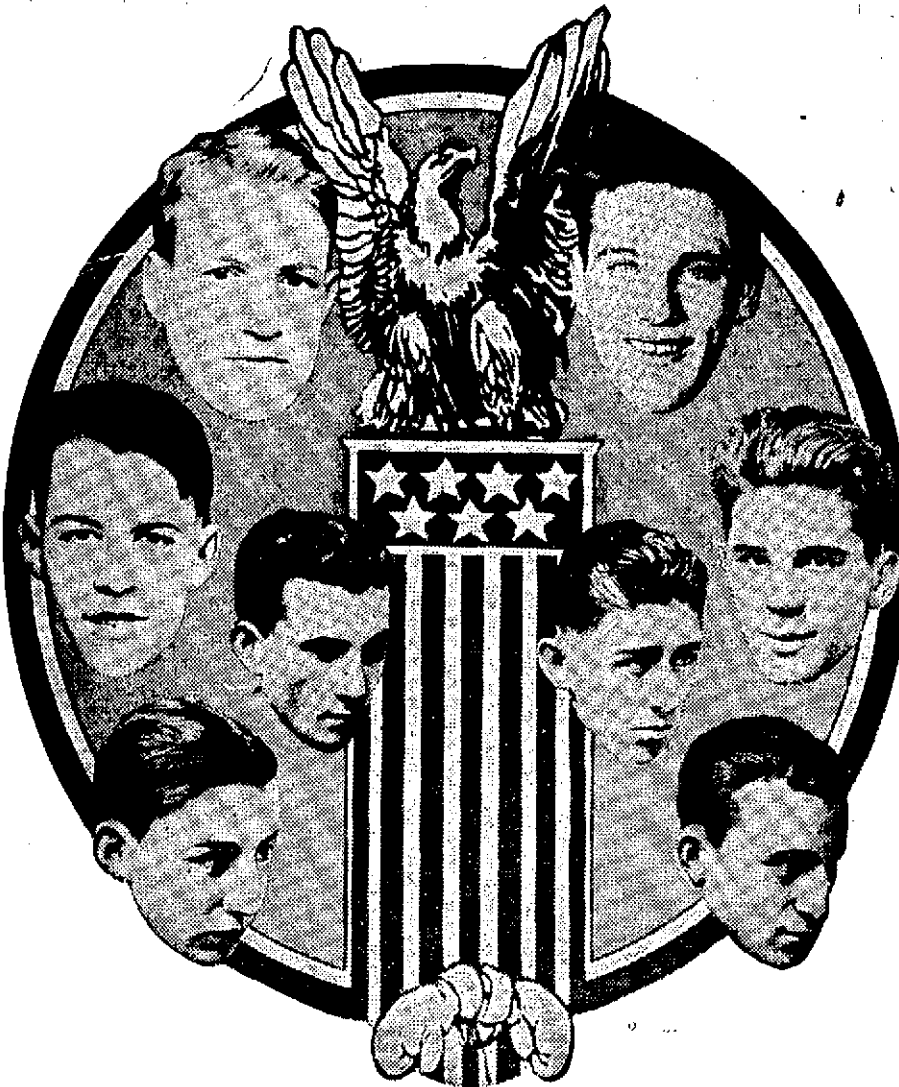

Lightning double play prevented damage. The score:

BY JOE WILLIAMS

In no form of sport is American domination so complete as in the refined and genteel art of face punching. This being conceded by all and sundry, American amateur boxers figure to make what is technically known as a clean-up in the Olympic bouts. Proportionately the amateurs in this country are as skilled as the professionals. It may be assumed that this is true of other countries. England has no Dempsey or Leonard or Stribling to fire the imagination of combative youth. The mediocre Beckett falls far short of being a commanding figure. France is little better off with her battered Carpentier. Australia has had no outstanding ring notable since the death of Les Barry. South America has Firpo and Vincentini and these two have kindled a vibrant interest in followers. The hegemony of Johnny Dundee is strongly felt in Italy and Denmark still remembers that the picturesque Battling Nelson was a Dane.

Expect Real Fight from Denmark. In this connection it is interesting to find that the Denmark team is one of the favorites and is expected to lift a large and terrifying paw in the tournament finals.

A competent American observer who saw the young Danes going through their practice steps writes me this line, "What bouts America doesn't win, Denmark will."

The heavy John Bull must suffer an extreme sense of nausea as he rolls a contemplative eye over his Olympic representatives. If the odds are as hopeless as they have been pictured.

England is the cradle of fistiana and around that country some of the most glorious chapters of the sport have been written. The thought that even the Danes may outstrip them in a boxing contest must be rather hard to endure.

Foals Will Mean Disqualification. The American team appears to be uniformly strong and is probably a better all-round outfit than the one which went over four years ago. In one respect the Americans are likely to be handicapped. Over here the referees are not strict. Either that or they are not competent. Wrestling, hitting on the breaks, rabbit punches and kidney blows seldom draw more than a reprimand. Mostly they are overlooked entirely.

The Olympic judges will hardly be this lenient, and there will be no reprimands. Any foul will mean a disqualification. The outstanding boxer who goes in for points will have an edge on the slam-bang youths who strive for a knockout.

The American idea is to knock 'em and knock 'em quick. But the boys must remember also to knock 'em clean.

In the above picture the two New England members, Al Nello of Lowell and Tom Kirby of Boston, support Lowell and Boston fans are rooting for their favorites to come through and look forward with confidence in the outcome.

YANKEES SUFFER SIXTH STRAIGHT DEFEAT AND DROP TO FOURTH PLACE

Ehmke Pitches Red Sox to Victory Over World's Champions—Washington Holds Lead—Giants Increase Lead in National League by Defeating Braves, 8 to 1

NEW YORK, June 27.—Pittsburgh now steps from the major league chon-ruse to occupy the spotlight which has recently shone on the Tigers, Indians, Senators and Giants.

Classed among the logical contenders for the Giant crown, the Pirates after knocking about in odd corners of the league, have suddenly become ambitious and won 10 of their last 14 games. The streak continued yesterday with a 2 to 1 victory over the Cubs, enabled them to creep to within one and one-half games of third place as the Robins lost a 3 to 2 battle to Philadelphia.

The Pirates got only six hits from Aldridge and Wheeler while the Cubs made eight off Morrison, but Pittsburgh made the most of their lately-acquired faculty of hit-conservation. The Phillies beat Brooklyn by making five hits in a ninth inning rally.

Back at the Polo Grounds for a brief farewell before starting west, the Giants increased their lead over the Cubs to three and one-half games by winning from Boston, 5 to 1. Barnes brothers started to pitch but both were knocked out. Mondard, replacing young Virgil in the first, held the Braves to three hits in 2-2 innings.

Mueller's triple and a sacrifice fly to Blades, gave the Cardinals a 2 to 1 victory in 10 innings over the Reds.

JACKSON SCHOLZ IS THE NEW "FASTEST HUMAN," BECAUSE HE STARTS QUICKER THAN ANY OTHER SPRINTER IN THE GAME AND SWINGS INTO HIS FULL STRIDE WHEN ONLY 12 YARDS FROM START, AS DIAGRAM SHOWS.

BY JOE WILLIAMS

Whatever Jackson Scholz does or does not do as a member of the American sprint team in the coming Olympic games he will always be known to posterity as the man who beat Paddock.

Until the New York German came up from nowhere to break two world records on successive days, with the ease and nonchalance of Mrs. O'Grady's golf going through a paper-mache fence, Paddock, "fastest human," stood out as the winged-foot phenom of his day and generation. When word came singling over the wires that Scholz had first run the 200 meters in 21 seconds flat, and again in 20 3-10 seconds, thus setting two new records within 48 hours, the incredulous villagers lifted high their raucous voices and demanded to know just what ticket the gentleman voted and why.

Well, to begin with, Scholz is no kid. Indeed he was good enough to make the Olympic team four years ago, but he wasn't good enough to threaten any records. His participation was restricted to taking the dust of other runners, and posing in the group pictures. He was just one of the boys who went along and saw the sights.

Previous to that he had done quite well by the good old Scholz name as a sprinter at University of Missouri. Bob Simpson, Missouri coach, took a deep and abiding interest in him, and made frequent predictions, within easy hearing distance of eager reporters, that Mrs. Scholz's boy, Jackson, some day would be a world beater.

Scholz rather dropped out of the running game after his unsuccessful voyage with the 1920 team, and remained in a state of semi-retirement until last winter when a patriotic urge to go out and do something really noble for the Stars and Stripes—and incidentally get another slant at the well-dressed mannequins on the Paris boulevards—arose in him squarely between the eyes.

A Winter Season of Drudgery
Scholz entered all the indoor meets for their teams. They were voted in the league on condition that permission be received from Supt. Kernan to use the park on a fourth night. This morning a committee waited on the superintendent and delivered their petition. Mr. Kernan considered it and later notified them that the petition was granted. The committee consisted of the manager of each team or his representative. The managers are: Alfred Gorman, St. Joseph's Cadets; Bill Carr, Iroquois; C. Gauthier, Emeralds; A. Pratus, Mysteries; J. Prudhomme, Victorias; Wilfred Albert, P.A.C.; R. Nichols, Buffaloes; Wilfred Bertrand, Pawtucket Blues.

Each team must post a forfeit of $5 at the beginning of the first game. The money thus gained will serve as a purse for the team that leads the league at the end of the season. Sweaters will be given to the players of the champion team, and the silver trophy cup that is to be donated by William J. Pettler, the jeweler, will be the possession of the manager of the champion team. William Roberts has been secured as umpire for the greater part of the season. A complete and revised schedule of games will be announced later through The Sun.

HAGEN AND SMITH WELL UP IN RUNNING

MOYLAK, England, June 27.—(By the Associated Press) Walter Hagen and MacDonald Smith, were well up in the running for the British open golf championship as the final day's play of 36 holes began over the Royal Liverpool course.

George Duncan, former champion, took 74 for his morning round, giving him a total for 54 holes of 227.

Billy Evans SAYS

Often the real value of a certain ball player isn't appreciated until he is forced out of the lineup, through illness or injury.

Every now and then some player, who perhaps lacks color and seldom pulls any brilliant stuff, carries the punch of a ball club.

What the absence of a capable player can do to a pennant contender is shown in the recent slump of the Boston Red Sox.

Joe Harris, regular first sacker of the Boston club, isn't a slacker in the field, and he hasn't the style of Ty Cobb at the plate, but he can field and hit.

Joe, as the golfer would say, lacks form. There have been a few great golfers who deviated from set customs of the link; for instance, Ray, the great English player.

Ray has a style very much his own, but he gets distance, an accuracy to his drives, and is equally proficient on the greens. What more could be desired?

The same goes for Joe Harris. It would be hard to copy his style at bat, yet he stands out as one of the best hitters in the American league.

When Harris was forced out of the game because of illness, the work of the Boston club, as a whole, began to slump. His batting punch was missed.

So for this year he has won many a game through a timely hit. Incidentally, the infield began to wobble with Harris missing from first base.

It is really surprising how much the success of the shortstop, second baseman and third sacker depends on the play of the first baseman.

Harris, while lacking the brilliancy of Sisler and some of the other star first sackers, is a great target to throw at, and in his own peculiar style makes many remarkable plays.

Infielders take into consideration the play of the first baseman in figuring the possibilities of each ball that is hit at them. In a great many cases, fast execution is demanded. Not much thought can be given to perfect timing of the ball and the throw. The big idea is to stop the ball and get it on its way.

It is in such cases that the reliable first baseman plays a big part in many cases, fast execution is demanded. Not much thought can be given to perfect timing of the ball and the throw. The big idea is to stop the ball and get it on its way.

With a substitute playing first, the other infielders tighten up, try to perfectly time every throw and lose much speed, not only in handling the ball but getting it away.

Because most first basemen go about their work so easily, much of the difficulty in playing the position is lost to the spectator. Unquestionably the play of the first sacker is the steady influence on the infield.

The case of Harris and the play of the Red Sox is ample proof of it.

SILESIA'S TO MEET MANCHESTER TONIGHT

The Silesia mills team and Manchester will go to it at North Chelmsford this evening. This game was postponed last night to prevent interference with the Abbot team in Granville. It should prove one of the best of the season hereabouts, as both teams have won a game in previous meetings. Greenhaigh will probably be selected to pitch for the home team.

Award to Stribling Over Loughran Unpopular—Gans Beaten

NEW YORK, June 27.—Harry Greb, holder of the world's 160-pound title today returned his middleweight crown to the metaphorical moth balls after dangling it tantalizingly before the envious eyes of Ted Moore, English champion, at the Yankee stadium, last night, while 60,000 contributors to the Milk Fund watched the human windmill go through his characteristic paces.

A perfectly delivered left uppercut, swung with intense rapidity to the open jaw of the English champion, with almost unbelievable regularity battered Moore into pugilistic submission. There was nothing inconceivable about Greb's attack. He started his punches from wherever his shifting gloves happened to be and usually they found an opening.

But despite the punishment that Greb meted out to the plucky Moore, the Englishman came back for more on every occasion. Everyone of the 10 torrid rounds went to Greb by a wide margin; yet when the match was completed the masses stands arose and paid a glowing tribute to the game Englishman who stuck to his guns in the face of certain defeat.

The Macon, Ga., schoolboy, William L. (Young) Stribling, met a tough proposition in Tommy (K. O.) Loughran, Philadelphia battler, but the decision went to Stribling after six rounds. This award was extremely unpopular to the fans and a demonstration of protest ensued.

NORTH CAMBRIDGE TEAM DEFEATS ABBOTS

The game was a hummer all the way, McCrehan and Heck engaging in a pretty pitcher's duel. Heck, with better support, might have had better success. Five errors were chalked up to the home team. The score:

JACK SLATTERY TO COACH BOSTON COLLEGE

BOSTON, June 27.—Jack Slattery of Jamaica Plain, old-time Chicago Cub catcher, who has been head coach of varsity baseball at Harvard for the past five years, yesterday afternoon signed a contract to coach next year's Boston College nine.

In transferring his allegiance from the Crimson to the Maroon and Gold, the veteran major leaguer brings to an end five years of service at the college on the Charles. And there is no doubt that while at Harvard, he has been severely handicapped by lack of high calibre material.

As it was, he was away to a good stars when he came to Cambridge in the spring of 1920. He defeated Harvard's great rival, Yale, the first two seasons. During the past three seasons, however, his Crimson nine has each year been defeated by the Blue.

Against Princeton, Slattery's nine have been victorious in three series out of five. And against Holy Cross, always a very powerful team, his charges have done well, although they usually have lost. He defeated Holy Cross by a 10-0 score in 1920 and has been defeated by a one-run margin at the hands of the Worcester clan on four other occasions.

Thus, Slattery's showing against Holy Cross, the rival team of his new alma mater, has been very good indeed. And there is no doubt that Slattery as successor to Coach Olaf Hendrickson at B. C. should get high calibre results.

The veteran Crimson coach leaves Harvard with a host of friends and well-wishers behind him. To date, the Harvard athletic authorities have not been able to come to an agreement on the selection of a successor to Slattery.

GAME ON SOUTH COMMON THIS EVENING

The postponed game between the Pawtucket A.A. and Rensselaer's Belmonts will be played on the South common at 6:15 o'clock this evening. To the holder of the lucky number, Frank Rensselaer will donate a suitable prize.

Chick Tardiff will work the points for the Pawtuckets, who are leading the league, while Bobby Lawless will probably receive the Belmont assignment.

Orrie Allen and Buster Curtin will umpire Tuesday night the Centralville East Ends will play the Butlers.

Jack Daw's Adventures. Chapter 6

A small tug pulled up in front of the sailing vessel and Jack ran up and watched a long tow line fastened into place. Then the captain appeared on the deck of the sailboat. "Turn back and have them swing you on board with the big crane, young fellow," he shouted.

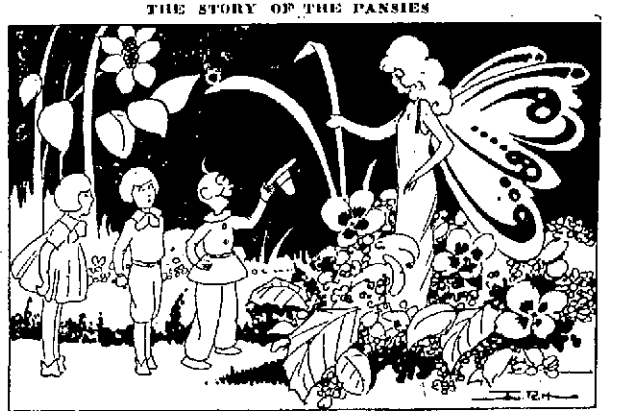

Jack turned and, followed by Flip, ran back to where the crane was standing. The big arm that picked things up and put them on the boat had a long wire attached to it. At the end of this line was a loop. Jack grabbed this and then circled his other arm around Flip.

The captain, in the meantime, had walked to the stern of the sailing vessel and he shouted to the crane man to swing Jack and Flip up on the boat. Instantly the great crane started to move and Jack felt himself being lifted into the air. He hung on to Flip tightly. (Continued.)

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

Olive Roberts Barton

"HELLO!" CALLED A SWEET VOICE.

"The man in the moon is so short and so fat. He can't bend over this way or bend over that. He has not seen his feet since the Fourth of July. But he says that's his shape, so there's no use to try."

That's what Johnny Jump Up was singing in the moonlight. The twins woke up and rubbed their eyes.

"Is that you, Johnny?" called Nick. "Yes, sir, it's me," said Johnny, doing a handspinning on the window-sill. "Are we going on an adventure?" asked Nancy eagerly. "Are you going to take us on a journey?"

"Yes, I am," said the funny little fairy. "That is if you want to go, and if the moon is willing."

The twins scrambled out of bed and slipped into their clothes and put on the magic shoes. As usual, they became so little that their chins nearly touched the ground.

"Come on," said Johnny Jump Up gaily. "We have a long way to go and the night is waiting. Come."

So they all climbed down the rose vine to the magic garden. Johnny Jump Up led the way. And when they came to the pansy bed.

"HELLO!" CALLED A SWEET VOICE, and a lovely little fairy appeared right in the center of the flowers. She had on a purple poke-bonnet and a yellow waist and green skirt. "I've been waiting and waiting," she said. "Who are you?" asked Nancy timidly.

"I am the pansy fairy," said the tiny creature. "Do you want to hear the story about the pansies?"

"Yes, yes," cried both of the children. "We'd love to hear it."

"Well, once upon a time," said the fairy, "pansies grew wild like violets. The people in France named them. 'At first they called them 'three little maidens under one hood.' 'Hugh!' shouted Johnny Jump Up. 'Listen to that, will you. Why it would take all day to say it.' 'Do be quiet!' said the tiny creature impatiently. 'I want to hear the rest of the story myself.' 'The pansy fairy laughed good-naturedly and went on. 'You are right, Johnny, the name was too long. So the French people changed it. The three faces on the flower looked so solemn and thoughtful that they called them the French word for thought. It sounded so much like pansies that that's what they were called and here, plain pansies. 'But that's not the real story I started to tell you. The pansies grow in the wheat fields among the wheat, as poppies do now. And because they smelled so sweet, the people would tramp down the wheat to get them. 'This will never do,' said the kind pansies. 'We must stop smelling so fine, and save the wheat. So they did, and they have never had a sweet smell since.' 'Now it's too late to go to France,' said the tiny creature. 'I never could get you there and back before daylight. The sun's coming up now.' 'We'll go tomorrow,' said Johnny Jump Up. (To Be Continued.)

MISS ZISKIND IS JUNE BRIDE

Weltman of Springfield

Guests Gathered From All
New England Make Ceremony a Social Event

In what will take rank as one of the outstanding social events in Jewish society in New England during the present season, Miss Esther Ziskind, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Ziskind of 75 Gates street, Lowell, was last night united in marriage to Samuel Weltman, Springfield attorney. The ceremony was performed beneath a wide spreading bower of chrysanthemums in Beacon house, Boston, which was tastefully and lavishly decorated for the occasion. Rabbi Epstein of the Reformed church of Boston was the officiating clergyman.

There were over 100 guests from Lowell and vicinity present at the ceremony and in all close to 500 persons gathered from all points of New England as guests. The bride, who wore a charming gown of white duchess satin with pearls and real lace trimmings and veil, carried a bouquet of roses and lilies of the valley. She was given in marriage by her father and was attended by Miss Lucille Brenner of Brookline as maid of honor and Laz Weltman of Los Angeles, California, a brother of the bridegroom, as best man. The bridesmaids, gowned becomingly in creations of various colors, were the Misses Belle Zeman of Roxbury, Betty Meyers of Lawrence, Rose Kaufman of Brookline, Dorothy Laurie of Brookline and Stella Weltman of Pittsfield. All carried bouquets of sweet peas.

The ushers were Jack Ziskind of Lowell, William Weltman and Saul Goldstein of Pittsfield, Nat Levine of Boston, and Sidney Spector of Springfield. The bride's gifts to the bridesmaids were cameras while the maid of honor was given a platinum wrist watch. The ushers were all presented gold pencils.

A dinner and reception followed the ceremony after which the young couple left for an extended trip to the Canadian Rockies and other points. They will be at home in Springfield after Sept. 15.

FOR SANE OBSERVANCE OF JULY FOURTH

Fire Chief Edward F. Saunders today issued his annual appeal for a safe and sane observance of the Fourth of July. While admitting there is no occasion to be more fearful than in the past few years in view of the restrictions he intends to enforce, he feels that the usual warning will not be amiss. The warning follows:

"Notwithstanding the continued growth of the 'Safe and Sane' idea among the great majority of intelligent citizens, and the development of the more sensible community celebration, there are still people who feel that they cannot appropriately observe the anniversary of the passage of the Declaration of Independence without resorting to fire and noise. This is proved by the fact that in the latest year of record of the Actuarial Bureau of the National Board of Fire Underwriters reports the property damage due to fireworks, firecrackers, etc., at more than three quarters of a million dollars. As a fire cause, therefore, it is by no means the least important—even after some twenty years of the 'Safe and Sane' campaign, which has brought about the prohibition in this and other cities of the most hazardous celebrating materials. Vast property damage is recorded every year from firecrackers and fireworks falling on inflammable roofs, under porches, in rubbish piles, or in dry grass, and so spreading.

"Furthermore, following every Fourth the newspapers continue to tell of mutilations and deaths. Last year one state—and not the most populous, either—had five deaths, sixteen serious injuries and sixty fires, all due to fireworks. In 1923, several small children died from poison after eating various kinds of fireworks. But, of course, most of the trouble comes from sparks and explosions resulting in loss of sight and fingers, and in ugly burns about faces and hands.

"Thousands of marvets who, even before the restrictions came, forbade their children to celebrate in the old-fashioned way, still allow them to play with sparklers, toy balloons and other fireworks, which they believe harmless. Last year in one small town in Louisiana, however, nine little girls had their dresses ignited with sparklers, with the result that four are in their graves and the others disfigured for life. The list of similar disasters is long; for though the sparks given off may be harmless, the metal core itself becomes red-hot and will easily ignite flammable fabrics. As for the miniature balloons, they are hazardous not only while they are being released but also in the possibility of their dropping on inflammable roofs or other combustible surfaces.

"If some display of fireworks is considered imperative in this city, let them be set off only in a properly supervised public function, which the children can enjoy without danger and where there is no exposure to burnable property. Many a battle in the Revolutionary war, which made effective the Declaration of Independence, did not claim a tenth of the toll of human life that has been paid in a century of Fourth-of-July celebrations. Let's make this the safest, most sensible and at the same time most memorable Fourth ever known in Lowell."

After a few more whacks the chairman called the convention to order and introduced the Rev. Dwight W. Wythe of the Central Presbyterian church of New York, to deliver the invocation.

OUR BOARDING HOUSE

St. Anne's Sunday School Has Annual Outing

ALL READY FOR THE BIG TIME AT NABNASSET

Over 150 happy children, ranging in age from 5 to 15 years, gathered at 9 o'clock this morning at St. Anne's parish house and there boarded trucks and busses for the Y.M.C.A. camp at Nabnasset pond.

They were the children of St. Anne's Sunday school, off on their annual outing and smiles were on every face for the occasion is always one to be long remembered.

At 9:30 o'clock the children, accompanied by teachers and the Sunday school and in a few instances by their parents, boarded the trucks and busses and started for the outing grounds. Arriving at Camp Nabnasset, as the Y.M.C.A. camp is known, the first half-hour was given over to enjoyment of the scenery. The place is beautifully located and many a gasp of astonishment was heard from the children who had never before gazed in this place on an outing. The pond, fringed on all sides by hills and pines, with a background of blue covered with the same trees, was truly a beautiful picture in the bright sunlight this morning.

As soon as the picnicers had become accustomed to the scene, a baseball game was staged between 3 teams composed of Sunday school boys and campers at the Y summer camp.

Thomas R. Williams, director of the camp, was in charge of the sports program and he, assisted by several other instructors at the camp, umpired the baseball game.

Upon the conclusion of the game, boys and girls were taken in charge by sports instructors and a long program of sports run off. Many contests were planned for this program and the list was long enough to keep the children interested until 1 o'clock.

All of the picnicers carried lunches and at one o'clock in a pine grove near the camp buildings, they sat down on soft seats made of pine needles and enjoyed their dinners. Additional refreshments were distributed among them, consisting mainly of tonic and ice cream, and fully an hour was given over to luncheon.

The men in charge of the outing, cognizant of the dangers attendant upon children entering into any sports for an hour or more after luncheon, gathered the children together on the broad veranda of the clubhouse and entertained them with songs and story songs in which the children joined in with a vim and stories of camp life and of the birds found in the woods about Nabnasset.

The program for the afternoon consisted mainly of letting the children enjoy themselves in any safe way they pleased. Many carried bathing suits and intended to swim at the beach under the eyes of the camp life-guard, while others, older and more experienced than most, planned to go out on the pond in boats and enjoy that sport.

Rev. Appleton Grannis, rector of St. Anne's church, was in charge of the picnic and he was capably assisted by Thomas R. Williams, head of the Y.M.C.A. camp, as sports manager, and teachers of the Sunday school and instructors at the Y camp.

Even completed today, the combined forces opposed to McAdoo and led by the Smith captains will resist an attempt to go on with balloting, if the platform is not ready, but will seek to adjourn the convention until tomorrow morning as they did last night.

They expected a contest against roll call just as was the case at the conclusion of yesterday's session. As the leaders on both sides, this time, had the opportunity to know what was coming and to be ready for it, the hand, such a roll call if it came could be regarded more fairly as a test of strength than yesterday's.

Baker Nominates Cox

Mr. Quinn's speech seconding Gov. Smith ended in a burst of applause and handclapping, spurred along by the band. It was a Smith demonstration but it soon quieted down. Mississippi yielded to Ohio, when called, and former Secretary Newton D. Baker took the platform to nominate James M. Cox, the presidential standard-bearer of 1920. The convention gave Baker a rising demonstration while the big lights were flashed on and the movie men cranked off a few yards.

The convention flood showed it had some distinction of opinion on the leaving of Nations issue, because when Mr. Baker during his speech mentioned the name of the league for the first time, the league men on the floor started a demonstration of cheering and handclapping during which probably a third or a fourth of the delegates rose to their feet cheering, and urging others to join them. The band helped the thing along but fell remainder of the delegates remained silent and Mr. Baker went on with his speech. The League of Nations has been the subject of a fight in the platform committee in which Mr. Baker has been leading the contest for its recognition by the convention.

When Mr. Baker concluded and named James M. Cox, the Ohio delegation rose and cheered and was joined by sprinklings of delegates from other parts of the floor.

There was an attempt to start a procession, headed by the Ohio standard-bearer, but it was quickly stopped by the Cox floor manager of four years ago, who stopped the movement. For several minutes the convention remained on its feet, watching those who were taking part in the demonstration for Cox. The band played "Ohio" and nearly everybody sang. It was an opportunity for a stretch and a little diversion, whether a delegate was for Cox or not.

Rumpus Over Ohio Standard

Finally there was a near rumpus about the Ohio standard going into a parade. Apparently there was some disagreement about it because when one man seized it, several others held it down, and had a heated argument which resulted in the standard remaining where it was, but not until after there had been an approach to a scramble.

Finally the standard was moved off the aisle to the middle of the delegation and a young woman raised it aloft. There was a chorus of "Whoop Las" from different sections of the hall and galleries. The band kept up an excursion through a medley of popular airs and as there was no attempt to stop the noise and get back to work, the demonstration for Cox continued. It was spontaneous so far as it went, and without any professional attachments, but as there was no machinery for giving it force, it did not get away with a loud noise. Judson Harmon, one of the party war horses from Ohio stood smiling on the outside of the arguing group watching the outcome.

Finally the band stopped and Chairman Walsh rapped for order. But the aisles had to be cleared and some singers were silenced before business was resumed.

"Best Speech of Convention"

After having used up 20 minutes, the call of the roll was resumed and Montana sent to the platform William H. Maloney of Butte, to second the nomination of Gov. Smith. Mr. Maloney took up a place in front of the microphone but when he tried his voice it was obvious that Maloney had been ranting for somebody very much, for he had no voice. He merely emitted a variety of strange sounds while the convention roared with laughter.

He gave it up and retired unwillingly, while the convention roared again. Everybody said it was the best speech so far delivered.

Below is the speech Maloney had prepared for delivery:

Blended If Smith Falls

"On behalf of the underground tollers of the great Rocky Mountain regions, and the industrial centers of Montana," he said, "I desire to second the nomination of Al Smith."

"Before leaving my beloved Montana home, my colleagues," puts and chums (joined me to bring back Al Smith as our nominee for the presidency, or failing they would bring me to the nearest luncheon. I feel that you do not desire or wish that this neck of mine should meet the sad fate of Robert Emmet. Therefore I ask of you this favor.

"Give us Al Smith for a leader, and the wide stretches of the Western prairie, the rock-ribbed Rockies and the great Pacific are ours."

Another McAdoo Outburst

Chairman Walsh announced to the convention that Maloney had taken the platform to second Gov. Smith's nomination, and then introduced S. V. Stewart of Montana, who made a speech seconding the nomination of William G. McAdoo.

The mention of their favorite's name gave the McAdoo people another opportunity and they cut loose with a short burst of cheering.

Harry B. Fielarty of Omaha, was unable to be present and deliver the speech he had prepared nominating Gov. Bryan for the presidency. It was delivered for him by Eugene D. O'Sullivan of Omaha.

The convention did not seem to be much interested in one man's speech being read by another, and kept up a continuous hum of conversation while Mr. O'Sullivan was reading. Once Chairman Walsh had to intervene and rebuke the audience for its inattention.

Justice Attacks McAdoo

The delegation leaders took the opportunity to do a little electrifying. Joseph B. Shannon of Kansas City circulated among the Missouri delegates a letter he had received from Chief Justice Taft, who had expressed the hope that the delegation would not give its vote to McAdoo. The chief justice's letter declared McAdoo "Intellectually mediocre, and below the average of a lawyer, and possessing an itching pain which could only find relief in the contributions of such clients as DuPont and Alford."

Shannon showed the original of the letter to all the members of the Missouri delegation, which contains some McAdoo supporters.

The maneuvering among the delegates developed also that there was considerable tension on the floor over the religious aspects of the K.K.K. issue. The McAdoo people selected J. F. T. O'Connor of Grand Forks, N. D., to make a seconding speech, and make the point that the religious aspects have no proper place in the deliberations of the convention.

Cheers for Gov. Bryan

At the conclusion of his address and mention of the name of Gov. Bryan, there was an outburst of cheering. Most of the cheering folks in the galleries probably thought they were cheering William Jennings Bryan.

Finally after a little milling around, a parade got started with Nebraska at the head. It was a parade for Gov. Bryan or his brother, William Jennings Bryan, whichever one might prefer—but at all events, it was a parade and a demonstration for the name of Bryan and the old timers, whatever their affiliations and sympathies in the present convention may be, joined gladly and smilingly in the recollections of the battles of the past in the background.

Gov. Brown Nominated

The tribute to the name of Bryan wound up with the delegates singing "Onward, Christian Soldiers." Then Chairman Walsh banged for order, got it after a little waiting and introduced Francis Clyde Kofo of Dover, N. H., who nominated Gov. Fred H. Brown of New Hampshire, he told the convention, was speaking in the big meeting for the first time in 72 years.

Plans Davis Demonstration

NEW YORK, June 27.—West Virginia friends of John W. Davis marshaled their strength in the convention hall today to do a little cheering when his name was placed in nomination. They did not expect any rousing demonstration materializing, but they did anticipate that a lot of friendly sympathy in the way of handclapping and the like, would manifest itself among many delegations which will vote otherwise until the vital moment comes when pre-convention obligations no longer bind and the action of individual delegates.
